ENGLAND FORCES FRANCE TO YIELD; GERMAN NOTES MILD

Berlin Is Held Responsible for Safety of Control Missions and Conduct of Hohenzollerns.

ACTION FUTILE, PARIS HOLDS

But Accord Is First on Treaty Execution Since League Settled Silesian Issue.

AMBASSADORS ALL HAPPY

Saving of Entente Regarded as Presaging Anglo-French Understanding on Other Questions.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—It was announced by the Conference of Ambassadors tonight that an agreement had been reached and two notes sent to Germany, one on military control and another on the Crown Prince. These notes were mild because England said they must be so or she would withdraw from every interallied commission set up by the treaty.

Before this threat Premier Poincaré gave way after pointing out at a Cabinet meeting that if there were no Interallied Commission control there could be none at all, since it was evident that the French and Belgians could not conduct it alone. As French circles view it tonight the allied action is likely to mean an end of military control, but it is argued that the French will take care of their security on the Rhine.

M. Poincaré wished to send an allied note to Germany demanding full German protection of the interallied mission in every part of Germany when and where General Nollet wished to inspect, and threatening grave penalties if Germany did not comply. What has happened is that the Allies have sent Germany another note, generally similar to many others on the same subject, demanding that military control, which ended last January on the occupation of the Ruhr, shall be resumed.

Curb Put on Commission.

But one paragraph of the note states that the Interallied Commission will have latitude to decide when and where inspections are "reasonable and necessary." Couple with this instructions sent to the commission to refer to the Ambassadors every time Berlin thinks inspection is not "realizable and necessary" and considering the situation of the Conference of Ambassadors, the reason for French pessimism becomes apparent.

No fear is felt about Berlin's accepting tonight's note, but it is feared in Paris that it will turn out that Germany will find unrealizable most of the inspections General Nollet may wish to make. In other words, the French feel that mastership of the military control goes to Berlin, just as the Allies turned over to Berlin the task of judging the war criminals, which was the result of the Leipsic fiasco. It is pointed out here that M. Poincaré realized that if he stood firm it would mean the end of even a semblance of control through British withdrawal from the commission, and therefore nothing would be gained at this time by such a course.

Having failed to obtain interallied firmness on military control, M. Poincaré, the French say, apparently allowed Lord Curzon to write the Crown Prince note as he pleased, and that the note means that the Crown Prince issue has simply been dropped. They are also convinced that the note on military control is the beginning of the end of that undertaking of the Allies to keep the German Army down to 100,000 men through a system of control on the spot. The French have announced that they will hold the Rhine so long as Germany ever has a greater force than that laid down by the treaty.

Poincaré Prepares to Answer Critics.

It is already apparent that M. Poincaré will have to face no little criticism for his acceptance of the notes and tonight he is understood to be preparing a defense to be delivered in the Chamber, perhaps tomorrow.

The Matin tomorrow morning will say that what has been done is that the Allies have agreed not to disagree at present. Regarding military control the Matin will say:

"The highest military authorities judge that the period during which control provided by the treaty would be efficacious has now passed. Owing to the effervescence which reigns in Germany and local difficulties, the searches carried on by our officers will be almost illusory. If Germany persists in her policy of preparation for revenge, it is clear that France must resort to defensive measures and organize strongly the territory she has occupied as a solid barrier against possible aggressions. It would be foolish to break the allied front for illusory advantages. But our liberty of action is entirely safeguarded."

Conferences Members Jubilant.

PARIS, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—The accord reached in the Ambassadors' Conference tonight marks the first time the Allies have agreed upon a question relating to the execution by Germany of the Treaty of Versailles since the partition of Upper Silesia was referred to the League of Nations two years ago.

The unusual sensation of leaving a meeting in full accord appeared particularly agreeable to the members of the Council, who came out of the cloakroom of the Foreign Office radiant. Marshal Foch, who usually passes the line of reporters with military dignity,

Public Spirited Polish Bandit Pays Income Tax on His Hauls

WARSAW, Nov. 21.—Civic duties trouble the conscience of Mucha, the famous Polish bandit, much more than robbery and sundry other crimes.

He recently made out a complete income tax return, giving the date and place of each robbery with the amount realized in each case, and sent it to the authorities with his income tax.

BRITISH CAMPAIGN HITS LIVELY STRIDE

Leaders of All Parties Mix Personalities With Arguments for and Against Protection.

BALDWIN REPORTED GAINING

Liberal-Labor Fight Makes His Chances Brighter—Big London Papers May Change Parties.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The leaders of all the political parties were on the hustings today, and the campaign struck a lively stride as personalities were interspersed amid arguments for and against free trade and protection.

The Prime Minister at Reading, Mr. Asquith at Paisley, Winston Churchill at Leicester, Ramsay Macdonald addressing coal miners, and Mr. Lloyd George in the Queen's Hall, London, drew audiences that overtaxed the capacity of the accommodations and thousands had to be turned away.

Premier Baldwin cast doubt on the permanence of the Liberal reunion, and said:

"I never thought there was a sufficiently large bed in this country to hold Asquith and Lloyd George, but they have climbed into the same one, and I think we will wait until morning to see which has kicked the other out."

The Prime Minister also was facetious at the expense of the coalition Liberal manifesto, which, he said, "in its attempt to please every faction reminds me of a chameleon, with its changing colors, which burst when they put him on a paisley shawl."

Asquith Denies Tariff Gives Work.

Mr. Asquith, in a speech at Paisley, opposed the idea that protectionist countries were more prosperous than Britain, and he declared that the wave of unemployment was a temporary one, which would pass as it did in America, where two years ago there were far more unemployed than in this country. In neither case had it anything to do with tariffs.

Ramsay Macdonald, in a speech to a meeting of miners, asserted that protection was not going to help them. In the coal fields of America, he said, there was never peace, and the result of protection there was that massed capital was more powerful than massed labor, and only on rare occasions could massed labor win.

Sir Robert Horne, speaking at Glasgow, contended that the country's present difficulties were arrived at under free trade.

"What is the good of telling us that free trade won the war," he said. "It was won by the support of the finances of both France and America, both great protectionist States, and we are still paying our debts to protectionist countries."

Winston Churchill, speaking at Leicester, made reference to the American debt. He said Great Britain had always intended to pay her debts, but, he contended, "with a little patience, tact, management and good-will we might have secured from the United States far better terms than the extremely onerous conditions to which we have subscribed. With a great man and a great Government I believe it would be possible to have used these negotiations as a means of bringing the United States to the council chamber of Europe."

Lloyd George Assails Protection.

Liberals turned out in great force this afternoon to hear Mr. Lloyd George make answer to Premier Baldwin at the Queen's Hall, London. A number of Liberal peers and about sixty Liberal candidates for the London constituencies occupied the platform, while the body of the hall was filled by crowds of cheering supporters.

The former Premier appeared to have taken to heart the criticisms of his exuberant platform style. He had been accused of abusing Mr. Baldwin, he said, when he had only said that the Prime Minister was not fit for the job. If a man was applying for the direction

COOLIDGE WILL SEND LETTER PAVING WAY FOR MELLON PLAN

Message Transmitting Budget to Congress Will Open Reduction Fight.

FIGURES EXCLUDE BONUS

President Will Urge Compliance With the Pared Estimates of Appropriations.

NON-PARTISAN HELP SOUGHT

Democrats Cling to the Bonus Project, but May Drop It to Reduce Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge's first important official declaration with regard to the Administration proposal for a reduction of taxes as recommended in the Mellon plan will come in connection with the transmission to Congress of the budget for the fiscal year 1925.

The budget will be submitted with a letter of transmittal from the President, which will virtually take the form of a financial message to Congress, in which he will deal with the economies already effected in Government business, will give his wholehearted support to the budget system and will discuss in some detail the task which this Administration has set for itself for the next fiscal year, that of keeping Government estimates and expenditures $126,000,000 lower than the appropriations for the current year.

The President's communication, it is understood, will have a vital bearing on the Mellon plan, which, according to responsible Treasury officials, cannot be made effective unless Congress holds appropriations within the lines set for the budget, avoiding especially the payment of soldiers' bonus.

Will Send Budget Message Dec. 3.

The President's discussion in the communication which he will send with the budget figures, while preceding the delivery of his regular message to Congress, will not interfere with that portion of his annual message in which he will deal with tax reduction from the new point of national policy. The budget, along with the President's letter, will be submitted to Congress at noon on Monday, Dec. 3. The President's annual message, in which he will recommend tax reduction and deal with other important subjects, will not be delivered until Tuesday or Wednesday of the opening week after he has been notified by a committee that Congress is ready to receive any message he has to communicate.

In the budgetary message he will deal with the situation respecting revenues and expenditures from the outset of the Harding Administration, will discuss the financial activities in which the Government has been interested, will indicate the directions in which the Administration recommends that Federal funds be used, and will deal comparatively with what has been done year by year since the institution of the budget. It is understood that the President will discuss the question of deficits at the beginning of the last few fiscal years, will tell what has been done toward transforming these deficits into surplus funds and will make a statement with respect to the reduction of the war debt.

It is understood that data to be presented will show that, all told, since the end of the World War, there has been paid $4,150,000,000 on the public debt and that beginning with the fiscal year 1923 there has been a reduction of $850,000,000 in income tax collections. In this connection there will be a reference to the possibility that under the Mellon plan a cut of $300,000,000 in taxes can be achieved with the approval of Congress.

The budget situation will show that the fiscal year 1922 began with a deficit of $759,000,000, but ended with a surplus of $383,000,000. In addition to the payment of $1,074,000,000 on the public debt, and that the fiscal year 1923, which began with a deficit of $696,000,000, ended with a surplus of $310,000,000, in addition to the payment of $823,000,000 on the public debt.

Estimates Near $3,500,000,000.

The aggregate of the budget, it is understood, will be around $3,500,000,000, inclusive of the amounts required to meet the reduction in, and the interest on, the public debt and the amount required for the Post Office Department. Exclusive of postal funds and debt, the 1925 estimate will not be in excess of $1,700,000,000. In order to achieve this the estimates had to be cut $126,000,000

Magnus Johnson Says Peace Is Chief Issue; He Seeks It by Education, Not World Court

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Magnus Johnson arrived in Washington today with a brief case full of legislative propositions. He is ready for the battle in the Senate.

Soon after Congress convenes he is going to take the floor and tell the country what he thinks about the foreign relations situation, which he says is the "most vital question today facing mankind." Incidentally, he will support any proposal to reduce the taxes of "the masses," but he will oppose any cut in the high surtaxes. Along with the reduction he declares there must be enacted a bonus law.

"I am for that part of the Mellon plan which proposes a cut in the taxes of the masses," said the Minnesota Senator. "But as for the cut in the big surtaxes, I am not for that. I think those who pay those taxes can afford to pay them. Then, of course, I am for the restoration of the excess profits tax. As you well know, I am for a bill which will give the soldiers the compensation to which they are entitled, and I shall therefore urge the passage of such a law."

The world peace situation is, however, in the opinion of the Senator, the biggest of all problems at this time. He says that the way to get world peace is to educate it into the people everywhere. He is against the League of Nations and the World Court and he doubts if an economic conference, such as Secretary Hughes has suggested, would do any good. As for peace by treaties, he said that he considered treaties "ineffective and as a rule not worth the paper they are written on."

Mr. Johnson was asked if he had noted in the West any growth of the movement for a third party. He replied that there was "considerable sentiment for such a party." The Senator added that he had heard much talk about Henry Ford as a possible Presidential candidate but was not ready to express his opinion as to the real strength of the Ford movement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Magnus Johnson was accompanied here by Mrs. Johnson and two of their daughters. During the afternoon the family went house hunting.

Senator Johnson said that he probably would take a place at Takoma Park, a suburb, because Mrs. Johnson prefers the open spaces to a crowded city and also because several other Senators from the Northwest reside there. The Senator wants a yard where he can get exercise with his axe.

MAYOR OF YONKERS, DEJECTED, A SUICIDE

Walter M. Taussig Shoots Himself in the Head With a Borrowed Pistol.

DEFEATED FOR RE-ELECTION

Family Denies Report of Financial Worries—Wife With Him When He Dies in Hospital.

Walter M. Taussig, Mayor of Yonkers, shot himself through the forehead yesterday, in the garage of his home at 101 Park Avenue, Yonkers, dying forty minutes later in St. John's Hospital. His family denied a report that the Mayor was financially embarrassed, and attribute his suicide to melancholia induced by his defeat at the last election, and to the fact that he was soon to undergo a serious operation.

In connection with the report that Mayor Taussig had lost heavily, an official of a Yonkers bank said that the Mayor had conferred with him on Tuesday. The banker said that the nature of the talk was confidential, but admitted that the Mayor's personal affairs had been touched upon. His brother, Professor Frank W. Taussig, Harvard economist, who formerly was Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, arrived in Yonkers early yesterday to keep an appointment with the Mayor. Professor Taussig heard of the death when he reached the City Hall.

After his conference with the banker on Monday, Mayor Taussig went to the office of Thomas M. Tobin, Commissioner of Public Safety, where he obtained the 38 calibre police Colt with which he killed himself. The Mayor talked to Commissioner Tobin about the value of some traffic lights recently put in service on Yonkers streets, and casually remarked on the order of Police Commissioner Enright directing the New York police to drive all criminals out of the city. Mayor Taussig expressed fear that many of the undesirables might stop in Yonkers. He then said that he had misplaced his revolver while moving recently and asked Tobin to lend him another. Tobin complied.

Heard Shot in the Garage.

The Mayor then went to his home and gave no sign of the act he contemplated. He slept soundly and was up early yesterday morning. He had breakfast with Mrs. Taussig, and after glancing through the newspapers went to the garage, at the back of the house, to get the automobile for the trip downtown to his office.

Mrs. Margaret Selenski, a servant, heard a sound which she thought was a tire blowout. She called to her son, William Selenski, the Taussig chauffeur, and together they went to the garage. The Mayor was lying in a corner, a revolver clutched in his right hand. He was barely conscious and was moaning. They summoned Dr. J. T. Gordon, and the Mayor was hurried to St. John's Hospital. There it was ascertained that the bullet had passed through the left temple and lodged in the brain. Mrs. Taussig was beside the bed when her husband died.

Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald of Westchester County, after a brief investigation, gave a verdict of suicide.

Mayor Taussig was born in St. Louis on June 10, 1862, the son of Dr. William Taussig, founder of the St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association. He moved to this city in 1879 and eventually became President of Wiebusch & Hilger, hardware exporters. He was a Vice President of the American Chain Company of Bridgeport up to 1921, and was President of the Challenge Cutlery Company of that city at the time of his death.

Two years ago he was virtually drafted by Yonkers Democrats to head their ticket. He was the only member of his ticket to be elected, an evidence of his popularity. During his term of office he fought gas rates as excessive and combated "service" charges by public service corporations. He engaged in many philanthropies. At the last election he was defeated by his Republican rival, Ulrich Weisendanger, by 1,025 votes. The only criticism leveled at the Mayor in the recent campaign, which was exceptionally keen, was for several of his appointments. None of his opponents said anything derogatory of the Mayor personally.

New Mayor Appointed.

Mayor Taussig did not handle public funds in his office. His successor, appointed immediately word of his death reached the Yonkers City Hall, was Alfred Watson, President of the Board of Aldermen. Mayor-elect Weisendanger, Mayor Watson and political leaders of both parties paid tribute to the late Mayor.

In addition to his widow, the Mayor left a son, Frank Taussig, who is connected with the Grolier Society, publishers; a daughter, Lucie Taussig, now in the Society Islands, and two married daughters—Mrs. R. A. Speeth, wife of a Professor of biology at Johns Hopkins University, and Mrs. Carl A. Scott, wife of a Yonkers physician. Miss Taussig is a member of the editorial staff of The Freeman. The late Mayor's sister, Mrs. Alfred Brandeis, is a sister-in-law of Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Taussig home and will be private.

STOKES SETTLES LONG MARITAL WAR

For Benefit of Wife and Children —Criminal Cases in Chicago Likely to Be Dropped.

Conferences for the last week among Samuel Untermyer, attorney for Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes; Isidore Gainsburg, present counsel for Stokes, and Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel, resulted in a statement at 8:45 o'clock last night by Justice Wasservogel that "the agreement arrived at between Mr. and Mrs. Stokes has been signed."

The attorneys and their clients had been in conference with the Court for six hours, and when no word as to the outcome of the resumption of the week of negotiations was forthcoming it was understood that the attorneys either would reach a settlement of all the Stokes litigation last night or efforts to end it would be abandoned and further steps would be taken in open court.

Stokes May See Children.

While it was stated that the full terms of the settlement would not be disclosed until they became a matter of court record before Justice Wasservogel today, it is understood that the settlement involve not only Mrs. Stokes's demand for an increase in her alimony of $18,000 a year, to be embodied in her separation decree, but also Stokes's five years' contest for a right to see their children, who have been in the custody of Mrs. Stokes at the home of her mother. It is said that Mrs. Stokes made this one concession to her husband.

The effect of the settlement upon the criminal proceedings instigated by Mrs. Stokes in Chicago, where Stokes, one of his attorneys, Daniel F. Nugent, and others have been indicted for alleged illegal attempts to get evidence there for use against Mrs. Stokes at the divorce trial, which resulted in favor of Mrs. Stokes, could not be predicted last night. Direct efforts by Mrs. Stokes to have the indictments dropped might lead to suggestions of compounding a felony, but it is expected that an appeal will be made to the Chicago authorities for a dismissal of the proceedings in the general interest of the public welfare.

Trust Fund Is $800,000.

The settlement also involves Mrs. Stokes's dower suit to establish her rights in her husband's real estate, including fifty-six parcels in Manhattan, his stock farm in Kentucky and other holdings, estimated to be worth several million dollars. Mrs. Stokes got a judgment in her favor from Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, who heard the dower suit, but the case was taken before the Appellate Division by Attorney Gainsburg, who acted as Stokes's counsel in that action, and was called in to represent him in the separation suit when it was called for trial a week ago. A trust fund of $800,000 for Mrs. Stokes and the children is said to be one of the chief features of the agreement reached last night.

Neither Mr. Gainsburg nor Mr. Untermyer would elaborate the statement made by Justice Wasservogel last night when the conference ended in the first agreement that Mr. and Mrs. Stokes have been able to reach since their first appeal to the courts. It was stated that the attorneys would issue a joint statement this morning outlining the terms found possible as the basis for an amicable agreement as soon as the case in marked settled by Justice Wasservogel.

Justice Wasservogel and the attorneys were in good humor when they left his chambers in the Emigrant Bank Building. The face of Mr. Stokes bore the merest semblance of a smile shown by him in public in recent years, and he walked with a sprightly gait. Mrs. Stokes also appeared happy and there was no indication that she was disturbed over her concession to her husband in the matter of seeing their children.

Friends of Justice Wasservogel congratulated him last night that his successful effort, begun a year ago, to effect the settlement of civil suits wherever possible, in many of which Mr. Gainsburg appeared, had brought to an end the most bitter domestic litigation in the local courts in recent years.

DR. COOK SENTENCED TO 14 YEARS IN JAIL FOR TEXAS OIL FRAUD

Must Also Pay $12,000 Fine—Twelve Others Convicted With Him.

FORMER EXPLORER SCORED

"You Have Stolen This Money From Widows and Orphans," Says Judge.

DEAL "DAMNABLY ROTTEN"

"Ananias and Sapphira Are Forgotten, but We Still Have Dr. Cook."

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, erstwhile polar explorer and mountain climber, was found guilty by a jury in Federal Court today of using the mails to defraud in the oil investment scheme known as the Petroleum Producers' Association, of which he was sole trustee. He was sentenced to serve fourteen years and nine months in a Federal prison and to pay a fine of $12,000 by Judge Killits.

Fred K. Smith, Treasurer of the association, was sentenced to serve seven years in prison and to pay a fine of $12,000. S. E. J. Cox was sentenced to eight years and to pay a fine of $8,000. Other codefendants of Dr. Cook who were found guilty were sentenced as follows:

A. K. Eckman, seven years and $12,000 fine; W. L. Braddish and W. P. Welty, two years each and $1,000 fine; J. S. Rooks, C. W. Sleete, S. L. Hess, T. O. Turner, N. S. Kenninger, E. J. Bowen and R. L. Maxwell, each one year and a day and fines of $1,000; L. A. McKercher, six years and $1,000 fine; O. L. Ray, G. A. De Montrond, H. E. Robinson, Harry Bleam and J. E. Burmeister, all of whom had previously entered pleas of guilty, fines of $500 each. H. O. Stephens, who also entered a plea of guilty, was fined $7,000 and sentenced to serve ninety days in jail.

Judge Denounces Dr. Cook.

Judge Killits passed sentence on Dr. Cook after a scathing denunciation of the methods shown to have been practiced by the former arctic explorer. Dr. Cook made no statement. His bond was placed at $75,000, which he will not be permitted to furnish until after a complete record of the case has been drawn.

"Stand up, Cook," Judge Killits commanded as he started to pronounce sentence. "What have you to say for yourself?"

The defendant said nothing.

"So you can say nothing," said the Court. "You have come to the point where your peculiar personality fails you. The twentieth century should be proud of you. History gave us Ananias and Sapphira. They are forgotten, but we still have Dr. Cook.

"Cook, this deal of yours is so damnably rotten that it seems to me your attorneys must have been forced to hold their handkerchiefs to their noses to have represented you. It stinks to high heaven. You should not be allowed to run at large. I know that you have your ill-gotten goods put away, but your wife and daughter should not be allowed to touch them. You have stolen this money from widows and orphans. You should start another company and distribute it back to them.

"Cook, have you no decency at all? Are you not haunted at night by these pitiable figures? How can you sleep? I am not going to do justice in this case, for I think that you will get it somewhere else. You ought to be paraded as a practical warning in every State where you have sold stock."

Dr. Cook, made an international character because of sheer effrontery, was conducting a school of crime and operating a cold-blooded, deliberate confidence game, disguised as the Petroleum Producers' Association, Judge Killits asserted. The denunciation was made while thanking the jury for nearly six weeks' of tireless service.

"You have done what I expected you to do," the Court said, "when this nefarious scheme began to unfold in the evidence."

Dr. Cook sat motionless, his eyes on a figure in the carpet. Cox sat with his head up, the muscles in his face twitching, and when the clerk was through he jumped up, hurried to the water

Police Start Radio System To Link All Stations Here

It was announced by Police Inspector General Charles H. McKinney, in charge of the Police Reserves, yesterday that 120 members of the reserves had formed a class to study radio. The purpose is to provide the Police Department with a system of wireless telegraph and telephone that may be used for co-ordinated communication to all parts of the city. Edward B. Craft, Chief Electrical Engineer of the Western Electric Company, a Major in the Police Reserve, will act as instructor. As soon as the pupils qualify they will be assigned to stations throughout the city and others will be instructed until a perfect system of wireless communication has been established in the territory covered by the Police Department, it was said.

TO ARREST DOCTOR FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Connecticut Officers Trail Dr. Sutcliffe, Diploma Mill Graduate, in Albany.

SIX BESIDES VETERAN DIED

They Are Recorded With Ether Victim—No Autopsies Held—Medical Examiner Ousted.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 21.—Dr. George M. Sutcliffe, who confessed to Governor Templeton that he was a product of the Missouri diploma mill, is the first person ordered under arrest in the Grand Jury investigation here of bogus doctors. The charge is manslaughter and the news of Dr. Sutcliffe's arrest in Albany was awaited here tonight from Connecticut detectives sent to that city. A late report said, however, that some of the Connecticut men had gone on to St Louis in the belief that Sutcliffe had left for that city.

The accusation is based on evidence brought out by Benedict M. Holden, foreman of the Extraordinary Grand Jury, revealing that Albert O. Hoody of Unionville, who called on Dr. Sutcliffe to have a crushed finger treated, was etherized to death on May 22.

Examination this afternoon of the birth and death records in the office of the Town Clerk of Farmington, where the vital statistics of Unionville are kept, disclosed that in the eleven months to date since Dr. Sutcliffe bought the practice of Dr. Edwin M. Ripley, on the installment basis, he has signed six death certificates, besides Hoody's.

No autopsies were performed in any of Dr. Sutcliffe's cases. The official list of cases in which he signed the death certificates follows:

Dec. 27, 1922, Mary G. Saunders, aged 4, bronchitis.

Jan. 15, 1923, Mrs. Emerette C. Belding, aged 82, myocarditis.

Jan. 20, 1923, Case Ellis, dilation of heart and bronchitis.

March 3, 1923, Mrs. Mary H. James, aged 73, pneumonia.

March 29, 1923, Mrs. Elizabeth Wetherbee, aged 68, hemorrhage.

Medical Examiner Is Deposed.

Dr. Ripley, who has been Medical Examiner in his town for many years, was removed tonight by the Hartford County Coroner, J. Gilbert Calhoun, who was the last witness heard today. While awaiting his turn to testify, Dr. Ripley told THE NEW YORK TIMES representative that he had not considered the Hoody death "as a Medical Examiner's case. It might have happened in any doctor's office. It might have happened to any of us."

The Grand Jury adjourned until Monday to enable the State's Attorney's office to catch up on the mass of evidence, which must be sorted so that certain portions may be sent to other counties in Connecticut and other portions to New York and other States.

As soon as State's Attorney Alcorn received word from the foreman of the Grand Jury concerning Sutcliffe's, failure to appear, as he had agreed with both Governor Templeton and Mr. Alcorn, quick action followed. Two deputies in a speedy motor car were dispatched to Albany to join a third Deputy Sheriff who has been shadowing Sutcliffe's movements since he went to visit his friend, M. H. Dubbs, Circulation Manager of The Albany Knickerbocker Press.

To forestall any possible counter-move by Dr. Sutcliffe, State's Attorney Alcorn tonight telegraphed Elias Hoagland, Chief of the St. Louis detectives, that Sutcliffe, who was a St. Louis photog-

LAWYERS CONSIDER NEW PLAN TO KEEP CRAIG OUT OF JAIL

Decision Is Expected Today as to Whether Proposal Is Feasible.

DETAILS NOT REVEALED

Controller Silent on Program—Says He Has Not Changed His Stand.

HIS AID DIES SUDDENLY

Judge Mayer's Friends Deny His Ruling Was Aimed at Free Press or Criticism.

Controller Charles L. Craig may not go to jail after all, despite his statement on Tuesday that he regarded his case closed and that he would not continue his fight against serving the sixty-day sentence imposed upon him by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer. Despite the widespread belief that the decision of the United States Supreme Court, sustaining Judge Mayer, had closed all avenues for further struggles on the part of the Controller, it was learned yesterday that lawyers are studying a plan which may result in an attempt to reopen the case.

The proposed method of procedure had not been considered seriously until yesterday. It gave a glimmer of hope last night to persons who would like to see Mr. Craig continue the conduct of his office in Manhattan instead of in the Essex County Jail in New Jersey. A decision probably will be made sometime today as to whether the plan is feasible enough to make it advisable for Mr. Craig to change his position and make a new fight against serving the jail sentence.

Those who knew about the details of the plan declined to discuss them until a decision is made. Mr. Craig had nothing to say about any aspect of the case except that he stood on the statement he issued Tuesday and that he had not changed his position in any respect.

Sheriff to Be His Keeper.

The Controller has learned that if he does go to jail the place of his imprisonment probably will be the Essex County Jail at Newark rather than the Essex County Penitentiary at Caldwell, N. J. Federal prisoners sentenced to less than six months are sent to the Newark jail. Mr. Craig also learned that the man responsible for his custody while in jail will be the Sheriff of Essex County, who will determine whether the Controller shall have any unusual comforts or privileges while serving his term. As Mr. Craig will try to carry on some of New York's financial affairs from his cell if he goes to jail, this feature of the case will make the Sheriff of Essex County an important though temporary cog in the municipal machine of New York City.

Legal experts said yesterday that any appeals to Judge Mayer to exercise clemency toward Mr. Craig at this stage of the game would be fruitless, for Judge Mayer was powerless under the law to take any action. They said that the mandate of the United States Supreme Court was final and that the District Court had no power to modify the sentence in any way. They quoted a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals last year compelling Federal Judge Howe to carry out an original sentence of six years which he had imposed upon one Joseph Rosenblatt, but which he had reduced to three years after the Appellate Court had confirmed his original judgment.

The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in this case said in part: "When the judgment in a criminal case has been affirmed by an appellate court and a mandate issued directing its execution, the trial court is without power to change the sentence imposed on the defendant, though the term at which it was entered was extended and has not expired."

Suggests a Delay.

Judge Mayer has already received one letter urging him to exercise clemency. This letter was made public yesterday by its writer, Horace G. Knowles of 280 Madison Avenue. After urging Judge Mayer to be magnanimous, the letter says in part:

"The community does not want their Controller to go to jail. They think the ends of justice do not require it. But both the community and the Controller are helpless. They are now entirely at your mercy.

"I am sure you will hesitate to enforce your sentence when by so doing it will deprive the people of this great city of one of their most important, useful and trusted public servants. I am equally certain that you will not eagerly invite the responsibility of creating a vacancy in that office and also for the man that would be appointed to fill the vacancy. Rather than that I believe you would suspend your sentence until the end of Mr. Craig's term of office. There can be no question as to your having the right to suspend the sentence either for a definite period or indefinitely."

Friends of Judge Mayer took issue yesterday with that part of Controller Craig's Tuesday statement which said the power exercised by Judge Mayer in sentencing Craig for contempt of court was tantamount to suppression of proper criticism and a free press, and with statements of other persons who appeared to believe that Craig was found guilty on the charge of criticising Judge Mayer.

It was pointed out that Judge Mayer's position had been misrepresented in this respect, and [illegible] inal decision holding [illegible] were read to show that [illegible] knowledge the right [illegible]

Supposed Copy Turns Out to Be a Titian When Its Coat of Varnish Is Removed

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The National Gallery has made the discovery that the picture of Venus and Adonis, which for long has been considered a mere studio repetition of a famous Titian in the Prado at Madrid, is actually an earlier version of the same picture from the brush of Titian himself. The National Gallery obtained the picture some time ago from the Colonna Palace in Rome. It had suffered serious injury from fire in the upper left hand corner and this began to cause bits of paint to crumble away. This induced Sir Charles Holmes, director of the gallery, to direct that the varnish darkened by age should be stripped off and the damaged parts judiciously touched up.

But as soon as the varnish was removed the picture became transformed. The unmistakable brush work of Titian himself was revealed and it was also discovered by certain overpaintings through which the lower stratum of pigment had forced its way that it had undergone alterations at the time it was painted. It seems that Titian was dissatisfied with the original design. It had dark masses on each side which were too much of the same weight, so he extended his sky in certain places over foliage which has now forced itself up into view. Perhaps Titian felt that his alterations were too extensive to have a good result and he therefore painted the subject over again and produced the famous masterpiece which now hangs in the Prado.

The restoration of the National Gallery Titian is not complete, but it is to be exhibited for a short time in the "naked" state to give students an opportunity of studying it.

Invention Stops Motors at Will From Afar, Says a Paris Editor Who Saw the Tests

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The controversy which has been carried on in the French and British Press as to whether the motors of automobiles and airplanes can be stopped at a distance was answered affirmative this afternoon by and to the satisfaction of the Paris newspaper La Liberté. According to the editor, who, contrary to custom does not sign the article, he has actually seen a French electrical engineer bring to a halt in the streets any car designated by an observer.

The editor a few days ago received a visit from the electrical engineer, he writes, who informed him he had perfected the much discussed and much doubted invention before the Germans had ever undertaken it. To prove his assertion he invited the editor to visit his laboratory.

At the laboratory the electrician, after exhibiting the apparatus, took his visitor to the balcony overlooking the street and asked him to choose an automobile on which to experiment. The visitor indicated an approaching taxi. The inventor made some move in the interior, the editor declares, and the taxi, when it arrived opposite the balcony, came to a sudden halt. The driver descended from his seat, examined the engine, tried to start it, swore some and stood regarding it stupified.

The inventor asked that a second car be designated. Another taxi was selected and, like the first, says the editor, was brought to a dead halt. A large truck was then seen approaching and the visitor asked the engineer if he was able to stop it also. A third move in the interior and the truck slowed suddenly and halted.

At the suggestion of the editor all three cars were released from whatever power was holding them.

Controversy started when an English paper some weeks ago charged that the Germans had perfected an invention for stopping the motors of airplanes and that this was responsible for the unexplained forcing down of eight planes in the same place in Bavaria. The story created a sensation, but as many French scientists were ready to reject it as to receive it. A number of "skeletons" were dug up. These included a story of a French lieutenant who perfected a device of this type which was refused by his superior officer, who did not wish an inferior to receive the credit which came to the creator of such an invention.

found Craig guilty because he had made false statements regarding the B. R. T. receivership.

The following excerpts from the original decision were quoted:

"It may be well to repeat that ordinarily the Court does not concern itself with attacks of a personal nature, nor should it interfere with the fullest exercise of the right to criticize freely. Whether such criticism be just or unjust, the Court cannot descend to controversy."

"A charge, however, either that the Court has denied to public officials any access to original sources of information in respect of properties being administered by the Court, or that it has adopted and practiced a policy of denying such access, is one of the gravest charges which can be made against a court. . . . When, therefore, such a charge is made, one of its subtle purposes is to subject a Court to public condemnation and thereby to intimidate the Judge into adopting a course contrary to what he may deem proper and just."

Denies Books Were Bought.

"The undisputed testimony shows that neither the defendant nor any official or representative of the municipal government ever applied directly or indirectly to Receiver Garrison, Receiver Hedges or Trustee Sheffield to have access to any papers, documents or information of any kind or description, whether they were original sources of information or otherwise, and that the policy of the court as carried out by its officers was to invite access to any information in their possession or under their control."

"The testimony of the defendant himself was to the same effect, viz., that access had never been denied to him, and that he never had made any application of any kind or description for access to original sources of information or any information whatever."

"The statement that the court made orders which precluded any application being made by the authorities of the City of New York to any other court or Judge for any right of examination into the affairs or conditions of the said public utility corporations was shown by the testimony to have no foundation in fact. No such orders were made."

"The statement that the court made orders denying to the authorities of the City of New York the opportunity to ascertain the truth was shown by the testimony to have no foundation in fact. No such order was made."

"The plain meaning of the defendant's language was to charge the court with conduct incompatible with the due administration of justice."

"It is not a wrong with which the Judge concerns himself in a personal sense and for that reason no personal apology is desired nor required."

"The reparation which is within the power of the defendant is promptly to make and file in the office of the Clerk of the Court an unqualified retraction of the false statements respecting the court."

A statement on the Craig case was made yesterday by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield. It said in part:

"That there may be no misunderstanding by my dealing in the matter, I wish to state that in spite of the Controller's peculiarities and ungovernable temper, and the fact that, in my opinion, he, more than anything else, was responsible for Mayor Hylan's recent, almost fatal, illness, I regard no friend more than I the position in which the Controller, now finds himself, and I hope that he will discover some way out of his dilemma. Although I have not been in communication with the Mayor, I know that his big heart harbors no ill-will toward any one. I am quite sure that if the Mayor will be permitted to assist in keeping the Controller out of jail, he will gladly do so."

DEPUTY CONTROLLER HENRY SMITH DIES

Stricken at Home After Telling Office He Would Be Down To-day—Had Worried Over Craig.

Henry Smith, Deputy Controller of New York City, died yesterday morning at his home, 362 Riverside Drive, following an attack of angina pectoris. Mr. Smith's death was hastened by shock and excitement caused by the news of the Supreme Court decision in the Craig case, according to Mr. Smith's associates in the Controller's office. Mr. Smith, who was 60 years old, and had had a heart attack two weeks ago, was a close personal friend of his superior, and took the decision that Mr. Craig would have to go to jail with more distress than the Controller himself.

Mr. Smith was the son of the late Henry Smith of Albany, who was regarded as one of the leading lawyers of his time, and who was District Attorney of Albany County at one time and Speaker of the Assembly in 1870. He was educated in the Albany Law School, and also studied in his father's office in Albany before coming to New York City to practice.

Won Gaynor's Praise.

His first public office was as Park Commissioner, to which post Mayor McClellan appointed him. In recommending him for appointment, the late Mayor Gaynor, then a Supreme Court Justice, wrote: "It is very seldom, or at all events has been very seldom in the past, that a man of his eminent fitness gets an appointment to office."

Mr. Smith had been Deputy Controller since Dec. 23, 1920, at a salary of $8,500 a year, which was to have been increased to $10,000 on Jan. 1. He was a member of the Masons, Lambs, Lotos Club, National Democratic Club, New York Athletic Club, New York County Lawyers Association, Railroad Club, Salmagundi Club, Union League Club, West End Association, New York State Bar Association and the New York Law Institute.

Mr. Smith had a valuable collection of paintings in his home and was regarded as a leading authority on American painters. He was a close friend of the late Frederic Remington, the painter, and used to take long trips with him.

Mr. Craig made the following statement about the death of Mr. Smith:

"I was extremely shocked this morning to learn of Henry Smith's sudden death. Yesterday he complained of feeling much distressed over the decision of the Supreme Court and he appeared to be quite upset. He offered several suggestions. Later in the afternoon he was seized with a heart attack in his office, but out of consideration for me no word was brought to me of it. The first I learned of it was over the telephone this morning soon after his death.

Mourns Loss of Friend.

"The city is deprived of the service of an official of high standing and integrity in the loss of Mr. Smith. His whole training from boyhood up fitted him for distinguished position. I was very glad to have him associated with me, because he was an old friend in whom I had great confidence.

"He was an able and conscientious representative of the department. I regret exceedingly losing a friend and an associate, and my heartfelt sympathy goes to his wife and family."

Dr. H. D. McKesson of 345 West End Avenue, Mr. Smith's family physician, who was with Mr. Smith when he died, said:

"Mr. Smith was very much worried over the probability of Controller Craig going to jail. His death was caused by angina pectoris. Mr. Smith had a slight attack two weeks ago and I warned him then to take a rest and have an X-ray made. He had another bad attack last night, but I relieved that, and he seemed to have spent a comfortable night when I first saw him this morning. He seemed all right, but complained that the pain was getting more severe, and in a few minutes he died in my presence.

"Mr. Smith said that he didn't have time to take care and himself because of the pressure of business at his office. In fact, he insisted last night upon going to the office today, but I told him it was absolutely out of the question. Before I reached his home this morning, he telephoned his office that he would be down tomorrow. When I advised against it, he said he simply had to be there."

The following tribute to Mr. Smith was paid by Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert:

"I was deeply grieved to learn of the sudden death of Henry Smith, Deputy Controller of the City of New York. For many years it has been my good fortune to know him and admire him personally, professionally and as a fellow-public servant.

"Always a lover of the great outdoors and alive to the beauties of nature, he brought to the administration of the Park Board an esthetic viewpoint of exceptional value to this city.

"A man of distinguished appearance, with evidences of culture, refinement and poise suggesting the aristocrat, he was withal a most democratic man of uniform courtesy, unobtrusive in the expression of his opinions, firm but conciliatory, conservative but progressive.

"I feel a deep sense of personal loss in his passing and the City of New York is deprived of an able servant, mild but masterly in his every official act."

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, said:

"The people of the City of New York have sustained a very heavy loss in the death of Henry Smith. For the greater part of his life his great talent and ability had been engaged in municipal activities. As the President of the Park Board he made an enviable reputation. As the First Deputy Controller he brought to that office a splendid legal mind, great executive ability and a common sense understanding of the proper functioning of the Finance Department. His sudden and untimely death will be felt not only in the Finance Department but generally throughout the city. I extend my sincere condolence to the family of Henry Smith."

Mr. Smith is survived by his widow and a son, Charles P. Smith, who is an attorney in the office of Clarence J. Shearn.

LUNN ATTACKS RULING SENDING CRAIG TO JAIL

Lieutenant Governor Tells Sphinx Club Sentence Is an 'Abominable Outrage.'

At a dinner of the Sphinx Club at the Waldorf last night Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn said of the case of Controller Craig:

"In speaking to newspaper publishers, I feel that it is specially pertinent to make reference to an astounding anomaly. Within a few days Controller Craig of the greatest city in our fair land and one of the greatest cities in the world, must carry on his work as best he can from a penitentiary situated in another State. I am not a lawyer, but I am an American citizen believing intensively in the splendid institutions of this great nation. Respect for our courts must ever be preserved, but this does not imply and never has implied that there must be no criticism of official actions. When criticism dies, tyranny is born. Controller Craig has committed no crime, he rests under no charge of wrong-doing in the affairs of his important office. His offense, if you would call it an offense, which I do not, consists in a criticism passed regarding the method pursued in a Federal receivership.

"The city had an investment of some $110,000,000 in the B. R. T. traction lines. The lines were operated under contract with the City of New York. The counsel of the B. R. T. was appointed receiver. Controller Craig requested representation in the receivership, his work in connection therewith to be without pay. This was denied. As chief fiscal officer of the city, the Controller made a criticism in a letter written to Mr. Nixon. That was the extent of the so-called offense.

"It is a very serious thing, gentlemen, when judicial authority can reach down and forcibly take the Controller of the great city and lock him in jail for expressing an opinion. If freedom of utterance of a city official sincerely endeavoring to protect the interests of the great metropolis, whether we agree or not, is to be forbidden, it will not be long until some easily offended judicial officer may jail editors for expression of opinion in the way of legitimate criticism.

"To my humble way of thinking, the committing of Controller Craig to a New Jersey penitentiary is an abominable outrage. Must New York City sit supinely by in judicially enforced silence when millions of dollars of the people's money is involved? Where courts are respectable they need have no fear but that the utmost respect will be shown them.

"Putting a city official in jail does not weaken his fundamental right and duty to speak forth fearlessly, as he sees it, in behalf of the people who elected him to office.

"A great good may come out of this, I hope so at least, and that is, that the New York State Legislature will grant to this great city power to conduct its own affairs in the way of traction matters, which are now in such a deplorable mess."

LADD BACKS FORD OFFER.

Senator for Muscle Shoals Action—Quotes Baruch's Support.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A statement urging the acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals (Ala.) power and fertilizer project was issued today by Senator Ladd, Republican, of North Dakota, who quoted from a recent letter by Bernard M. Baruch, former Chairman of the War Industries Board, on the Ford offer. Senator Ladd said that he had sought Mr. Baruch's opinion since the sale of the Gorgas power plant had changed the basis of Mr. Ford's offer.

"Mr. Baruch believes in the development of Muscle Shoals as a great industrial plant for the manufacture of nitrogen compounds and fertilizers for use in agriculture," said Senator Ladd. "My own studies have led me to the same conclusion and my investigations made during the past Summer in Germany and Norway only the more strongly confirm by belief in the possibilities of the great undertaking at Muscle Shoals for the manufacture of commercial fertilizers.

"If there were any other offer more favorable than Mr. Ford's, I would not hesitate to change, but Mr. Ford's offer is the only one that proposes the utilization of this great plant as had been intended in the interests of agriculture and to be held in reserve as a great national asset in case of future wars."

In his letter to Senator Ladd, Mr. Baruch said that personalities should not be considered in disposing of Muscle Shoals and that the merits of the Ford offer were fundamental.

ZIONIST GIFT TO BALFOUR.

Statue a Token of Gratitude for His Aid to Palestine Homeland.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Earl of Balfour today was the recipient of a miniature statue, sculptured by Louis Rosenthal of Baltimore at the direction of the Zionists of America, as a token of appreciation for Earl Balfour's authorship of the British Government's declaration undertaking to aid in the establishment of a Jewish national homeland in Palestine.

The presentation was made by Dr. Chaim Weizman, President of the World's Zionist Organization, and several leading English Zionists.

Dr. Weizman, after expressing the gratitude of the Zionists of America to Earl Balfour, said he hoped Earl Balfour would open the Hebrew University of Jerusalem next June.

Earl Balfour delivered an address of appreciation for the gift, during which he said he hardly had done enough to deserve all that had been said of him.

The statuette, which is of gold and silver, is eleven inches high. It is in the form of a memorial shaft, surmounted by a tiny statute of Balfour.

On the shaft are two tablets, one in English bearing the inscription, "To Arthur James Balfour from the Jews of the United States of America," and the other in Hebrew: "They shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Above the quotation are the draped flags of the United States and Great Britain and the Zionist flag.

SANDBAG DRUGGIST, ROB HIM AND FLEE

Thugs Leave Badly Injured Man 67 Years Old Lying on Brooklyn Sidewalk.

ANOTHER HOLD-UP FOILED

Hoboken Robbers in Automobile Take $3,600 Payroll From a Girl and Her Escort.

William J. Kline, 67 years old, locked his drugstore at 193 Park Avenue, Brooklyn, last night and started home with the day's receipts, $210, in his pocket. He was walking through Vanderbilt Avenue when in front of 88, three young men came up behind him.

As the elderly druggist turned to see who was approaching, one of the trio struck him on the head with a sandbag. He fell without a sound. The three rifled his pockets, left him lying, bleeding, on the sidewalk and ran.

Several persons who saw the hold-up shouted at the robbers to stop or cried for the police, but the three only ran the faster and no policeman appeared. One witness, after running two blocks, came upon a policeman and hurried back with him. An ambulance was called from Cumberland Street Hospital.

Mr. Kline expressed a wish to go to his home at No. 124 Willoughby Avenue. He was taken thither, his head severely cut and lacerated. When Dr. Joseph L. McGoldrick was called he found Mr. Kline in such bad condition he took him in an automobile to Holy Family Hospital.

Detectives of the Classon avenue station arrested three suspects, but released them again.

The hold-up in Brooklyn marred a day in which only one hold-up had been attempted in all New York and that one had been frustrated with two arrests. But Hoboken, possibly because the New York department had decreed the exodus of all known thugs and gunmen, suffered.

In that city four robbers held up a man and a girl and took a payroll of $3,600. Both the Hoboken and New York police believe the hold-up men were New Yorkers, an automobile with a New York license having been used by them.

The victims were Clarence J. Fraissinet, Treasurer, and Miss Mary Orenge, clerk of the Burton Machinery Company, at Grand and Eleventh Streets Hoboken. In an automobile they had driven to the Hoboken Trust Company at Washington and Fourteenth Streets and drawn the payroll amount, $3,600. Miss Orenge placed the money in a metal box and stepped into the automobile, driven by Fraissinet.

The two were stepping into the doorway of their place when a man at the door called, "Wait a minute." Miss Orenge turned. A revolver was pointed at her chest. The man with the revolver, accompanied by another robber, took the metal box from the girl, leaped into an automobile at the curb, in which two other men were waiting, and the gang sped away.

Fraissinet and Miss Orenge said the two men who held them up were about 24 years old and of dark complexion. They wore caps drawn over their eyes. Neither of the plant employes carried a pistol.

The automobile was found abandoned last night at Third and Monroe Streets. The car had been stolen from Angelo Palardino of 242 East Fortieth Street, New York City, on Nov. 19.

Three Indicted in Hold-up.

Within twenty-four hours after the hold-up of two messengers of Markel Brothers, private bankers of 92 Canal Street, in a basement at 141 Canal Street, the Grand Jury yesterday indicted three men in the crime. One of them was Jacob Schaefer, 31, of 153 Stanton Street, a bank messenger. He was alleged to have concocted the plot and to have planned a night raid on the bank. The others indicted were Joseph Hirsch, 20, of the same address, and Jacob Shapiro, 26, of 150 Clinton Street. The complaint of Abraham Greenberg, one of the bank messengers, Shapiro was alleged to have been caught by Patrolman John Foley while pointing a revolver at the messengers and demanding the $6,200 in money and checks they were carrying.

General Sessions Judge Mulqueen held the three indicted men in $5,000 bail each for pleading today. Assistant District Attorney Edwin B. McGuire told the court similar high bail would be asked in all hold-up cases.

The lone hold-up case of the day in New York was at the Rand School Building, 7 East Fifteenth Street, when two men demanded money of John Thaler, an officer of the United Needleworkers Union, as he was entering the building to attend a meeting of the organization. Thaler ran into the place, calling for help. Several men pounced on the robbers, who had followed him. The prisoners said they were Charles Samaturra, 21, a chauffeur, of 232 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, and Emil Dudek, 18, of 162 East Thirteenth Street, Manhattan.

Harry Grappel, 22, of 2,342 Beverly Road, Brooklyn, manager of a butchers' shop in Queens, was arrested yesterday on a charge of attempting to bribe Charles Leah, a chauffeur, of 218 West 146th Street, to drop robbery charges against two prisoners, Salvatore Magno and William Timers, who were arrested the night of Nov. 1. Leah was forced to enter a hallway in Fifteenth Street near First Avenue that night and was robbed of $48 and a gold watch. When the robbers started away in his taxicab he called to Sergeant Kelly and Patrolman Beckman, passing in a police automobile. They caught the fugitives. Leah informed the District Attorney's office he had been offered money by Grappel to withdraw the charge.

Held as Jewel Thief.

Samuel Goldfarb, 23, of 331 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested in a hallway at 106 Fulton Street, Manhattan, on a charge of grand larceny made by Albert Lane, a jeweler of 200 Broadway. Lane reported two weeks ago that on two successive days a messenger entering the building in Fulton Street was robbed of packages, one containing a diamond ring worth $1,000 and the other a brooch valued at the same amount. Detectives Kalbfleisch, Fleming and Fay of the Old Slip police station observed Goldfarb checking his coat at a cigar stand in the building every day and then stationing himself in the doorway. When arrested yesterday he said he had found the ring and brooch and that he sold them for $810. The ring was recovered.

Benjamin Warner, 19, a shipping clerk, of 119 East 112th Street, and Elias Sandowsky, 27, a peddler, of 940 Kennedy Avenue, the Bronx, went to the loft of Abraham Weinrich at 115 East Twenty-third Street and asked for jobs. They were told to wait in the place. An employe saw them leave. A bolt of silk valued at $150 was noticed by the employe under the arm of one of them. Several men seized the pair and held them for the arrival of the police.

Because there was no evidence that they owned a revolver and stiletto found in an automobile in which they were arrested, Magistrate McAndrews in Jefferson Market Court dismissed charges of violating the Sullivan Law against Louis Russi of 124 West Thirty-ninth Street, Michael Ferrari of 338 Eighth Avenue, Leo Troskin of 16 East Seventh Street, Michael Ruggiero of 357 West Twenty-fifth Street, and Joseph Dentro of 243 West Twenty-ninth Street. Charges of grand larceny were dropped when they proved they had the automobile with the owner's permission.

Boy, 15, Caught in Stolen Auto.

Joseph Schramek, 15, of Winfield, Queens, was held for sentence Nov. 30 by Justice Doyle in Children's Court, Jamaica, after he had been caught speeding in an automobile which he admitted he had stolen from Isidore Kaplaw of 53 Twelfth Avenue, Brooklyn. The boy had a .32 caliber pistol and a check for $2,500, drawn to the order of G. C. Boyce, superintendent of the Oswego Shade Cloth Company of 250 Fifth Avenue, New York.

In Jamaica Court Michael Byron of Richmond Hill was held for trial in Special Sessions for stealing the automobile of Jeff Little of 97 Hardenbrook Avenue, Jamaica, and for having a blackjack.

Four men arrested yesterday morning in an automobile at Third Avenue and 145th Street, the Bronx, were held by Magistrate Corrigan in Morrisania Court in $5,000 bail each for examination tomorrow on the charge that last Sunday they held up Michael Cronman in the hallway of his home at 768 Jennings Street, the Bronx, and robbed him of valuable papers.

The prisoners said they were Michael Valenti, 19 years old; Joseph Palliazi, 20; Jack Jackelone, 21, and Ernest Gentile, 19, all of Rochester, N. Y. Against Valenti an additional charge of having a loaded revolver was placed and for this he was held in $1,000 bail for trial in General Sessions. He said he picked up the weapon in a roadway and placed it in the car. The suspicious conduct of the four men caused Patrolman Drescher of the Alexander Avenue police station to take them into custody.

Thomas Harrison of Chicago and Mills Hotel No. 3, this city, who was arrested last Saturday on a charge of assaulting and robbing Max Levine, a jeweler of 2,745 Eighth Avenue, was held yesterday in Washington Heights Court by Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman in $50,000 bail for action by the Grand Jury.

The Court took occasion to compliment Detective Edward Shields, who arrested Harrison, for his quick action and told him that it would be his policy to hold bandits and thugs in the highest bail possible.

Further Citizen Aid Proposed.

Appointment of civilian captains and lieutenants to aid the regular and reserve police forces in patrolling the city was proposed yesterday by the Co-operative Board of Safety of the City of New York, of which Justice John R. Davies of the Municipal Court is President. The plan will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen.

$50,000 BAIL FOR SUSPECTS.

Four Men Arrested in Jersey Held in Silk Robbery Inquiry.

Four men arrested last Thursday in an expensively furnished cottage at 322 Palisade Avenue, Cliffside, N. J., were placed under $50,000 bail each last night by County Judge William Seufert at Hackensack after their counsel had asked that bail be fixed.

The men have been in the Bergen County Jail since their arrest charged with being fugitives from justice. Detectives investigating loft robberies in Manhattan had requested the men be held.

The men are John Diamond of 322 Palisade Avenue, Cliffside, and Peter Burgess of 107 Eighth Avenue, Frank Montforte of 411 East Ninth Street and Salvadore Arcideace of 218 Sixth Street, Manhattan.

FATHER AND SON HELD FOR KIDNAPPING PLOT

They Are Arrested in Chicago as They Wait for Man They Had Previously Taken Prisoner.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Everett P. Leonard, President of the Serviette Company of Chattanooga, Tenn., and his 18-year-old son, Willard, who are alleged to have kidnapped Roger Naylor, President of the Hanger Products Company, 302 South La Salle Street, and to have held him a prisoner in their home at Chattanooga for twenty-six days before he escaped, were arrested near the Board of Trade late today while waiting with guns, ammunition and handcuffs, it is alleged, to kidnap him a second time or to kill him.

Warned by a telegram from Chattanooga that the father and son were on their way to Chicago again with the avowed intention of killing him, Naylor notified the Detective Bureau and the two were captured across the street from his office. Leonard gives as his reason for his visit an attempt to collect $9,000 which he contends Naylor owes him.

Naylor's story of how he had been held a handcuffed prisoner in his loop office for nearly a whole day by the father and son while he was forced to telephone business acquaintances and friends excuses for his enforced absence from the city, and how he was imprisoned in Chattanooga until he signed certain business contracts and agreements startled even the police.

Naylor happened to look out of his office window late today and recognized the two standing across the street. Detective Sergeants Fruemuth and Weber, who had been sent to his office, hurried across the street and grabbed them.

BOYS WAR ON GAMBLING.

Volunteers Aid Police Crusade Against "Punch Boards."

East side boys organized themselves voluntarily yesterday as vigilantes against gambling among minors in general, and, in particular, the popular "punch boards." The police are conducting a city-wide crusade against this new gambling evil which, they say, has gripped thousands of schoolchildren. Yesterday the boys along Avenues A, B and C assisted the police in ridding the district from East Fourteenth Street to Manhattan Bridge of these devices.

The Friends of Boys, 80 East Tenth Street, under whose auspices the movement was fostered, reported that the youthful minute men had brought in more than 100 of the offending boards up to last night. The boys said they had taken the boards from other lads, mostly younger, either by persuasion or force.

The punch board was described as a rectangular cardboard perforated with from 100 to 250 sealed holes, chances being sold on the holes. If the hole pierced the money in a metal box and stepped into the automobile, driven by Fraissinet.

The two were stepping into the doorway of their place when a man at the door called, "Wait a minute." Miss Orenge turned. A revolver was pointed at her chest. The man with the revolver, accompanied by another robber, took the metal box from the girl, leaped into an automobile at the curb, in which two other men were waiting, and the gang sped away.

Fraissinet and Miss Orenge said the two men who held them up were about 24 years old and of dark complexion. They wore caps drawn over their eyes. Neither of the plant employes carried a pistol.

The automobile was found abandoned last night at Third and Monroe Streets. The car had been stolen from Angelo Palardino of 242 East Fortieth Street, New York City, on Nov. 19.

Three Indicted in Hold-up.

Within twenty-four hours after the hold-up of two messengers of Markel Brothers, private bankers of 92 Canal Street, in a basement at 141 Canal Street, the Grand Jury yesterday indicted three men in the crime. One of them was Jacob Schaefer, 31, of 153 Stanton Street, a bank messenger. He was alleged to have concocted the plot and to have planned a night raid on the bank. The others indicted were Joseph Hirsch, 20, of the same address, and Jacob Shapiro, 26, of 150 Clinton Street. The complaint of Abraham Greenberg, one of the bank messengers, Shapiro was alleged to have been caught by Patrolman John Foley while pointing a revolver at the messengers and demanding the $6,200 in money and checks they were carrying.

General Sessions Judge Mulqueen held the three indicted men in $5,000 bail each for pleading today. Assistant District Attorney Edwin B. McGuire told the court similar high bail would be asked in all hold-up cases.

The lone hold-up case of the day in New York was at the Rand School Building, 7 East Fifteenth Street, when two men demanded money of John Thaler, an officer of the United Needleworkers Union, as he was entering the building to attend a meeting of the organization. Thaler ran into the place, calling for help. Several men pounced on the robbers, who had followed him. The prisoners said they were Charles Samaturra, 21, a chauffeur, of 232 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, and Emil Dudek, 18, of 162 East Thirteenth Street, Manhattan.

Harry Grappel, 22, of 2,342 Beverly Road, Brooklyn, manager of a butchers' shop in Queens, was arrested yesterday on a charge of attempting to bribe Charles Leah, a chauffeur, of 218 West 146th Street, to drop robbery charges against two prisoners, Salvatore Magno and William Timers, who were arrested the night of Nov. 1. Leah was forced to enter a hallway in Fifteenth Street near First Avenue that night and was robbed of $48 and a gold watch. When the robbers started away in his taxicab he called to Sergeant Kelly and Patrolman Beckman, passing in a police automobile. They caught the fugitives. Leah informed the District Attorney's office he had been offered money by Grappel to withdraw the charge.

Held as Jewel Thief.

Samuel Goldfarb, 23, of 331 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested in a hallway at 106 Fulton Street, Manhattan, on a charge of grand larceny made by Albert Lane, a jeweler of 200 Broadway. Lane reported two weeks ago that on two successive days a messenger entering the building in Fulton Street was robbed of packages, one containing a diamond ring worth $1,000 and the other a brooch valued at the same amount. Detectives Kalbfleisch, Fleming and Fay of the Old Slip police station observed Goldfarb checking his coat at a cigar stand in the building every day and then stationing himself in the doorway. When arrested yesterday he said he had found the ring and brooch and that he sold them for $810. The ring was recovered.

Benjamin Warner, 19, a shipping clerk, of 119 East 112th Street, and Elias Sandowsky, 27, a peddler, of 940 Kennedy Avenue, the Bronx, went to the loft of Abraham Weinrich at 115 East Twenty-third Street and asked for jobs. They were told to wait in the place. An employe saw them leave. A bolt of silk valued at $150 was noticed by the employe under the arm of one of them. Several men seized the pair and held them for the arrival of the police.

Because there was no evidence that they owned a revolver and stiletto found in an automobile in which they were arrested, Magistrate McAndrews in Jefferson Market Court dismissed charges of violating the Sullivan Law against Louis Russi of 124 West Thirty-ninth Street, Michael Ferrari of 338 Eighth Avenue, Leo Troskin of 16 East Seventh Street, Michael Ruggiero of 357 West Twenty-fifth Street, and Joseph Dentro of 243 West Twenty-ninth Street. Charges of grand larceny were dropped when they proved they had the automobile with the owner's permission.

Boy, 15, Caught in Stolen Auto.

Joseph Schramek, 15, of Winfield, Queens, was held for sentence Nov. 30 by Justice Doyle in Children's Court, Jamaica, after he had been caught speeding in an automobile which he admitted he had stolen from Isidore Kaplaw of 53 Twelfth Avenue, Brooklyn. The boy had a .32 caliber pistol and a check for $2,500, drawn to the order of G. C. Boyce, superintendent of the

BLACKS DETECTIVE'S EYE.

Broker Hall Will Have to Explain Today in Yorkville Court.

Edward T Willner a private detective, of 58 East 107th Street, went to serve a subpoena on Clinton M. Hall, 48 years old, a broker living at 150 East Fifty-second Street, last night, summoning him to appear in a civil suit brought by his wife. A woman opened the door and said that Hall was not at home. Willner noticed a man in the hall and asked him if he were not Hall. The man, according to Willner, struck him in the right eye.

Willner went to the East Fifty-first Street police station and Patrolman Thomas McDonald was dispatched to bring Hall to the station house where Willner lodged a charge of assault against him. Lieutenant Hart was about to order Hall to a cell when Louis Bamberger, who had been summoned from the Yale Club, appeared at the station house and left $500 as security for Hall's appearance in Yorkville Court this morning.

BANDITS GET INHERITANCE.

Rob Two Peoria Men of $10,000, Their Share of Estate.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 21.—Three armed bandits late tonight held up and robbed two young men of $10,000 in cash. The victims had obtained the money in the afternoon from a Peoria bank as their share of an estate.

SON SLAIN AT ONCE, SAYS MRS. PICKELNY

Knows From Way She Tied Shoelaces, Declares Mother of Kidnapped Child.

150,000 SEE THE FUNERAL

Police Have Difficult Time Handling Crowd—Eight Men Questioned and Released.

Shortly before the body of 4½-year-old Irving Pickelny was placed in a grave at Mount Hebron Cemetery, in Flushing, yesterday forenoon Mrs. Julia Pickelny, the mother, declared to detectives that she was positive the boy was killed immediately after he disappeared from their home at 358 Grand Street on the afternoon of Oct. 26, and had not been secreted in some neighboring tenement for several days before he was smothered by the hand of his kidnapper.

The police had been inclined to the theory that the boy was slain only twelve days ago and that the body was removed soon after to the cellar of the tenement of 71 Suffolk Street, where it was found by repair men from a gas company Tuesday morning. Mrs. Pickelny dispelled that belief, however, by declaring that the knots which she used in lacing the child's shoes on the morning of his disappearance, as well as the general arrangement of his clothing, had not been disturbed and that it would have been impossible for anybody to remove and replace his clothes so that she could not detect the fact immediately.

Mrs. Pickelny's insistence on this point caused both Captain Willemse, head of the detectives on the case, and Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, to accept the theory that the boy was murdered within a few hours of the time he was last seen alive in the hallway of the tenement home of his grand-aunt, a few blocks from his own home.

The funeral of the slain boy was attended by one of the most unusual scenes ever witnessed on the lower east side. The police estimated that fully 150,000 persons lined the streets and gathered in front of the tenement where the body was found, as well as in front of the Pickelny home. More than 15,000 had gathered at the Grand Street address before the arrival of the hearse bearing the body from the Morgue in East Twenty-ninth Street, and 150 policemen and detectives under Inspector Coleman and Captain McKenzie had their hands full maintaining order.

A few minutes before the funeral cortege came in sight the police were forced to clear the block in front of the Pickelny home, but more than 1,000 women and children managed to get back to the block by climbing over roofs from neighboring tenements. Twice as many more gathered in windows and on fire escapes as the funeral ceremony conducted beside the hearse by Rabbi I. L. Epstein, a cousin of the mother of the slain boy, and Cantor S. Scholsohn.

As the cantor chanted prayers for the murdered boy hundreds of women in the crowd in each end of the block became hysterical. Rabbi Epstein moved the emotions of the crowd to a higher pitch when in an address he called on them to aid the police in finding the slayer. All traffic on the thoroughfare had been halted and it required the utmost efforts of the policemen and detectives to clear a path for the funeral cortège.

With the start of the procession for the cemetery dozens of neighbors of the Pickelnys went to the police station and told of seeing mysterious persons in the vicinity on the day of the kidnapping, but little real evidence was received.

The agitated state of the people in the vicinity of the Pickelny home was illustrated last night when Jacob Morowitz, 50 years old, of 1155 Broome Street, was threatened by a crowd of 300 men and women at Suffolk and Rivington Street because a boy, pointing to him, shouted: "That's the man!" Several men were handling him roughly when Detective Sergeant Whalen, in response to a telephone call to the station, hurried in an automobile and rescued him. Whalen took him to the station, where Morowitz satisfied Captain Willemse that he was in possession of no information which might aid the police in their hunt for the boy's slayer. The crowd then followed, however, and the police had to let Morowitz out through a rear door.

Attention was centred on Morowitz because of the peculiar appearance of his beard. He explained that a few minutes before he started to shave off his beard, but the razor was dull and he went to the street in search of a store to buy a new one. The boy noticed the uneven strands hanging from each side of his face and set up the alarm which brought the crowd.

In a dragnet which the police spread throughout the lower east side during the day eight men were brought to the station and questioned by Captain Willemse, but all of them were permitted to leave after they had satisfied him that they could not furnish a lead to the solution of the crime.

Captain Willemse admitted late in the afternoon that he had received information from a source he refused to reveal that a prisoner in the Raymond Street Jail in Brooklyn might know something about the killing of the boy. He said that this man was arrested about a week ago and that he, in some respects, answered the description of a man seen in the vicinity of the Pickelny home on the forenoon of the boy's disappearance. He added that detectives reached the jail too late to question the man but that they would interrogate him this morning. Captain Willemse admitted that he did not consider the lead of importance, but explained that it would be thoroughly investigated.

Victor Abrams, 26 years old, who said he was a farm hand at Ellenville, N. Y., was sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse by Magistrate Oberwager in the Essex Market Court when he was arraigned for creating a disturbance in the crowd at the funeral. Detectives Nammack of the Clinton Street Station told the Court that the man had been drinking.

LAWSON'S ESTATE SOLD.

Hotel Men Pay Over $100,000 for Dreamwold—Will Move Tomb.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—One more episode in the career of Thomas W. Lawson, whose rise to fortune and daring financial operations repeatedly rocked Wall Street, was closed today with the passing of Dreamwold Hall, his estate at Egypt, into the hands of a group of hotel men and bankers.

It was at Dreamwold that Lawson lived for a score of Summers while he planned many of the campaigns that startled the financial world. It was in The Nest at Dreamwold, too, that Lawson wrote his two famous books, "Friday, the Thirteenth," and "Frenzied Finance."

On Dreamwold Hall and The Nest, a smaller cottage, and the surrounding forty-two acres of estate Lawson lavished millions, and it was at Dreamwold that Mrs. Lawson was buried in a specially prepared granite tomb. The purchasers said that the tomb would be removed and the sarcophagus would be placed in a Boston cemetery.

It was announced that the sale price was "over $100,000," and that the property would be converted into an inn and country club.

FIRE DAMAGES THE THALIA.

Elevated and Surface Traffic Is Blocked by Blaze in the Bowery.

Part of the foyer and balcony stairway of the old Thalia Theatre, 46 Bowery, one of the landmarks of the city, was badly damaged early yesterday by fire which started in a wall of the lobby and ate its way up the stairway to the third balcony. Several mural paintings and statuettes in the lobby were destroyed. To get at the fire the firemen chopped holes in the walls. The flames did not reach the auditorium and stage.

Hose lines stretched across the Bowery tied up surface car lines for about an hour. Southbound passengers were forced to leave the surface cars at Canal Street and walk a block to Bayard Street, whence a shuttle service was run to City Hall. The service on the Third Avenue elevated was tied up for about fifteen minutes. As it appeared for a time that the firemen might have to fight the blaze from the elevated structure, Deputy Chief Walsh ordered the power shut off on the southbound track as a precautionary measure. The firemen were able to extinguish the fire, however, without using the elevated structure.

The Thalia Theatre is one of the oldest in the city and has one of the largest stages. Many stage celebrities began their careers there. It is now used as an Italian vaudeville theatre.

Man Found Guilty of Murder.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Nov. 21.—John Emiletta of Reading, Pa., was found guilty of murder in the first degree this afternoon by a jury in the Suffolk County Court here. Emiletta was charged with participation in the murder of Lee Jong, a Chinese laundryman, at Port Jefferson last Summer. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

THEATRES DEFEND BOOST IN PRICES

Indignation of Army and Navy Cadets Over Profiteering Fails to Stir Managers.

HOTEL RATES NOT RAISED

In Fact, City's Hostelries Are Commended for Fair Treatment of Football Visitors.

Indignation of army and navy officers and cadets at their respective training academies over the advanced prices charged by many New York theatres on the occasion of the Army-Navy football game next Saturday failed to move the theatre proprietors yesterday.

Despite the threat that New York never will see another contest between West Point and Annapolis prices at many box offices for Saturday night remained 50 cents to $2 more than normal. If a single attraction heeded the plaint of the service men that it was unfair to add an extra tariff to their amusements after they went to the expense of bringing their relatives and friends to New York, that attraction did not make public the fact that it had put box office prices back to normal.

The impression in the theatre district was that the proprietors of individual plays had gauged the public demand for their wares on next Saturday night and had calmly stuck on whatever they thought they could get. This course was defended, it being pointed out that eleven of the twenty-five shows that had raised rates were musical comedies which "depend on special prices on special occasions to make out."

One manager blamed the hotels for setting the example, but Fred A. Muschenheim, President of the Hotel Men's Association, denied that there had been any rise in rates for the occasion, declaring that on the contrary a number of hotels were giving the usual reductions to army and navy men here for the game.

On this phase of the discussion Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, Commandant at West Point, said:

"No investigation has been instigated by the authorities of West Point nor is one to be instigated. We always have felt that the treatment accorded to the people in the service by New York hotels has not only been above reproach, but has been most fair in every way. There was an investigation concerning the raising rates by the theatres for the night of the Army-Navy game, and the result of this investigation was published in the morning edition of Wednesday's papers. For West Point we not only have found that no increase in hotel rates was made, but there always have been reduced rates in caring for the football team and the same system is in vogue this year."

General Sladen added that reports that his attention had first been drawn to the theatre situation by Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, in command at Annapolis, were erroneous, explaining that it was another naval officer who first brought to his notice the advance in the prices of tickets.

European Politicians Say Our Absence From the Transport Parley May Embarrass Us.

LIKELY TO AFFECT SHIPPING

And Non-Concurrence Here Might Bring Reprisals—Forty Nations Confer Without Us.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Concerned as they are over their own elections, European politicians appear to be showing no little interest in American developments, with an eye to possible changes in the United States foreign policy which may come out of next year's Presidential race.

Of course, this means that Europe is watching Americans' attitude to the League of Nations, not only as it concerns the World Court, but also as it concerns the technical activities of the League.

It is noted here that while Secretary Hughes certainly has been showing no love for the League, he even shows a marked aversion, maintaining entire independence toward its activities. It appears to European statesmen with whom I have talked, that as the Washington Administration evidently tries to sit on the fence with regard to the World Court proposal of President Harding, Secretary Hughes is endeavoring to maintain the same stability with regard to other League matters.

This attitude has been brought into sharp relief by the Transport Conference now in progress in Geneva, where, under the League auspices, representatives of forty nations are meeting to try to codify international rules regulating transport on land and the use of maritime ports. America was invited with League members the latter part of last June, it being considered by League officials that a country which sold $3,000,000,000 worth of goods to Europe annually, and a great shipping nation, would be interested in such international regulations.

Consider Our Interests Involved.

Certain American interests, and especially American members of the International Chamber of Commerce, which has an American President, and who recommended many rules for the Geneva conference, wished Washington to take part.

July passed, August passed, September and October, too, and no reply came from Washington. League officials made inquiries of the State Department—indirectly, naturally—and three days before the conference opened on Friday last an official note received by Secretary General Drummond from Mr. Hughes stated that it was "impracticable" for the United States to take part.

On the same day the League's Secretariat received a "private" letter, through diplomatic channels, asking whether America might send unofficial observers. An affirmative reply was given, and on the morning the conference opened Consul Haskell at Geneva was notified to observe for America. Something was said about experts, but none had arrived up to yesterday.

Mr. Haskell called at the Secretariat three hours before the opening of the conference to find out what it was about and obtain information to enable him to sit by the transport Ministers and experts of other nations. Mr. Haskell may be a good reporter of the meetings, but it is not of record that he is an expert on transport and shipping, having been a member of the South Carolina Legislature prior to his appointment to the Consular Service.

To the recent customs conference Mr. Hughes refused to send official delegates, but sent some American experts to act as observers. Now, these American experts were real experts. They knew about the business in hand, but they had instructions to express no opinion, "on the ground that it might be misinterpreted," and so, though able to give valuable advice, the American delegates were nevertheless tongue-tied.

This system differs from that followed by America with respect to the recent opium conference, where an official delegation, headed by Representative Porter, attended and succeeded in having the American program adopted.

May Embarrass Our Shipping.

It is contended that the American Government doesn't wish to disassociate itself entirely from League activities, but it is held that its recent method of participation is not very effective. League leaders further contend that in these technical activities the League article is not involved and politics not at stake, and therefore America could, for instance, propose regulations affecting her ports in relation to other ports without imperilling either her sovereignty or the political prospects of the Republican party.

But while League leaders are concerned in the immediate aspects of the case, politicians over here take full note of Washington's attitude and are inclined to consider it of some importance that Mr. Hughes sees fit to have a look in at the window, even if, as they see it, he doesn't like to come in the front door.

With respect to the maritime projects now on the table at Geneva, they may become interesting to the American merchant marine. The basis on which the League of Nations is working is absolute equality of treatment on all ships and in all ports of the signatories of the convention. This would obviously prevent any signatory from giving special privileges in its ports to its own ships, as some Americans wish their Government to do. It might well be said that America, not being a signatory, would not be bound, yet at the same time such an agreement between other great shipping nations might cause friction with the United States, and certainly it would offer a strong legal basis for attempted reprisals against American ships in case of disputes.

The Norwegians and Italians have taken exception to the proposal and say they will refuse to give up the right to extend special treatment to their own ships, and a heated debate is going on As yet, Consul Haskell hasn't presented the American view.

Washington Sees No Interest Involved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Officials here attach no significance to the fact that the United States is not represented at the Transport Conference in Geneva under the auspices of the League of Nations.

It was never the intention of the American Government that there should be "official" representation at the conference, but the State Department expects the American Consul at Geneva to "listen in" and keep this Government informed concerning any aspect of the work of the conference in which we might be interested.

So far as the State Department is aware there is no American demand that this country be represented even by unofficial observers. The work of the conference is not regarded by official Washington as involving matters of direct interest to this country.

CITES ARMS PARLEY AS JUSTIFYING LEAGUE

Sir Robert Borden Says It Taught That Geneva's Methods Were Effective.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—The Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armament itself taught that the methods of the League of Nations are effective, Sir Robert Borden, former Premier of Canada and Canadian delegate to the peace conference and to the Washington conference, said tonight at the annual dinner of the Canadian Club of Boston. Speaking on the subject of "Resurgent Peace," Sir Robert concluded:

"A fitting sense of international justice, true respect for public right among the nations, the habit of co-operation and of friendly discussion, the practice of arbitrament, these may be learned by the methods of the Covenant of the League of Nations. In some wise they must be learned before peace will endure. What nation shall fail in its duty to teach that lesson?"

Reviewing the work of the Washington conference, Sir Robert said:

"Among the many just tributes to the memory of President Harding there is none greater than this, that he took the initiative in earnest effort to stay mad competition in naval armament and that he brought into friendly communication around a common council board at Washington the plenipotentiaries of nations having vital interests in the Pacific, to the end that distrust, suspicion and possible antagonism might be removed and cordial co-operation be established for the world's peace. * * *

"While at Washington I was especially impressed with the earnest desire of the American delegates that there should be not an alliance but friendly understanding and effective co-operation between the British Commonwealth and the United States. We all felt that in this could one strong guarantee of peace be found. Throughout the conference that spirit was predominant and if it represents, as I believe it does, the dominant feeling in the United States, it augurs well for the future."

PARIS READY TO REPLY IF REMINDED ON DEBT

No Payment to America, It Is Believed, Would Result From a Dun.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The Paris press as yet makes little comment on reports from Washington that the American Government may ask for an arrangement of the allied debts to the United States. The Quai d'Orsay said that Paris would have its answer ready in the event of the receipt of a request on the part of the American Government.

There need be little doubt about the attitude of Paris so long as Premier Poincaré remains in power. He has repeated many times and as late as Friday in a speech in the Chamber that France cannot undertake to pay her war debts until she is paid by Germany. What this means in effect is that France expects to be paid 26,000,000,000 gold marks by Germany to refund her advances for reconstruction before she undertakes to repay her borrowings from America and Great Britain, and then she plans to collect from Germany what she must pay.

Probably the French reply, if one should be required, would offer to America a share of the German payments or all of them after France has received 26,000,000,000 gold marks, or it is possible that M. Poincaré might offer a small share of the German payments sooner, to grow larger as the reconstruction item is reduced.

It is recognized here that this would bring into conflict the American attitude on reparations and other questions. But it is not probable that M. Poincaré would recede on this issue in response to a note from Washington any more than he receded on it in the debate over the Experts' Reparations Committee. Such a move by Washington, if made at this time, it would appear, would be more productive of a sharp debate than of payments by France to America.

The Matin says:

"M. Poincaré recently defined the attitude of the French Government on this question. France does not repudiate any of her war debts contracted in the common cause, but she cannot envisage payment before having been paid by Germany. We should see in the proposal of Senator Smoot, who is not hostile to France, a simple move of form for the sake of record which we shall take note of when it is received."

SAYS ZIONISM DECLINES.

Jabotinsky Declares Jewish Army Must Defend Palestine.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Nov. 21.—The well-known Zionist, Vladimir Jabotinsky, who held a commission in the British Army and served in Palestine during 1918, is touring the Baltic States lecturing on Zionism. Jabotinsky declares that during the last five years Zionism has considerably declined in consequence of the present British policy in Palestine and considers the proposed immigration commission is a danger to the success of Zionism in Palestine.

In his Riga lecture Jabotinsky stated that while formerly a great part of the British press had been enthusiastically in favor of Zionism, now three-quarters of it was hostile, because Zionism made it necessary to keep extra British forces in Palestine. The British soldier was always willing to defend British interests, but he did not understand the necessity for defending Jews against Arabs. It would be necessary, therefore, to organize Jewish forces under the British Government so that Jewish soldiers could defend Palestine.

If Zionism was worth anything, Jews must be willing to organize themselves, to train and to submit to proper discipline in order to be able to defend Zionism themselves. The garrison of Palestine must consist exclusively of Jewish soldiers.

ZEIGNER ARRESTED, PUT IN LEIPSIC JAIL

STRESEMANN CRISIS TODAY

Chancellor Will Make Second Attempt to Address the Reichstag on His Policy.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Dr. Zeigner, Saxony's radical ex-Minister-President, was arrested in Dresden at 3 o'clock this afternoon and transported by motor car to Leipsic. From this it is inferred in political circles that a far graver charge than grafting h... been brought against him.

It is thought possible here that a test case will result before Germany's "political Supreme Court" at Leipsic if it is decided to try Dr. Zeigner on a treason charge based on his having aided and abetted Communist members in his Government who openly preached subversive doctrines.

Dr. Zeigner's arrest at this time is likely to prove an interesting factor in the present unstable political situation. The parallel of Zeigner jailed in Leipsic, whence Captain Ehrhardt so easily escaped, and of Zeigner arrested in Saxony with Ludendorff, Lossow, von Kahr and others at large in Bavaria is exited to increase the radical masses and stiffen the opposition of even the conservative Socialists to the Stresemann régime.

All this is held to show that the Chancellor in an effort to save himself has suddenly changed his course still further to the Right, after having failed to make up with the Social Democrats again.

It was reported in political circles in Berlin tonight that Dr. Stresemann was in Hamburg incognito conferring with Mr. Warburg about American food credits.

There is the keenest expectation of fresh riotous scenes in the Reichstag tomorrow when the Communists, it is believed, will continue their filibustering tactics which so successfully prevented the chagrined Chancellor from answering his political foes on the Right and Left yesterday. In a large part of the German press Socialist Reichstag President Loebe is ridiculed and severely criticized for letting one single Communist break up the Reichstag meeting and for not having Comrade Remmele forcibly ejected.

In a letter to his party organ, Vorwaerts, the Reichstag President explains that the reason he ended the session and vanished from the scene rather than have Remmele put out was because he did not wish the spectacle of the police forcibly ejecting a member to be viewed by the crowded visitors' and press galleries, and moreover that he wanted to avoid an unfavorable impression at home, and particularly abroad.

At Stettin today the Social Democrats at a special meeting voted by an overwhelming majority for the sharpest opposition against the Stresemann Government with a view to turning him out of office. The Stettin Socialists are particularly angry that the Stresemann Government should have given permission for the Crown Prince's return, thus compromising Germany abroad.

It was declared that the Crown Prince's return proved the utter unreliability and treacherousness of Stresemann and the present Berlin régime. Stresemann was assailed, too, for his double standard policy toward Saxony and Bavaria. Resolutions were passed demanding sharp action against Bavaria and revocation of the military régime and martial law.

RUHR AGREEMENT AGAIN SEEMS NEAR

French Said to Have Made Concession Which Promises Return to Work.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21. — The London Times correspondent at Cologne sends the following:

"Representatives of the French Factory and Mine Control Commission and the German mine owners are definitely to meet again tomorrow at Düsseldorf. The French declare that an agreement is there for the Germans to sign if they want to, giving the impression that it is a case of take it or leave it. But I hear from a reliable German informant that the French have in private conversation agreed to make an important concession as regards what is to be credited to the reparation account, so that the Germans are confident an agreement will be signed within the next day or two. In any case, the conclusion to be drawn from these two versions is that the prospects for an agreement being reached are favorable.

"If the French have indeed offered the coal industry more tolerable treatment there is little doubt the difference between employers and men as to working hours and wages can be adjusted. The prospect of an agreement with the French in the Ruhr has made it easier for the Berlin Government to contemplate continuing unemployment subsidies in the occupied areas. I understand that provisionally the Government has promised there shall be no difference of treatment between the unemployed in occupied and unoccupied areas.

"I have received from an eyewitness some details of the fighting which took place last week between the Separatists and inhabitants of the Siebengebirge villages. He states that for some days the Separatists had been demanding supplies from the farms of the neighborhood without payment and assaulting farmers when they refused the demands. The climax came when they shot an old man of 81 and his son. Farmers arming themselves with hatchets and other forming implements, then attacked the Separatists. They were lucky enough to capture a machine gun from the Separatists and made some use of it, but nearly all the 'injured were wounded by axes and hatchets.

"The Separatists were from 300 to 400 in number and most of them carried revolvers. The French have now multiplied this one machine gun by six and are representing the Siebengebirge farmers as a dangerous body of armed men."

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The German War Burdens Commission has sent a note to the Reparation Commission, notifying that body of a contract concluded on Nov. 10 between the Cobiens Interallied Commission and representatives of the dye industry, and giving in some detail the deliberations which took place between Oct. 5 and Nov. 15 between the French Economic Control Commission and the Ruhr industrialists, which up to the present has given no result.

Particular importance attaches to this communication because it appears to imply indirectly recognition on the part of the Berlin Government of agreements between its nationals and the occupying powers.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Leopold von Hoesch, the German Chargé d'Affaires in Paris, has handed to the French Government and newspapers a note protesting against the French authorities assisting the Separatists in the Bavarian Palatinate and hindering German officials in combating seditious or revolutionary elements.

The note cites a number of individual cases for protest, especially incidents at Speyer and Kaiserslauten.

BATTLE IN BERLIN SUBURB.

Police Capture 200 Proletarians Engaged in Manoeuvres.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Berlin enjoyed a quiet rest day, this being the religious holiday in Prussia known as bustag. Everything was shut up, including the theatres, and there were no newspapers and no riots. Only in Grunewald, a suburban section, was the calm broken, by a large scale battle between Green police and proletarian "centuries."

The proletarian shock troops employed the day of penitence and prayer for holding elaborate field manoeuvres. The Green police reserves of the Wilmersdorff section were hurried to the scene in their riot cars and attacked in military formation. The proletarians attempted to fight. The police fired. There were no casualties, ut more than 200 prisoners were transported to police headquarters in motor trucks. Search of captured proletarian combat forces disclosed that their armament consisted chiefly of blackjacks.

The Treasurer of the organization was also captured. On him was found a list for enrolling new members and obtaining subscriptions. He had obtained pledges for all of 700,000,000,000 marks, or something like 10 cents, at tonight's bootlegging rate.

KURT EISNER KILLS MAN.

Bavarian Radical Leader Fires First When Menaced by Peasant.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Kurt Eisner, the revolutionary leader and radical member of the Bavarian Landtag today was negotiating with the Burgomaster of his community, the small town of Josberg, when a Bavarian peasant named Burgmeier, drew a revolver and pointed it at Eisner's breast.

Eisner, according to the reports of the affair from Munich pulled a revolver and fired twice, killing the peasant, after which he surrendered to the authorities.

BERLIN CHURCHES LOOTED.

Woman Gowned in Altar Cloths Reveals Systematic Robberies.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The robbing of church altars is the latest specialty of Berlin crooks. One of them came to grief yesterday when the police halted a woman dressed in a purple gown of ecclesiastical cut.

The woman proved to be the sweetheart of Erich Klatte, and a search of her wardrobe revealed an extensive array of gowns and lingerie made of altar silks, satins and velvets which, she said, Klatte had been accumulating in the course of his church-looting expeditions.

Porto Rico Has Bananas to Sell.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 21.—Porto Rico is offering substantial relief for the situation revealed in the "no bananas" song of Summer and Fall popularity. For the first time in the history of the island bananas are being exported and to the United States. The last shipment of 9,000 bunches has just gone forward. Most of the fruit has been consigned to New York.

INDICT 6 GEORGIANS FOR FLOGGING PAIR

Keller Hasty of Philadelphia Athletics, With Others, Named by Marietta Grand Jury.

WOMAN TELLS OF BEATING

Mrs. Bertha Holcombe Says She and S. H. Norton Were Taken Captive to the Woods.

Special to The New York Times.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—Indictments on two counts, one charging assault and battery and the other rioting, were returned today by the Cobb County Grand Jury against six men of Smyrna, Ga., near here, as the outgrowth of the alleged kidnapping and flogging on the night of Nov. 16 of Mrs. Bertha Holcombe, 26 years old, and her escort, S. H. Norton, said to be a traveling salesman with headquarters in Atlanta.

Those indicted were Keller Hasty, member of the Philadelphia Athletics; Arthur and Frank Hasty, Parks Cook, Tom Black and Joe Bramlett. Sheriff W. E. Swanson and Deputy Groover of Cobb County began a round-up of the men against whom the bills were returned.

The case first came to official notice in Cobb County this morning, when Mrs. Holcombe, scarred and bandaged, recounted the details of her alleged kidnapping and torture.

On the night of Nov. 16, according to the young woman's story, she and her escort had alighted from an Atlanta-Marietta street car and were walking the short distance to her home, when a band of masked men leaped from two automobiles and seized them. They surrendered as pistols were pressed against their bodies.

After being imprisoned in two automobiles, Mrs. Holcombe said, they were driven to a clearing about one mile from Smyrna and there, shielded from view of near-by roads by dense growths of trees, the masked men lashed Norton across his back with a heavy strap. Others beat him in the face with bare fists until he finally collapsed.

Then the riders turned upon her, Mrs. Holcombe told John Wood, the Solicitor General, gave her a merciless beating and then pushed her, sobbing, back into one of the cars.

The victims were driven back to Smyrna and released a short distance from her home. Mrs. Holcombe said that Norton had to carry her the few steps to the house because she was too weak to walk. She said Norton was warned to leave Smyrna at that time and never to appear there again.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American League Baseball Club, expressed surprise tonight at the report that "Bob" Hasty, one of his pitchers, was among the men indicted at Marietta, Ga., in connection with the flogging of a man and woman near that city. Mr. Mack said he could scarcely credit the report, for, he added, "Hasty is one of the finest, quietest and most gentlemanly chaps I ever met."

Hasty has been with the Athletics three years, and last season was one of their leading pitchers. He was married last Spring to a Georgia girl.

POSED AS LOST SON.

Detective Sayc Crosby Tried to Get Money From an Anxious Mother.

An attempt to get money by an appeal to the sympathy of a mother of a missing son was the basis of a charge of grand larceny made against Arthur Crosby yesterday in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, where he was held in bail of $5,000 for a hearing on Nov. 30. Detective Alfred Glynn, who is a nephew of Governor Smith, said Crosby read an advertisement by Mrs. Mary Edgeworth of Little Rock, Ark., asking for information that would lead to the return of her missing son, Russell, to which Crosby sent this reply:

"Mother: send tickets and money, and I'll come home for the holidays." Before telegraphing this message, Glynn said, Crosby went to the Columbia Hotel, 289 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, and registered as "Russell Edgeworth."

Mrs. Edgeworth wired $100 and tickets, but Crosby didn't receive them. Friends of Mrs. Edgeworth advised her to consult Chief of Police D. C. Rothenberry of Little Rock, who had the Western Union hold the money while he consulted by wire with the Brooklyn police.

RUSSIA PROCLAIMS BOYCOTT OF SWISS

Conradi Verdict Received With Indignation — Strengthens Nationalistic Sentiment.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—Foreign Minister Tchitcherin has voiced Russian indignation at the Conradi verdict in a vehement statement issued to the foreign press last night. "The treacherous crime" of the Swiss Court, he says, has identified the whole of Switzerland with the murderers and "henceforth Switzerland is a land of murderers."

On behalf of the Soviet Government he pronounces a formal boycott against Swiss citizens—"for the Russian workers and peasants Government, Switzerland is henceforth as if it did not exist. We shall have no trade or dealings with the Swiss and neither they shall come here nor our people go to Switzerland."

Tchitcherin contrasts the behavior of Sweden "which suppressed the league of white Russian assassins established within her borders" with that of Switzerland, "whose citizens approached me in Lausanne with many propositions of Russo-Swiss business."

Tchitcherin declares the Conradi verdict outraged all sections of Russian opinion and even circles here, unsympathetic with the Soviet Government, are indignant against the decision that frees the slayer of the man who represented Russia at the international parley. They hold that it was Soviet Russia, rather than Conradi, which was on trial by the Vaux judges, and say "The Soviet Government may not be an ideal Government or the Government we desire, but it is the Government of Russia and its condemnation is the condemnation of Russia."

An impartial observer cannot fail to mark that the effect of the verdict has been still further to strengthen the growing sentiment of Russian Nationalism, whose importance may be vital should events in Europe assume a critical aspect in the near future.

TOURISTS FLOCK AGAIN TO TOMB OF PHARAOH

LUXOR, Nov. 21.—Today's operations in the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen consisted entirely of taking measurements and photographs of the inner chamber. The police guard, which was stationed here last year, took up its position this morning and the scene outside the tomb today was somewhat reminiscent of what went on daily here last Winter.

The first passenger steamer from the north arrived this week, and during the morning for the first time this season tourists congregated at the parapet. They had booked to visit the various tombs in the royal necropolis, but seemed oblivious of everything but Tut-ankh-Amen's resting place and stood around in the vain hope of seeing something brought out.

They had to content themselves with photographing the doorway or snapping pictures of each other seated on the parapet or standing by the entrance well.

Eventually they moved on, to the evident relief of their dragomans, who had great difficulty in getting their parties to carry out the day's program. This reluctance to move, as well as the remarks of tourists, is clear indication of the irresistible appeal which the tomb still makes to the world in general.

Promises News of the Tomb.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 21.—The Egyptian Prime Minister today promised a deputation of newspaper men to obtain equal treatment for all Egyptian and foreign correspondents regarding the news concerning the work in the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen. He said the communiqués regarding the doings of the Egyptologists in the tomb would not be allowed to be printed elsewhere until they had been published in Cairo.

FREE STATE TO BURY BARRY

Contends Family Funeral Would Be Used for a Demonstration.

DUBLIN, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—In the Dail Eireann today, Tom Johnson, Secretary of the Irish Labor Party, and other members reproached the Government for what was termed its unwise decision in refusing to allow the aged mother and relatives to have the body of Dennis Barry, who died on hunger strike, for burial, instead of burying it in the jail yard as though the man had been hanged for murder. Mr. Johnson warned the Government that the incident would reflect badly on its general policy.

Richard Mulcahy, Minister of Defense, explained that the Government had resolved not to hand over the body of any prisoner who had died while on hunger strike. Those who died would receive a reverential burial inside the official precincts of the jail, he said, and later, when advantage could not be taken of a funeral to create a demonstration prejudicial to the safety of the State, facilities would be allowed to relatives of the dead to remove the bodies.

The safety of the State, Mr. Mulcahy added, was still in danger. Every pressure was being brought by people outside to get prisoners to sacrifice their lives in useless protests, and the Government would not allow funeral demonstrations which might result in the sacrifice of additional lives inside and perhaps outside the jails.

Countess Markievicz, the woman Republican leader who was arrested here yesterday while distributing circulars dealing with the Government's attitude toward hunger strikers, remained in jail today. She has begun a hunger strike. No charge has been preferred against her.

Dutch to Send Food to Germany.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 21.—Although numerous reports from Berlin refer to a projected visit of Chancellor Stresemann to Amsterdam "to talk with representatives of international high finance over a large loan for Germany," financial circles here discredit them. The Dutch Foreign Office also denies there is any truth in the story. Prince Henry of the Netherlands, head of the Dutch Red Cross, however, conferred with Dr. Stresemann Saturday in Berlin regarding sending trainloads of foodstuffs for Germany. A Dutch kitchen will be opened in Berlin Monday for feeding the destitute.

stopped to say the cheery word, "Everything is all right."

Even Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador, lost his accustomed gravity and chatted gaily with Jules Cambon of France, while Viscount Ishii of Japan, Baron d'Hestroy of Belgium and Baron Avezzano of Italy assured those outside that everything was for the best. Laurance H. Norton, Secretary of the American Embassy, who represented Ambassador Herrick, the latter being ill with the grip, was particularly happy that the first occasion when he was called upon to represent the United States should be the occasion of patching up the Entente.

The spirit of give and take which resulted in saving the Entente is regarded as the best augry for settlement of the other questions on which France and Britain are divided, although there appears to be some apprehension in French circles as to how Parliament will receive the Ambassadors' conclusions.

In this connection significance was attached to today's debate in the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, where Premier Poincaré's policy toward Germany was censured as too mild, with General Viscount de Castelnau, former Chief of Staff, among the chief critics of the Government.

The salvation of the Entente caused no little joy in official circles, however, and Jules Cambon, to whom a great share of the credit for the result is attributed, was the object of warm congratulations from his former colleagues of the foreign office and from the other members of the Ambassadors' Conference.

Text of Letter on Military Control.

Following is the text of the first note dispatched to the Berlin Government:

"In the name of the allied Governments represented at the Conference of Ambassadors, I beg you to transmit the following note to the German Government:

"The allied Governments take note of the declaration made by the German Government that it in no way intends to contest its obligations under the Treaty of Versailles. They must, however, put on record that this Government, nevertheless, in reality persists in invoking reasons for continuing to escape from the exercise of military control in practice.

"The German Government, it is true, does not put forward this time the participation of French and Belgian officers in the operations of control as grounds for evading control, but maintains that resumption of the operations would be of a nature to aggravate its internal difficulties and inevitably provoke incidents. The Council must first observe to the German Government that the operations of control have been interrupted many months, and there is no need to insist on the gravity of such a situation.

"The Council can the less admit prolongation of the situation, as it might with reason ask itself whether the obstacles thus brought to the accomplishment of the task of the Commission of Military Control have not favored the development of elements of trouble and consequently contributed to increase the difficulties of which the German Government complains. The allied Governments, moreover, cannot admit that the resumption of the operations of control should of itself be a fresh source of difficulties, or cause incidents.

"Not only are a great part of these operations carried out, owing to their very nature, under conditions which should not furnish a pretext for incidents, but the control commission, as the German Government is aware, has always operated in the interests of proper accomplishment of its task in a manner to facilitate the work of the German authorities, and confidence in its tact in this respect can be continued.

"Under such conditions the allied governments find themselves obliged to maintain the right which belongs to the Military Control Commission and also to the Committee of Aeronautic Guarantee to exercise fully operations of control, the Commission of Control and the Committee of Guarantee prescribing, moreover, full latitude of appreciation as to what constitute operations the execution of which seems to them really capable of realization and necessary.

"The allied Governments recall to the German Government that every time these organizations of control and supervision shall notify it, according to the regulations already established by agreement with the German authorities, that they intend to proceed on an inspection visit, the German Government has the peremptory duty, in conformity with Article 206 of the Treaty of Versailles, to give the Inter-allied missions of control and their members every facility necessary for their task.

"Consequently, the allied Governments have decided that the operations of military control and aeronautic supervision must be resumed without delay under conditions which will be notified to the German Government by the Presidents of the Commission of Military Control and the Committee of Aeronautic Guarantee.

"Should these operations meet with obstruction from the German authorities or German nationals, the allied Governments intend to take measures which may seem to them proper to assure execution of the treaty."

Letter on the Hohenzollerns.

The second letter reads:

"By the note from Herr von Hoesch, dated 10th of November, 1923, the German Government informed the Council, in reply to a question put to it on Nov. 9, that it had authorized the representative of Germany in Holland to deliver a passport to the former Crown Prince to re-enter Germany. The allied Governments take note of this declaration.

"The allied Governments, on the other hand, have received a letter, addressed Nov. 16, 1923, by the Chargé d'Affaires of Germany in Paris to the Director of Political Affairs of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs for communication to the President of the French Council of Ministers, a copy of which is annexed to the present letter.

"The allied Governments take note of the declarations contained in this document, both concerning the renunciation by the former Crown Prince of his rights to the Crown of Prussia and the Imperial Crown and concerning the formal engagement taken by the German Government not to authorize the former Emperor's return to Germany. They formally take cognizance that the German Government in communicating to the French Government the text of the renunciation, signed 1st of December, 1918, by the Crown Prince, has gone on record thereby that it considers the renunciation valid and does not admit of its possible cancellation.

"At the same time the allied Governments note that the German Government, which, in order to escape its obligations under the treaty concerning military control, invokes the difficulties of the internal situation of Germany and the troubled state reigning there, has authorized, in full consciousness of its act, the return of the former Crown Prince, well aware that his presence in the territory of the Reich is of a nature to provoke serious complications for Germany, from both internal and external viewpoints.

"Under these conditions the allied powers find themselves constrained to declare to the German Government that they hold it entirely responsible for the consequences which may result from the fact that it allows the former Crown Prince to remain in Germany. They feel they must draw the full attention of the German Government to the danger which such a situation may involve, and which, in case it arises, may compel the allied powers jointly to devise measures suitable to meet it."

Text of German Envoy's Letter.

The text of Herr von Hoesch's letter to M. de Perretti, French Director of Political Affairs, annexed to the foregoing is as follows:

"As a sequel to my last conversation with you concerning the return of the former Crown Prince and rumors of the return of the former Emperor, I requested my Government, as I expressed my intention to you, for supplementary information on the questions you asked me. I have just received a reply from Berlin and hasten to inform you:

"First, the Crown Prince by a deed signed 1st of December, 1918, renounced his rights to the Crown of Prussia and the imperial crown. The text of this document reads:

"By the present document I renounce expressly and definitely all rights to the Crown of Prussia and the Crown of the Emperor which might belong to me either through renunciation by his Majesty the Emperor and King of the Throne, or through any other title.

"Given under our hand at Wieringen, 1st December, 1918. WILHELM.

"Secondly, the former Emperor has not made any request to the Government of the Reich nor expressed a desire for authorisation to return to Germany.

"Thirdly, the German Government formally confirms once more to me the declaration I made to you the day before yesterday, to the effect that it will not permit the former Emperor's return to Germany.

"I beg you to inform the President of the Council of Ministers of the foregoing."

Tower of London Good for Years.

LONDON, Nov. 21. — The Tower of London is safe for another 1,000 years, says an authority, despite the rumors that the ancient buildings were badly cracked and were in danger of collapse. "What really occurred," says the expert, "is that a weakness in the Tower caused by its great age, was detected and remedied. The houses were never in danger of falling."

GEO. F. BAKER BACK, SUPPORTS TAX CUT

Aged Banker Has Not Seen Mellon Plan, but Says Reduction Will Help Business.

RETURNS ON THE MAJESTIC

Predicts Prosperity in the United States, Regardless of European Conditions.

George F. Baker, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of New York, returned yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic after a visit of several weeks in Europe, which he spent chiefly in London and Paris. The banker appeared to be optimistic about the business prospects for the United States and was strongly in favor of a reduction of the taxes. He said: "I am against the bonus and I don't think the soldiers want it, either."

When asked for his opinion about the tax revision proposed by Secretary Mellon, the banker replied that he had not seen the plan, but thought a tax revision would produce much more business and people would make more money than they are now doing when they pay 58 per cent. of their profits as taxes, leaving very little for dividends and the normal profits of commerce. He favored removing the surtaxes and excess profits tax.

In reply to a question whether prosperity here was not contingent upon the settlement of European affairs, he replied: "The European situation might have some effect on American trade, but the United States has shown itself to be fairly independent of Europe."

Asked about the probability of a break between England and France over the Ruhr, the financier said that the two countries have pulled through together before and they will do it again.

Although the banker is in his eighty-fourth year, he appeared to be hale and vigorous.

Another passenger was Mason Day, head of the Barnsdall Corporation, who returned from a visit to the concessions operated by his company in Russia. He said: "During the last seven years I have spent on the Continent of Europe I do not remember ever having seen general conditions so universally upset and individual Governments so apparently at loggerheads with one another as at this time. I cannot see how there can be any European settlement without an attempt, at least, to straighten out the condition of Russia."

Other passengers were Sir Herbert Morgan, Vice President of the National Advertising Society of Great Britain; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip A. S. Franklin Jr., returning from their wedding trip to Europe; Chancellor Elmer E. Brown of New York University and Mrs. Brown, and the Hon. Sir Lomer Gouin.

KING FOR BIGGER SLASH.

Senator Would Reduce Taxes Below Mellon Estimate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, today gave THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent an interview in which he said that he was in agreement with Secretary Mellon that it would be impossible to pay a soldiers' bonus and at the same time carry out the Mellon plan for a reduction of Federal income taxes and other taxes.

"I agree with Secretary Mellon in the view that there can be no real tax reduction if Congress votes the suggested billions for the payment of a soldiers' bonus or adjusted compensation," said Senator King. "I am also in agreement with him as to the necessity of tax reduction. But I do not think that Secretary Mellon goes quite far enough. He thinks that Federal taxes can be reduced about $300,000,000 annually. I think there can be a much greater reduction in taxes achieved through greater Governmental efficiency and economy.

"I think there can be a reduction in the Government personnel by at least 50,000 persons, even possibly 75,000. There are too many employes in the Veterans' Bureau, in the Internal Revenue Service, and, in my opinion, from 2,000 to 3,000 should be dismissed from employment by the Shipping Board and corresponding cuts made in other departments and bureaus, including the civilian, but not the other forces of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. By retrenching, as suggested by Secretary Mellon and along the lines I suggest, we may well keep the total expenses of the Government, including interest on the public debt and sinking fund, within $2,500,000,000.

"In this connection, I wish to pay tribute to General Lord, Director of the Budget, who is doing splendid work in a splendid way, but who is handicapped by existing laws which make it impossible to effect other important cuts in expenditure.

"I am in favor of many of Mr. Mellon's recommendations. But I would go much further than he and cut off more of the nuisance taxes. I regard the income and excess profits taxes as sound in theory, and this also applies to corporation and inheritance taxes. I believe we should look to these taxes for the bulk of our Federal revenue.

"In the new Congress as in the old, I shall oppose any bonus or adjusted compensation for men who went to war and returned safe and sound physically. But I am in favor of doing everything possible for the disabled."

GOMPERS FOR FEDERAL SAVING

He Wants Small Taxpayers Relieved and a Bonus to Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, today gave THE NEW YORK TIMES a statement of his attitude toward the Mellon plan. He favors gradually reducing the taxes of the small taxpayer and at the same time paying a bonus to the veterans of the World War.

"Organized labor, in common with the rest of our citizenship, is anxious to see taxation reduced," said Mr. Gompers. "We believe that the present income tax rates place an unfair burden on the wage earner and the small salaried man and woman. We believe that taxes can be reduced by introducing economy and efficiency in the conduct of Government affairs.

"This does not mean that we think that Government forces should be drastically cut or that the wages of Government employes should be reduced. To attempt to carry on any enterprise, Government or private, with insufficient working forces or poorly paid employes is bad business from every viewpoint. Good wages and adequate working forces, combined with good management, pay dividends in money, service and good-will.

"But we do believe it would be possible to introduce economies in Government that would permit of tax reduction. Personally, I believe it would be impossible gradually to reduce the taxes of the small taxpayer and at the same time pay the veterans of the World War the adjusted compensation which has been endorsed by the American Federation of Labor.

"Recent investigations, some of which are still in progress, indicate that there have been huge wastes to say nothing of graft and dishonesty, in governmental affairs. With these wastes stopped, it should be possible to reduce taxes and thus lighten the burden on the taxpayer and on business and industry."

ALLIED BUSINESS MEN PRAISE MELLON PLAN

Association With 5,000 Members Urges Adoption of Secretary's Tax Program.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's tax-reduction program was endorsed yesterday by the Board of Directors of the Allied Business Men's Association. A resolution offered by Judge Joseph S. Schwab, President of the organization, urging prompt action by President Coolidge and Congress, was adopted. The association has 5,000 members.

"Secretary Mellon, who is a business man rather than a politician," said Judge Schwab, "has been quick to sense the sentiment of the business community and to recognize the evils that inevitably follow long-continued, excessive taxation. Bonus agitation should not be allowed to stand between the American people and the lifting from their shoulder of a third to a half billion in annual taxation.

"Care for, maintain and rehabilitate the wounded and disabled veterans with the utmost generosity, by all means, but do not foist upon our people the colossal burden of a bonus, to be paid to men young, vigorous and profitably employed, entirely removed from financial need. To a good many vote-seeking 'statesmen' the bonus is merely 'honey to catch flies.' The American people are awake to the fact and resent this attitude.

"A feeling of uneasiness and doubt at present prevails among business men, due not so much to conditions abroad as to domestic issues, of which at this moment sane and sensible income-tax revision is the most urgent and important. Our business men are unanimous in insisting that Congress take speedy action. Too much is at issue to admit of temporizing or procrastination. Early drastic pruning of the income tax is imperative.

The Board of Directors of the Staten Island Chamber of Commerce forwarded to President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon, United States Senators Wadsworth and Copeland and to Representative-elect Anning S. Prall copies of a resolution adopted by the organization endorsing the tax-reduction program outlined by Secretary Mellon. The resolution, in part, set forth that "the adoption of such a program will react most advantageously upon all classes of citizens and will have a most favorable effect upon business."

BRUCE BACKS MELLON, PRAISES HIS COURAGE

Maryland Democratic Senator Favors Giving Relief to Productive Business.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Democratic members of Congress who have given their support to Secretary Mellon's proposal for tax reductions had an addition today in the person of Senator William Cabell Bruce.

In a prepared statement Senator Bruce commended "the enlightened and fearless spirit" in which he said Secretatry Mellon had dealt with the tax question." Mr. Bruce specifically approved the Mellon proposals for reducing taxes on earned income and for scaling the normal surtax to 25 per cent.

No mention was made in Senator Bruce's statement of the bonus, but he is definitely on record against it, and has made it plain within the last few days in private conversations that his position has not been changed in the slightest degree on the question.

His statement reads:

"In my opinion, we are very much indebted to Secretary Mellon for the enlightened and fearless spirit in which he has taken up the subject of tax reduction. It is that spirit which has won for him such a remarkable measure of public respect.

"The 25 per cent. reduction in the tax on earned income which he proposes is, in my judgment, based on a sound distinction. An income from wages, a salary or a professional vocation is a precarious thing as compared with an income derived from an established business or from invested net income.

"Then the scaling down of the present normal income taxes from 4 per cent. to 3 per cent. and from 8 per cent. to 6 per cent., respectively, suggested by the Secretary, is, I think, bound to meet with very general approval, because it diminishes the pressure of the income tax upon the shoulders of the great mass of taxpayers.

"The idea of reducing the surtax income rates by making $10,000 instead of $6,000 the initial surtax peg and then reaching a maximum surtax of 25 per cent. at the $100,000 peg by a graduated surtax scale should also commend itself to sober judgment.

"Colbert, the famous French Minister, once said that the art of public taxation consists in plucking the goose without making him squawk. The surtax goose is squawking to such an extent that the task of plucking is producing fewer and fewer feathers.

"The revenue from the higher surtax rates is decreasing and millions of dollars of property formerly subject to surtax has been diverted from productive enterprises and reinvested in tax-exempt securities, which by reason of that fact are being issued by States, counties and cities in the United States in alarming abundance.

"To say nothing more, it would seem as if the best way to increase the revenue from the surtax rates would be to reduce them.

"I approve of other recommendations made by Secretary Mellon, but as they are not of major importance it is unnecessary to speak of them in detail. I must say, however, that I cannot see just why the Secretary should recommend the repeal of the tax on admissions to places of amusement. It seems to me that this is a little like repealing taxes on liquors, tobacco or silks.

"There is no sounder fiscal principle than the one which insists upon the taxation of luxuries rather than of necessities. Patrons of moving picture shows, it seems to me, are as fair subjects for taxation as any individuals that I know, provided that there is any real need for taxing them at all.

"At first thought I was disposed to question the repeal of the tax on telegrams, telephones and leased wires, but it, I imagine, falls mainly on business, and few things tend more to promote the welfare of every one in a community than the exemption, to a reasonable extent, of productive business from tax burdens.

"It is certainly very important that if minor subjects of excise taxation are to be relieved of such burdens, no unjust spirit of favoritism should be allowed to repeal the excise taxes on some without repealing them on others."

LEGION GIVES ITS PROGRAM.

Informs Coolidge What Legislation It Seeks From Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—At the request of President Coolidge, officials of the American Legion have sent to the White House a comprehensive statement outlining the organization's legislative program for the coming session of Congress.

The statement embodies the legislative proposals endorsed by the Legion at its last national convention, including a bonus bill, a measure for an automatic universal conscription of manpower and industry in time of war, an authorization for retirement pay for emergency army officers, centralization of all veterans' legislation in a single committee in both Senate and House, and numerous amendments of the present law governing the administration of veterans' affairs generally.

Connecticut Merchants Back Mellon

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 21.—Announcement was made here today that the Board of Directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce had, at a meeting held at New Haven on Nov. 1, approved the recent proposal of Secretary Mellon for tax revision, and "sensed the need of tax revision at the next session of Congress."

Richmond Chamber for Lower Taxes

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 21.—The Board of Directors of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce has unanimously and unqualifiedly endorsed the Mellon plan for a reduction in Federal income taxes, believing that it will be a means toward the encouragement of industrial and commercial development and also operate immediately in favor of a reduction in the cost of living. The directors reaffirm their opposition to the bonus to soldiers.

MANY VOID BALLOTS CAST.

One in Eleven Defective in Four New York Congressional Districts.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Canvass today of votes cast in four Congressional elections held this month in New York State showed that an average of one in every eleven ballots was either blank or defective. In the Thirty-second District, composed of Jefferson, Lewis, Madison and Oswego Counties, one of every seven ballots was void. The other three districts in which elections were held, in each case to fill vacancies caused by the death of the incumbent, were the Eleventh, Sixteenth and Twenty-fourth, all in New York City.

The vote in each district for candidates of the Republican, Democratic and Socialist Parties was found to be as follows:

Twenty-fourth—Benjamin L. Fairchild, Republican, 43,475; Edward R. Koch, Democrat, 38,435; Alexander Braunstein, Socialist, 6,913.

Thirty-second—Thaddeus C. Sweet, Republican, 41,776; Daniel C. Burke, Democrat, 21,391; James M. Manson, Socialist, 962.

BEGINS 25TH PRISON TERM.

Man of 71 Has Spent All but Six of Last Fifty-four Years in Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 21.—George Ferguson, alias George Thompson, 71, today began his twenty-fifth term of imprisonment. This is his third term in Sing Sing. His prison record, dating back fifty-four years, started at Joliet, Ill. Since 1869 he has known but six years of freedom.

He has the longest criminal record of any prisoner sentenced to Sing Sing. It is for burglary in Queens County that he has just arrived there to serve six years and six months. He was first committed to that prison in 1878 for burglary.

Save for the term in Joliet in 1869 for assault, all his offenses have been crimes against property, including larceny, burglary and robbery. He has served sentences in fourteen penal institutions in New York, New Jersey and New England.

"It is too bad that I should have to be committed this time," said Ferguson to Warden Lewis E. Lawes. "I was out six years and rather liked staying out."

DR. COOK SENTENCED TO 14 YEARS IN CELL

cooler, gulped a glass of water and sat down.

All of the convicted men, immediately after being sentenced, were taken to jail, where they will remain until they either give bond or the appeals which they declare they will make are acted on.

Only one of the fourteen men who stood trial for six weeks was acquitted. He was A. M. Delcambre, who was freed on an instructed verdict ordered by Judge Killits.

The Court began imposing sentences on the convicted ten men late this afternoon before a courtroom filled with curious crowds and weeping women, eleven of them the wives of the defendants. Dr. Cook was found guilty on twelve counts of the indictment against him, as were all other defendants, save Cox, who was convicted on eight counts. The jury was out twenty hours.

Conviction Aids Federal Campaign.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Government is in a position, as a result of the conviction of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and others in Fort Worth today, to stamp out the threatened epidemic of mail fraud and wildcat stock promotion schemes, Assistant Attorney General Crim asserted tonight on his return from a conference with United States attorneys at Fort Worth.

Mr. Crim declared that active prosecution of the mail fraud cases at Fort Worth, now numbering more than four hundred, would be a policy of the Government. He predicted numerous pleas of guilty in these cases, adding that the Department of Justice and the Post Office Department, acting jointly, had developed a machine for the prosecution that contemplates the release of money.

"It will be recalled," Mr. Crim said, "that there was an epidemic of railroad rebating during the Roosevelt Administration. The Government got behind the prosecution and finished that evil. The same evil is threatened in the use of the mails in fraudulent promotion schemes and I hope to see the same treatment accorded that was given the rebating railroads."

The Post Office Department has had few new cases with which to deal in the last year, according to Mr. Crim. When the Government opened its attack on the frauds at Fort Worth, he said, immediately Federal attorneys there began receiving vast quantities of information concerning suspicious schemes and several hundred thousand volunteer Federal agents aided in obtaining evidence.

Since making claim in 1909 to having discovered the North Pole, Dr. Frederick A. Cook has been more or less in the public prints.

One of the earliest intimations that perhaps the explorer and mountain climber might be "putting it over" on the public again came from Herbert S. Houston, publisher of Our World, in a speech he made in Washington last January. He asserted that through an investigation by the National Vigilance Committee Dr. Cook was "rediscovered" in a fair way to make a fortune out of the public.

At that time the Cook venture was described as a "gigantic reloading scheme," so profitable that salaries ran as high as $2,000 a week. It was alleged that Dr. Cook was consolidating defunct companies on the theory that "the combination of nothings equals something." The man, it was said, was to offer to stockholders in bankrupt companies dollar-for-dollar stock in a new, consolidated operation, provided they bought outright a certain percentage, usually 25, in the new enterprise.

It was said that Dr. Cook, although doing a "land office" business with "sucker lists" obtained from some 200 enterprises which never had paid dividends and in which a credulous public had invested $100,000,000, was not satisfied with the prospects in the defunct companies that he had merged and turned his attention to getting lists of stockholders in companies that had tangible assets and some of which, in fact, were really going concerns. These stockholders, it was said, received communications on what purported to be letterheads of the company in which they had stock with the signature of an alleged "special trustee for stockholders" who was believed to be merely an employe of Dr. Cook.

Investigators asserted that these letters were so framed as to create an impression that the value of the holdings was doubtful and the stockholders were asked to exchange these holdings for stock in Dr. Cook's company with, of course, 25 per cent. additional stock purchased for cash. One investigator said he had found that the stockholders of more than fifty companies had been solicited in this manner without any authority from the real officers.

Last March Dr. Cook's wife divorced him on statutory grounds and for some time his property was tied up in litigation on her behalf. In February the former explorer sued a Fort Worth newspaper for $1,000,000 for libel and slander because of a series of articles it published about him.

CAMDEN CHILD MUST DIE.

Helen Hamilton Too Weak to Stand Blood Transfusion.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 21.—Physicians advised today against blood transfusion as a last attempt to save the life of little Helen Hamilton, whose life is slowly ebbing away as the result of heart dilation. It was feared that the operation would only hasten death.

"There is nothing they can do to save my life," the child whispered to her mother, when told of the decision. "There is something you can do for me after I die, mother. I want you to let me wear my wrist watch and I want Lucy to go with me."

Lucy is the doll that little Helen cuddles in her arms as she lies in her white cot. Her chief wish is that she may live to celebrate her thirteenth birthday next Monday.

REVENGE IS SUSPECTED IN GLAND OPERATION

Earl English, a Chicago Student, Is Held After Forcible Surgery on Charles Ream.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Carl English, a University of Chicago sophomore, was arrested late today in connection with a gland robbery by two men, who carried their victim to the prairie at Ninety-second Street, thrust a rag soaked with chloroform over his face and later left him lying there.

The victim was Charles Ream of 8,217 Dorchester Avenue, a 21-year-old driver for the Yellow Cab Company. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning he put his machine in the garage and started for home. Soon after he alighted from a street car at Fifty-fifth Street and Dorchester Avenue, he was held up by two men and carried south in an automobile.

He remembered nothing, he said, from the moment when the rag was placed over his face until he regained consciousness about 6 o'clock and staggered five blocks to a house. There he notified Dr. Oriando Scott, physician for the Yellow Cab Company, who had him taken to a hospital.

"The operation was evidently performed by some one who knew what he was about," said Dr. Scott. "If it had been crudely done, Ream would have died in the three hours which elapsed from the time he was chloroformed until he received medical aid. He had been very carefully bandaged."

Police later, arrested English, who lives at the same address as Ream. Although no charge was placed against English, he was held for questioning.

"The automobile in which Ream was kidnapped corresponds with the description of a car that has been seen in front of English's home on several occasions at night," said Lieutenant Grady. "There is a possibility that English is acquainted with some of the medical students."

Later English's sister and a woman roomer in the English home were questioned by the police, but the nature of their stories was not divulged. The police, however, said that the arrest of several medical students was imminent. It was said that revenge was the probable cause of the offense committed.

NINE PERSONS KILLED BY BOILER EXPLOSION

Nephew of Senator Broussard Among Victims of Sugar Refinery Blast in Louisiana.

NEW IBERIA, La., Nov. 21.—Nine persons were killed and fifteen others injured, five of them probably fatally, as the result of a boiler explosion today at the Vida Sugar Refinery at Loreauville, ten miles east of here.

The dead include Sidney Broussard, nephew of Senator Edwin S. Broussard, of Louisiana, plantation manager; Oscar Broussard, superintendent, and two white and five negro employes. Three other employes unaccounted for are believed to be dead.

The explosion came without warning just as a battery of five boilers had been steamed up preparatory to starting the season's work.

The loss to the refinery, which employs 100 persons, was estimated at $100,000.

AGREEMENT ON WEI-HAI-WEI.

Terms of British-Chinese Compact Received in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The draft agreement negotiated at Peking between the British and Chinese Governments for the return of Wei-hai-wei by the former to the latter provides for a Chinese administration with a reservation of certain privileges by Great Britain for the benefit of the British Navy. The principal features of the agreement as received by the State Department follow:

The British Government agrees to hand over the administration of Liu-kung-tao to China, in return for which the Chinese Government will give precedence to the British Navy and allow it to use a suitable anchorage for a certain period, which may be extended by mutual agreement.

Liu-kung-tao Island shall not be used as a trading port nor as a foreign settlement, and it shall be under the control of the Chinese Navy to be used as a naval station.

The Wei-hai-wei leasehold on the mainland will be returned to the Chinese Government, but a small portion will be reserved for trade and residential purposes and city quarters will be established.

The area will be administered by Chinese officials appointed by the Central Government.

The Chinese Government will continue to enforce police and sanitary regulations.

Chinese maritime customs officers will collect dues and control the port as in other trading ports.

Panama Holds Out Against Suffrage

PANAMA, Nov. 21.—It is semi-officially reported that the Government of Panama has declined to act favorably on a proposal that women be allowed to participate in the 1924 Presidential elections, suggesting that the question be taken up at the next Congress. A formal communication from the Government on the subject is expected soon. The proposal was made by a political party.

Narrow Escapes in Amherst Fire.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 21.—Damage estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000 was done to the Albert Block on Main Street early today by a fire which forced a dozen occupants of the building to flee in their night clothing. John Beacon suffered considerable injuries, and Alex Lucas was slightly hurt in leaping to safety. Mrs. Howard Aiken and her two small children would have been lost but for the heroism of Miss Rose Parent, who gave them warning barely in time.

lower than the appropriations for the fiscal year 1924.

To enable Congress to put through the Mellon recommendation for approximately $300,000,000 reduction in taxes, it will be necessary for all spending departments of the Government to resort to the utmost economy.

The budget plan to be submitted by the President contemplates no appropriation for bonus purposes.

Secretary Mellon has insisted from the start that his program for tax reduction is in no sense a partisan measure. It is the hope of its supporters in the Administration that it will be so regarded in Congress and that members, regardless of party affiliation, will support the proposal on the basis that the tax reduction plan is fundamentally sound.

In public statements on the Mellon suggestions Democratic leaders in the Senate and the House have given support to the bonus proposals. In their private conferences they are at a loss as to the wisest course to pursue.

A prominent Democratic leader, who did not wish to be quoted directly, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that, in his opinion, the Mellon plan, so far as it dealt with taxes paid by persons with incomes of $10,000 or less could be put through the Senate and the House without serious opposition and that there would be a sufficient number of Democrats who were willing to join with the Republicans to defeat radical efforts to raise the present surtax rates or restore the excess profits taxes.

What position the Democratic members of the Senate and the House would take in regard to Secretary Mellon's suggestion that the maximum surtax rate be reduced from 42 to 25 per cent., he said, had not been determined. The present position taken by Democrats willing to join with Administration Republicans who seek a reduction of the taxes of the smaller taxpayer, he said, was that the maximum surtax should be left at the present level of 42 per cent. He did not believe that any considerable number of Democratic members of either house would join with the radical forces in a fight to have the surtax raised from its present level.

"No Democrat," said this leader, "dares place himself in the position of voting against a proposition which would reduce the taxes of the smaller taxpayer by about 45 per cent. There isn't, in my mind, the slightest doubt that the tax reductions, in this regard, will be made. There will certainly be tax reductions made in the next Congress, and the real problem is what we are going to do with the soldier bonus issue. If we cannot get both, taxes will win."

VIEWS ON TAX CUTS BY REPRESENTATIVES

Members of Congress Discuss Secretary Mellon's Program for Changes in Present Law.

Additional expressions by members of Congress of their views on Secretary Mellon's proposals for reduction of taxes are given herewith:

REPRESENTATIVES. FOR THE MELLON PLAN.

Republican.

It is most important that there be substantial tax reductions, and in the main I am in favor of Secretary Mellon's recommendations. All nuisance taxes should be repealed, and married men should receive an exemption of $5,000 from the income tax. I am not, however, satisfied that such reductions cannot be made if Congress should enact an adjusted compensation bill for the veterans.

NATHAN D. PERLMAN,
Representative from New York.

Democrat.

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—I agree absolutely with Secretary Mellon's propositions, and would agree to greater reduction if possible to be made.

FRANK CLARK,
Representative from Florida.

AGAINST THE MELLON PLAN.

Republican.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—I am in favor of the reduction of incomes taxes if at all possible, but am not yet convinced that the reduction in taxes will preclude a bonus bill.

H. H. PEAVEY,
Representative from Indiana.

WASHBURN, Wis.—I am in favor of Secretary Mellon's plan to the extent of abolishing amusement and other similar small income taxes that constitute in principle a sales tax upon the people least able to pay. I will so vote. I am strongly in favor of the Wisconsin idea or principle in taxation, namely, that those best able to pay shall bear the tax burden in proportion to their ability to pay. I shall favor the retention of the surtax and even the increase, if necessary, of the schedules of higher incomes, in order to maintain the principle stated above. Secretary Mellon is an open enemy of the soldiers' bonus. I am a firm supporter. I do not know what kind of a bonus bill favored by Secretary of the Treasury is just now proposing, but I do know that I am irrevocably committed to the principle that those who made the most out of the World War should be made to pay the adjusted compensation due those who sacrificed the most to win the war. This country was not too poor in 1783 to pay George Washington and his men a bonus, and their sense of patriotism did not go so far exceed the present popular 100 per cent. veterans as to prevent them accepting a bonus. No one questions the patriotism of the boys and the G. A. R., and they were given lands and bonuses. This country was not too poor to pay its civil employes during the World War a 20 per cent. bonus, nor did their ideas of patriotism prevent its acceptance. I will fight to establish these principles into laws to the last ditch.

H. H. PEAVEY,
Representative from Wisconsin.

Democrat.

RICHMOND, Va.—Secretary Mellon is only half right. Of course, I favor his proposition to reduce taxes, but not at the expense of national duty and honor. It is not necessary to destroy the soldier bonus in order to reduce taxes. I contend, with Mr. McAdoo, that this great Government can reduce high taxes made necessary by war expenditures and at the same time pay a national debt of gratitude to the soldiers whose sacrifice gave security and value to our homes and our property. I further contend that this sold'er debt which the present hesitating Administration should have discharged nearly five years ago can be paid now without finding a single dollar. I shall advocate in Congress the feasible proposition announced by the Southern Commercial Congress in Chicago just a year ago, offering the same amortization plan which that organization brought out of Europe for our Farm Loan Banks, and on which England is now paying her debt to us. Our Government could function without England's payment of this war war obligation, but, since it is coming in, we can use it each year to more than meet our bonus obligation at the rate of $30,000,000 per annum. I count it a poor brand of personal or national honor that refuses to pay a sacred obligation to the nation's defenders because it is long past due.

WILLIAM D. UPSHAW,
Representative from Georgia.

BRITISH 'SOAP KING' WANTS FREE TRADE

Viscount Leverhulme Arrives Here on Around-the-World Trip.

RAPS BALDWIN PROGRAM

Calls Tariff Plan a Quack Political Remedy for Unemployment—Cites American Interstate Trade.

At the age of 73, rather deaf but very active, Viscount Leverhulme, the greatest soap manufacturer in the world, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic. He is on the first leg of his 35,000 miles journey round the world, during which he will visit Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan, India and Egypt. In all these countries the soap king, as he is called in England, has factories, as well as in the United States and Canada, which he will visit before sailing from Vancouver on the liner Niagara Dec. 2 for Auckland, N. Z.

Viscount Leverhulme is a short man, of medium build, clean-shaven, of ruddy complexion and silver gray hair. He wore a gray suit and overcoat, with a high-crowned gray derby hat with square top.

In a talk with the reporters Viscount Leverhulme expressed his opinion that the tariff program proposed by Premier Baldwin was just a quack political remedy for unemployment. He said he believed that Lloyd George would return to power, but was not sure that it would occur at the coming general election. Asked about the payment of the debt owed by France to England, recently discussed in the British press, Viscount Leverhulme said:

"That does not matter. England will pay her debts because that is the just and honorable thing for a nation to do. If other nations do not pay their war debts it will make no difference to England. We shall go on paying to the end."

On the subject of free trade the Viscount pointed out how the United States had benefited through free interstate commerce among its 110,000,000 people, and added:

"If you profit by this internal free trade, why not profit all the more greatly by extending it to the billion and a half people on the outside?"

Regarding prohibition, he said he believed that it would be much better to approach the liquor issue from an educational angle. "You don't make men better by removing temptation," he said. "Men must do that for themselves."

Viscount Leverhulme is accompanied on his trip by his son, the Hon. William Hulme Lever, and an old schoolfellow, Jonathan Simpson. There were also five directors of his various companies with him on the ship, of whom two will make the entire trip. The others will go as far as Vancouver and then return to England with his son by the Majestic, sailing on Dec. 15.

The Majestic was twenty-four hours late in arriving at her pier through a series of gales from the time she left Cherbourg. She brought 1,242 passengers, 6,500 sacks of mail and $2,500,000 in gold and $100,000 in silver bullion.

LADY ASTOR LECTURES DISTURBERS AT MEETING

Obliged to Climb Through a Window to Crowded Hall, She Finds Lively Opposition.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, England, Nov. 21.—In her third election fight in almost as many years Lady Astor is having her hardest political battle.

Again tonight, at the second of her campaign meetings, extraordinary scenes were witnessed when at a school room which will accommodate about three hundred people crowds of opponents and supporters sought to gain admittance.

The meeting was held in a corner of the constituency where the Labor party and Socialists are strong, and two hours before it was due to begin people were assembling. Half an hour before the proceedings commenced the doors had been closed, leaving outside a line about two hundred yards long. When Lady Astor and her friends arrived they had to gain admittance through a back street and climb through a window.

It was apparent that a big section of the opposition had secret entry into the hall, but Lady Astor at once seemed to sense their intention of making a disturbance, saying:

"If you want to turn all political meetings into a comedy, that is easy enough. Any ass can do that.

"If you really want to hear my views, and hear me try to rip up the Labor policy, be quiet. I'm not going to have my political meetings with Communists and Socialists coming in the way they did last night. It will do you far more harm than it will do me. If you are going to try to be funny, you're not going to be funny at my expense. It is so easy to be funny, but if you carry on I will turn a whole lot of you out and go myself, and the people of Plymouth will know the kind of people the Socialists and Communists are, and that they will not give everybody fair play or a decent hearing.

"If you cannot rule yourselves, how can you expect to rule the country?"

From then on the opposition was considerably quieter, but throughout her speech Lady Astor was subjected to several interruptions. Lord Astor had arrived outside the building soon after the meeting commenced, but was unable to get inside. He thereupon mounted to the top of his auto and addressed the crowd outside for about an hour.

When the meeting in the school room was over, and Lady Astor had made her departure through a window and quietly drove off in her car, the main crowd outside was still congregated around her husband.

BONAR LAW'S WILL FILED.

Document Written by Himself Leaves His Papers to Beaverbrook.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The will of Andrew Bonar Law is a characteristically simple document written in the former Prime Minister's own hand on a single sheet of Colonial Office note paper. The document is dated Aug. 1, 1916, when Mr. Bonar Law was Colonial Secretary. A codicil was executed in 1922.

According to The Daily Mail the will has not yet been admitted to probate and the amount of the estate is unknown, but the paper says the executors are Mr. Bonar Law's sister and Lord Beaverbrook. The latter, it is added, is to receive all the former Premier's papers.

COLBY BACKS ZANGWILL.

Uphold Contention That the United States as Provincial.

Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson, discussed the international situation before the Marquette Club at the Plaza last night. He upheld Israel Zangwill in his contention that the United States is provincial, and added, "There is a great percentage of truth in everything he says."

Mr. Colby indorsed the League of Nations. Asserting that Russia is tyranny in everything except in name, the speaker argued that at this time, at least, she should not be recognized by the United States. Quoting from President Wilson's Armistice Day message, Mr. Colby repeated that there must be a "spiritual revival in America," and before this country could hope to help Europe the United States must improve itself.

of a country for five years they were surely entitled to look at his qualifications, he added.

"During the last fifteen years I have been abused by everybody, and I have lost no sleep," Mr. Lloyd George declared, proceeding: "If a man goes into politics he must take these things. When a man comes forward and says, 'I am putting forward myself for the position of managing director in a concern,' a humble shareholder like myself answers, 'Well, you have been at your job five months; what have you done?' "He replies, 'Not much.'

"Then, I say, 'What have you done with the credit of the country?'

"He says, 'It has gone down?'

"Then I say, 'There is another difficulty—the settlement of Europe; what have you done with that?'

"He says, 'It has got worse.'

Then I say, 'It seems to me you are all making a mess of things,' and he replies, 'Sir, you are abusive.'"

Mr. Lloyd George asked why the Premier had chosen the moment when trade was recovering to propose to upset it once more, remarking:

"He has to explain why he thinks he can cure a shell-shocked patient by blowing a mine under his feet."

The speaker said the Tory Party always raked up the protectionist cry whenever it was in difficulties. As far back as 1885 it declared that the British iron and steel industries were being ruined by continental manufactures dumped in England. "How could the poor industries live?" they asked. Yet today the skies were crimson with the glare of blast furnaces that died forty years ago, producing more than ever.

Says Dying Industries Are Very Vital.

"They are dying with extraordinary vitality," Mr. Lloyd George said, and went on to speak of the test of the war. That showed, he said, that these dying industries were most adaptable, more responsive than any industries in any land under the sun.

"They enabled us," he said, "to lend £2,000,000,000 [nearly $10,000,000,000] to protectionist countries in Europe when would have collapsed but for the help of this free trade country. These countries, in spite of their tariffs, or with them, could not afford to pay us back today. They stood in need of borrowing money in order to buy materials in America. We did not want it. They did. America would not lend except on the credit of dying industries. The signature of a land of dying industries was necessary, and it is the only country today whose credit is sound and which is able to pay its debts."

Then, speaking of the record of the present Government, he said:

"The credit of this country has gone down since Mr. Baldwin took the job on. The value of the sovereign in American has gone down, down, down. Would it not be much better if he did the job the country wanted of him, to strengthen our credit, to restore tranquility and peace before he begins to upset the whole trade, commerce and finance of the country?"

Mr. Lloyd George had an explanation of the lack of unemployment on the Continent as compared with Great Britain. Germany, he said, lost 2,000,000 men and France 1,300,000 men in the war, while Great Britain lost only 600,000. Moreover, France found employment for large numbers of her population in restoring the devastated districts.

Then he gave figures to show that English wages were a good deal higher than those of other countries. If London wages stood at 100, those of Brussels were at 70, of Paris at 60 and of Berlin at 57. The credit of England stood far higher, as the depreciation of French and Belgian francs as compared with the sovereign showed, he said.

Declares Experts Exceed Ours.

Answering a statement that England was ruined by free trade, he said:

"Take the leading industries of this country, cotton, wool, shipping, machinery, iron and steel. We beat every country in the world in export of our own manufactures of these goods. We bought raw cotton from America. The United States exported £26,000,000 worth of cotton goods to the world. This free-trade country, which could not find employment, exported £187,000,000 worth.

"We make ships, sell them, and use them. There is only one country in the world that can sell ships. America and France cannot. We buy the material for ships wherever we can get it. The result is we get our material cheap. We are able, therefore, to pay better wages, and we can still beat them in the markets of the world. We sold £30,000,000 worth of shipping last year. The very next country to us was a country that sold only £2,000,000 worth."

Dealing with iron and steel, Mr. Lloyd George said America exported £35,000,000 worth to Great Britain's £61,000,000, and he then asked how British shipping could be maintained and the great ports of this little island, Glasgow, Liverpool, Cardiff, Swansea, Bristol, Plymouth, London, Hull, Sunderland, Newcastle kept up if imports were to be restricted.

Let them cut down imports, he said, and some of the exports were bound to go. The cotton trade of Lancashire was the great export trade, and in order to "keep home fires burning" they were to break up ships. It was like a drunken man who broke up his furniture and flung it into the grate.

The Liberal remedy for unemployment, he said, was to use the nation's credit to provide remunerative employment for the worker until he could apply himself to his own trade. The policy was to restore credit first and to use it afterward; the real remedy was peace, settled peace, in the Central Europe, and trade would look after itself.

Report Baldwin Changes Better.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—As the election campaign proceeds the prospects for the Conservatives, with their new policy of protection, appear to be brightening, mainly because there is yet no sign of co-operation between the Liberal and Labor parties, to avoid mutually destructive tactics in the constituencies.

This antagonism between the two free trade parties, so far as the speeches are concerned, centres on the question of a capital levy, which is as hotly denounced by the Liberals as by the Conservative speakers. For example, Sir John Simon at Cleckheaton, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, tonight declared that a capital levy as a cure for unemployment was as fantastic as a general tariff.

These attacks from Liberal platforms compel the Labor speakers in defense to keep to the front the feature of their program, namely, a capital levy, which they would otherwise prefer not to emphasize in the present campaign. It is true some of the Labor organs assert that for every vote they lose through advocacy of a capital levy they will gain ten votes among the working classes, who will not be affected by the levy; but since the idea of a levy frightens the whole business community and the middle classes, the Labor leaders themselves are not anxious to push it to the fore.

H. G. Wells, the writer, who is contesting London University in the Labor interest, strongly emphasizes in his election address the cleavage between the Liberal and Labor parties. He says that the Liberal party offers no remedies whatever for unemployment, but simply opposes the remedies suggested by both Conservative and Labor parties.

"That," declares Mr. Wells, "in the face of our present needs is a monstrously cruel and cowardly policy."

Mr. Wells supports a capital levy, which he describes as "a special conscription of credit from rich men for the general need in a time of profound economic distress."

Liberal Reconciliation Firmer.

While the Liberals and Laborites are thus increasingly at loggerheads, the reconciliation among the Liberals themselves is becoming more strongly cemented. A piquant incident today illustrated this reconciliation. During the Liberals' feud with Mr. Lloyd George, while the former Premier was so closely identified with the Conservatives in the coalition, the National Liberal Club of London, which is the home of Asquithian Liberalism, voted the removal of portraits of Mr. Lloyd George and Winston Spencer Churchill from the dining room of the club and these portraits were accordingly relegated to the basement of the buiding. Today the committee of the club unanimously voted their restoration to their former place of honor in the dining room.

Asked whether his proposed tariff could be revised with the budget each year, Premier Baldwin told his questioner at a political meeting that such a revision would always be possible. When experience suggested that a change was desirable, he added, it would be made, although it was important for trade that revisions should be effected neither frequently nor arbitrarily.

Only about 250,000 persons in Great Britain, it is estimated, have fortunes large enough to be touched by the capital levy proposed by the Labor Party, according to a statement issued by that party in explanation of how the levy would operate.

Fortunes of £5,000 would be exempt, and £5,000 of every estate exceeding that amount would also be free. The proposed scale of the levy increases progressively from 5 per cent. on fortunes over £5,000 and under £6,000 to 60 per cent. on those exceeding £1,000,000. The unfortunate owner of capital amounting to but not exceeding a million would suddenly find himself deprived of more than half his wealth, as £1,000,000 would be taxed at the rate of 50.3 per cent.; but the opinion may be hasarded that the suffering under this schedule would not be very widespread.

Horne Defends Protection.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Sir Robert Horne told a Conservative audience at Glasgow today that the statement that the free trade finance of this country "won the war has been repeated so often that it is now mumbled like a creed in a liturgy. It is entirely false. Germany, a protectionist country, had to finance Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey. We only won the war by the support of the finances of France and America, both protectionist countries."

BALDWIN PAPERS SHIFTING.

Rothermere and Beaverbrook Show Signs of Abandoning Party.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Lord Rothermere has announced that he will publish in The Sunday Pictorial next Sunday an article by himself on "Should Free Trade Have Another Chance?"

How he will decide is, of course, only known to himself, and possibly may be altered by the events of the next few days. The Star dryly remarks tonight that "he has three days to make up his mind," and a good deal may happen in that time; but it would be a surprise if he came out against protection.

The editorial policy of The Daily Mail has been puzzling greatly those who remember its traditions as a Conservative, imperialist and tariff reform organ. Yesterday it published a leader on Anglo-French relations headed, "Are We to Break With France?" and declaring that a vote for the Baldwin Government might be a vote for quarreling with France and breaking with her. And today the Government's proposals for helping agriculture are denounced as "fooling the farmers again," as they were fooled when the Lloyd George Government repealed the wartime Corn Production act. Neither of these editorials seemed to be of a nature to be expected from a Government supporter in the midst of the election campaign.

In the same way Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express has given the politicians food for thought. Beaverbrook has always been more thorough-going a protectionist than the Premier and has chided him for his hesitation to tax food imports in order to make imperial preference more effective. In the last few days, however, Lord Beaverbrook seems to have taken a step forward in his mental processes, and this makes him waver like Lord Rothermere in his support of the Government. The development of the British Empire comes first in his mind, not the cure of unemployment at home, consequently, on Monday The Express said editorially:

"The man who advocates a full imperial policy may be a better patriot than another who limits his creed to home production," and this morning it doubts whether "topsided protection" is worth the abandonment of Bonar Law's tranquility. Moreover, it dwells very kindly on the proposals in the Liberal Party program for shipping subsidies to benefit the dominions, and goes so far as to extend its blessing to any man who votes for that idea if it seems to him to meet imperial needs.

In fact, it seems as though both Rothermere and Beaverbrook, in the middle of the fight, were wondering whether they had not better change their political allegiance. The importance of their decision lies in their owning between them the only cheap morning and the two evening London newspapers which have been advocating the Government cause, as well as a number of important journals in the provinces. Without them the Government would lose a great deal of its newspaper support.

HOLD CROSSINGS HEARING.

Long Island Railroad Agrees to Co-operate in Eliminating Risks.

Assurances that the Long Island Railroad would co-operate in eliminating dangerous grade crossings within the limits of this city were given yesterday by its representative, Alfred A. Gardner, to the Transit Commission at a hearing at which a summary of a report by Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness was read, showing that 221 persons were killed and 390 injured on the forty grade crossings in New York since July, 1907. The railroad conceded that the dangerous Atlantic Avenue grade crossing in East New York should be eliminated.

Mr. Gardner said the company was willing to eliminate dangerous grade crossings to an extent consistent with its resources. He estimated that it would require $1,000,000 to do away with the East New York grade crossing. He said the plans of the railroad contemplated four tracks instead of two at that point.

Chairman McAneny said the amounts fixed by the Legislature allowed expenditure of $2,000,000 in the current year for this work. He pointed out that the report of Commissioner Harkness indicated that the Long Island grade crossings were the most dangerous and should be the first to be removed.

Representatives of civic organizations and of the offices of the Borough Presidents of Kings and Queens and city engineers attended the hearing.

CHANGE RENT PLAN VIEWS.

Community Council Board Now Calls Mutualization Project Commercial.

At a meeting of the Governing Board of the City Parliament of the Community Council held in the Municipal Building last night, at which Daniel De Harned presided, the board adopted a resolution requesting the City Parliament to allow the board to withdraw their recommendation endorsing the Walter Russell plan of rent mutualization. This plan had been submitted at the meeting held last Wednesday night and had been approved. Subsequent investigation by Jabes E. Dunningham of the Governing Board led the board to change its decision on the ground that it does not wish to be connected with any commercialized plan. There were sixteen out of twenty-one members present and the vote to recall the endorsement was unanimous.

The Russell plan was intended to reduce rent rates throughout town, particularly for artists, by providing for mutual ownership of apartment houses.

Gets $2,500 Verdict for Pint of Blood

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—A jury today awarded Miss Leona P. Standiford $2,500 for a pint of blood she had given in an unsuccessful effort to save the life of Mrs. G. P. Hilliard of Santa Rosa, Cal. Although the patient promised she would be well paid, Miss Standiford said, Mr. Hilliard had given her only $5. She testified that the loss of blood made her ill, and that she spent $500 for medical treatment.

126 ARE INDICTED IN LIQUOR RING

Savannah Federal Grand Jury Names Men From All Over Country, It Is Said.

WIDE CONSPIRACY CHARGED

"Only the Beginning," Say Washington Officials of Campaign on Bootleggers.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 21.—Indictments returned by the Federal Grand Jury yesterday include 126 defendants in various parts of the United States, according to a statement today by Charles L. Redding, Assistant United States District Attorney. It was stated that forty to fifty indictments were returned.

Mr. Redding said the indictments involved charges of conspiracy to violate the national dry law, shipping, transportation, possession and importing of liquor.

Names of those indicted were not revealed, but it was said arrests would be made soon.

The Grand Jury's action was regarded by Federal officials here as one of the hardest blows in prohibition enforcement in this section. No details of the investigations leading to the indictments were available here.

Government Plans a Great "Clean-Up."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—As a consequence of the liquor raids and resulting wholesale indictments by the Grand Jury at Savannah, an official spokesman declared tonight that the Government is prepared to comb the entire Eastern seaboard and confidently expects the gathering in "of those who have financed one of the most gigantic combinations known, either legally or illegally."

The Savannah indictments were described as "only the beginning." Others are to follow, it was stated, as fast as information obtained at Savannah can be made effective in other parts of the country as far west as Pittsburgh.

During the investigation at Savannah, it was said, Federal agents were supplied, with information gleaned from witnesses and were set at work at once in following new clues. Some of these, it was stated, have provided the Department of Justice with evidence of new combinations and conspiracies and underground connections with the alleged ring developed in the Savannah inquiry.

The clues developed have led mainly to New York, Philadelphia, the Chesapeake Capes and Charleston, S. C., but between these points and into the interior as far as Pittsburgh the chain of evidence has been found to be unbroken, and the operatives who have been delving into the conspiracies feel that they can uncover soon "some widely known persons who hitherto have been able to keep in the background."

The department declined to hint at the identity of any of the persons indicated at Savannah, but the statement was made that the indictments could be considered as important from the standpoint of those about whom the Government agents are striving to tighten their nets.

Officials explained that the evidence regarding rum runners and smugglers involved some foreigners resident in the United States. These largely were English and Canadians, it was added, but the testimony obtained provided the Government with definite facts as to methods employed by all rum runners in getting the contraband ashore. In this respect, it was stated, the information had been highly important to the prohibition enforcement corps.

William J. Burns, Chief of the department's Bureau of Investigation, said the Government was prepared to continue "at the bat," and that the entering wedge of the clean-up program had been successful. Working under direction of Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Burns has laid out a winter's work in stamping out illicit liquor dealing. He asserted that the plans should be sufficient to convince any one of the Government's intention to enforce the dry law.

FEAR BOOTLEG ASSASSINS.

Maryland League Agents Hear $10,000 Death Fund Is Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Jonathan Paul and J. H. Estes, Anti-Saloon League agents, today told Federal authorities that threats had been made against their lives and that of Michael Subsern, another agent, and that they had learned local bootleggers had collected a $10,000 fund for the employment of gunmen.

The two men, who have figured in several exciting raids on clubs and hotels recently, appealed to Morton P. Fisher, Assistant United States District Attorney, for protection and aid in arresting the men they said were plotting against them. Authorities in Washington have also been asked to aid in the hunt.

Paul told Mr. Fisher that he received a letter yesterday purporting to be from a friend which stated that the assassins intend to lay in wait for him in front of his home with knives and pistols. Estes said he received a telephone call today from an unknown man, who warned him he had only twenty-four hours to live unless he got out of town.

Paul and Estes are members of the Washington flying squad working from the office of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League.

Alderman Collins, Welcoming Hotel Men, Thus Describes Volstead Act.

Hotel men from all parts of the world, who are here to attend the annual Hotel Men's Show in the Grand Central Palace, were welcomed by Acting President of the Board of Aldermen William T. Collins on the steps of City Hall yesterday afternoon. In his address of welcome Mr. Collins said:

"The City of New York extends to the overseas hotel men a hearty welcome to our shores and its sincere good wishes for a pleasant and profitable stay in our midst. You are here to attend the International Hotel Congress, which commenced on Monday last in this city, and you bring to the hotel men of America the experience and the outlook of hoteldom from many countries of Europe, as well as Far Eastern Egypt and Japan.

"Upon many of these splendid structures art has exhausted its skill and wealth, its treasury, not only to secure in the highest degree every form of physical comfort, but where many fields of intellectual activity find expression amid artistic development and superb settings and surroundings. There is, however, one discordant note, or rather one 'lost chord,' in the perfection of hoteldom, one jarring tone of governmental regulation to which I trust you will give earnest and absorbing thought, looking to its amelioration. It is a question which not only concerns you, as splendid hosts and entertainers, but which concerns every liberty-loving person who seeks rest and refreshment under your roofs. I feel that nothing will be left undone by you to repair the evils of a fantastic lunacy which recently found its flower and fruitage in the half per cent. restrictions of Volstead.

"Maybe a modification can be had which would at least legally permit your chefs to flavor our soups with a little sherry and plum pudding with a little brandy sauce during the holiday season, in order that we may make merry during that festive time with something besides lemonade or Croton water."

Dry Ohio Town Suspects a Wet Plot

WESTERVILLE, Ohio, Nov. 21.—Westerville, "the dry capital of the world," is searching for the "instigators of a wet plot." Ballot boxes have been placed in prominent spots in Westerville with written invitations to every one to vote on repeal or modification of prohibition, and enforcement or repeal of "blue laws." Anti-Saloon League men declare it is a deliberate attempt to make it appear that Westerville is voting wet, and have advised the people to ignore the ballots entirely.

NEW DEVICE SPEEDS LIQUOR TO SEWERS

Marshal Invents a Crusher and Deputies Make Quick Work of 20,000 Bottles.

A bottle crusher, working with the speed of a stone crusher, had to be used yesterday by United States Marshal William Hecht and his men, pressed into service as bottle breakers, to destroy $75,000 worth of liquor in 20,000 bottles at the Knickerbocker Warehouse, 6 First Street.

While this work of destruction was in progress prohibition agents made a raid on the offices of a moving van company, where they seized $100,000 worth of liquor. At the same time the Coast Guard dispatched another cutter to points off the New Jersey coast to help other Federal boats in their effort to stem the tide of holiday liquor. Agents aided by State troopers seized 325 cases of liquor and arrested five men at Hammonton, N. J.

Marshal Hecht and his men sent the last of the large quantity of contraband liquor at the Knickerbocker Warehouse into the sewer after several hours' work. The quantity to be destroyed was so great that ordinary methods of dumping were found inadequate. The Marshal finally decided to improvise some method of crushing the bottles.

Deputies set a hogshead on end. In the bottom of it they made a hole and inserted a funnel which emptied into the sewer. They placed a screen in the bottom of the hogshead and over the open top of the hogshead they laid iron pipes. Then all they had to do was to throw the bottles into the hogshead. They were smashed as they hit the iron pipes, and the fragments and contents of the broken bottles dropped into the bottom of the hogshead.

With such a device it was only a question of how many bottles a deputy could throw upon the grating. They were soon going at top speed. The dumping of the liquor was attended by some excitement in the street, the warehouse being but 50 feet from the Bowery, and a crowd soon gathered.

Marshal Hecht said that resort to the bottle-breaking device had been forced upon him by the increased amount of destruction that has devolved upon his force. Thousands of dollars worth of malt and spirituous products are being destroyed daily at the Army Base, Brooklyn, and at the Knickerbocker Warehouse.

The seizure of 3,000 gallons of Italian and French vermouth, 700 cases of gin, several thousand vases of wine and several cases of whisky, valued at $100,000, was made by Prohibition Agents Friedenberg, Kanter and Kerrigan, under Assistant Divisional Prohibition Chief William J. Brennan in a raid on a six-story warehouse of Baird & Daniels, 143 West Broadway. The agents explained that when they said they desired to store some furniture an employe told them they could buy liquor if they wanted some. One of the agents was sent for a search warrant and the raid followed. Julius Strauss, 1 Union Place, Brooklyn, a shipping clerk, was arrested.

The same agents earlier in the morning seized 105 half barrels of beer and arrested Irving Kass of 260 Watkins Street, Brooklyn, alleged owner, in a garage at 213 Water Street. Before the raid the three agents chased a truck twnty blocks, seized it and sixty half barrels of beer, and arrested the driver and helper.

At Hammonton, N. J., six men were arrested and 325 cases of liquor were seized by prohibition agents and State troopers. Among those arrested was Jack Leeds, driver of a jitney bus used to carry Hammonton pupils to and from school. In the bus the agents said they found seventy-five cases of liquor. Leeds was held in $1,000 bail, in default of which he was locked up in the Hammonton Jail.

"AULD SCOTTIE" IN COURT.

Cases of It Piled High at the Kessler Liquor Trial.

Liquor cases were stacked high in the court room of Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow in the Federal Building yesterday morning when the trial of Emanuel H. Kessler and eighteen other defendants was resumed. The defendants, including six former prohibition agents, are charged with conspiring to violate the Volstead act and to defraud the Government of internal revenue.

Most of the cases were filled. Some were marked "Sparkling Wine" and others bore the labels of "Auld Scottie Whiskey." On the cases was the name of "Hartmann, Goldsmith & Co.," importers, who have been mentioned as the owners of liquor stored in the Republic Storage Warehouse, from which Kessler and the other defendants are alleged to have removed 4,900 cases of whisky and 295 cases of champagne illegally.

Former Judge William M. K. Olcott, of counsel for the defense, protested to the court against the display of the liquor.

"I am feeling close to being outraged," said Mr. Olcott. "This morning I am confronted with a dozen cases bearing the name of Hartman, Goldsmith & Co. It won't do for the learned District Attorney to say he is not violating the ethics under which I have been brought up. The liquor could be put in the lobby or the ante-room. I want to lodge a protest at this method of exhibiting in advance alleged damaging evidence before it is admitted as evidence."

The course of the Government was defended by Assistant United States Attorney John Holley Clark Jr. and the liquor was permitted to remain in the court room.

Stephen C. Duryea, a customs inspector, testified that he has inspected the Republic Warehouse on several occasions. Melvin A. Teppin, customs broker, 36 Wall Street, testified that he had arranged for the importation of 4,900 cases of liquor by Hartman, Goldsmith & Co.

Among the other witnesses was Albert J. Rorent, a Pinkerton detective. He testified that he had questioned Mark Aron and Millard J. Friedberg, defendants, in the offices of Hartman, Goldsmith & Co.

The trial was adjourned until this morning at 10 o'clock.

PUTS BOOTLEGGER IN JAIL.

Massachusetts Judge Refuses Police Chief's Plea for Fine Only.

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 21.—William J. Sullivan of West Beach, Beverly Farms, was sentenced to six months in the house of correction and fined $500 by Judge Sears in the District Court here today for rum running. He appealed and bonds were set at $1,000.

A suggestion from Police Chief Hayes of Beverly that the sentence be a fine and the forfeiture of he liquor seized brought this reply from Judge Sears:

"I am not going to be a party to any such agreement. They keep on running liquor in here by the boatload and small fines are not going to stop it. What does a small fine amount to, anyway, to one of these fellows? Let the other courts do what they want to about the case on appeal, I will impose the maximum penalty."

$30,000 LIQUOR SEIZURE.

Officer of a Movie Corporation Is Arrested in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 21.—Joseph W. Engel, senior Vice President of the Metro Pictures Corporation, was arrested here late today in connection with the seizure of a consignment of liquor valued at $30,000.

It is alleged to have been shipped to him from New York.

The liquor, it was charged, was shipped from New York in a packing case labelled "Motion picture films—handle with care."

The box was billed from "H. Franklin, Metro Pictures Corporation, 1,540 Broadway, New York." A telegraphic warrant for the arrest of "H. Franklin" was dispatched.

Engle was released on $3,000 bail, and 20 days' stay in the hearing was granted.

Seize 40,000 Gallons of Hard Cider.

BURLINGTON, Conn., Nov. 21.—Prohibition agents yesterday seized 40,000 gallons of cider on the farm of Elliot Alderman and arrested Alderman and his two sons, who are charged with violating the State prohibition law. The cider is described by the agents as "hard." They left 20,000 gallons of sweet cider. It is the largest seizure of the kind on record in the State.

Yuletide Tales and Modern Pens

By Henry Van Dyke

What is Christmas and what is a Christmas story? Dr. Van Dyke answers both questions in an article on the "Old-Fashioned Christmas" and this age of excitement.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING AFTER AUTO CRASH

Car Hits Stone Pillar and Two Are Hurled Through Windshield.

WOMAN KILLED IN ROAD

Run Down by Machine Driven by Publisher's Wife—Motor Truck Collision Kills One.

A wild automobile ride across the Harlem River on the Willis Avenue bridge before dawn yesterday led to the death of one man and the probable fatal injury of another when their car dashed into a stone pillar at the Manhattan approach to the bridge. Thomas O'Brien, 21, of 344 East 136th Street, and Patrick Ryan, 27, of 344 East 142d Street were hurled from the front seat through the windshield by the impact. They were taken to Harlem Hospital, where O'Brien died soon after. Ryan's skull was fractured and he was hurt internally. Ryan was made a prisoner on a charge of intoxication.

Three other occupants of the car, Walter Joyce, 25, of 232 Willis Avenue, and John and James Quinn, 23 and 27 years old respectively, of 349 East 139th Street, were hurled to the roadway, but were unhurt.

Miss Augusta Kolsam, 23 years old, of 2,183 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx, was instantly killed late Tuesday night when she was run over by an automobile on Mamaroneck Road, White Plains. Mrs. Elisabeth Foss, wife of Martin L. Foss, a publisher, who lives in the Gedney Farms section of White Plains, was driving the car to the railroad station to meet her husband. She placed the body of the young woman in her automobile and drove to the White Plains Hospital, but the surgeons said that Miss Kolsam had died of a fractured skull. Later Mrs. Foss was paroled in the custody of Edward H. Cravall, proprietor of the Gedney Farms Hotel, pending an inquest by Coroner Fitzgerald.

John Kerr, 45, of 111 Ash Street, Yonkers, died in St. John's Hospital yesterday of injuries received the night before when his car collided with a motor truck on Yonkers Avenue.

Hurled against the broken windshield of his automobile after it had rammed a tree on the New York Road near the White Horse Pike at Hammonton, N. J., last night, Antonio Pinto, who for the last fifteen years was constable of Hammonton, died instantly. His jugular vein was almost severed by broken glass. Three other persons in the automobile were only slightly injured.

Eugene Kane of 10 Clermont Avenue, Brooklyn, was seriously injured when he was knocked down by an automobile at Myrtle and Vanderbilt Avenues. He was taken to the Cumberland Street Hospital.

Miss Sarah E. Hanley, 34, secretary to Louis C. Tiffany, 27 East Seventy-second Street, suffered a broken collarbone yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which she was riding with Charles Tiffany, son of her employer, was struck by a surface car in Twenty-third Street, near Fifth Avenue. She was removed to New York Hospital.

Usher Silverstein of 1,466 Forty-second Street, Brooklyn, was cut on the head and bruised yesterday when he was knocked down by a motor truck at Fulton Street and Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. He was attended by a surgeon from Cumberland Street Hospital.

William P. Quinn, who gave the address 157 Fifth Avenue, was locked up in the Queensboro Bridge Station last night on charges of intoxication, assault and driving without a license, after the motor truck he was driving on the bridge had crashed into a hearse. Frank J. Balsky of 1,440 First Avenue, driver of the hearse, and his assistant, James O'Neill of 1,219 Third Avenue, were thrown from the hearse and severely injured. They were taken to the Reception Hospital.

D. C. BORDEN RESIGNS AS BANK EXAMINER

Chief Federal Expert in New York Takes a Position With the National City Bank.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Daniel C. Borden, chief national bank examiner in New York, resigned today to accept a post with the National City Bank.

Administration officials declared that in his resignation the Government has lost one of the best of its technical experts in the national bank examination system. Mr. Borden received a salary of $16,500 from the Federal Government. This is considerably higher than many Federal officials receive—higher than the pay of Cabinet officers—but too low to hold Mr. Borden in the Government service in view of the offer made him by the New York bank.

The case of Mr. Borden is pointed to as an illustration of the fact that the Federal Government cannot hold the services of experts after it has trained them. The Department of Agriculture has lost a number of its best scientists, the Reclamation Service some of its finest engineers, and the Treasury has been a veritable training school for financial experts.

ARABS RIOT IN JAFFA; TWO LEADERS JAILED

Moslems and Christians Unite in Opposing Electric Light Contract With Jewish Firm.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 21.—There is considerable agitation among the Jaffa Arabs owing to the action of the municipality in making a contract for the supply of electricity from the Rutenberg installation. The Moslem and Christian Arab Association is organizing opposition to this, and two of its leaders, who refused to give guarantees for their good behavior, yesterday were sent to prison for six months.

The electric light standard in the main thoroughfare of Jaffa has been broken, and after an unsuccessful demonstration in favor of shutting the shops as a protest against the arrest of these two leaders the Arabs cut off the meat supply for the Jewish slaughter house.

Yesterday the Arab executive in Jerusalem published a violently worded proclamation against the new National Arab Party, accusing it of splitting the Arab solidarity, of abetting the Jewish settlement, and of aiding the mandatory Government.

The new National Arab Party held a meeting yesterday to arrange the details of its organization.

WRITERS ARE DIVORCED.

Action by Patience Cole Against Robert Cole Veiled in Secrecy.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser today granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to Mrs. Patience B. Cole from Robert Cole, both engaged in magazine and newspaper work. Efforts were made to keep the suit a secret, but it was said an unidentified woman who visited the Cole home on Long Island figured in the case. Neither Mr. Cole nor his former wife could be located yesterday. Albert W. Gray of 111 Broadway, counsel for Mrs. Cole, was not at his office when an effort was made to interview him.

SAYS MEN UNDER 40 WOULD FIX EUROPE

Dr. M. Cary Thomas Found That 'Elder Statesmen' Were Causing the Trouble Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Men under 40 are better equipped to settle the world's acute political and economic problems than those over 60, according to Dr. M. Carey Thomas, President Emeritus of Bryn Mawr College.

She expressed that opinion today in recounting the impressions she obtained during her recent sixteen months' tour of Europe and the Orient.

Miss Thomas is strongly in favor of the United States joining the League of Nations as a result of what she saw and heard abroad. She believes this nation should stand with Great Britain in guaranteeing France from attack, and also that aid of the American people is urgently needed in the Near and Far East.

Her statement, given out at her residence on the Bryn Mawr College grounds, follows:

"Elder statesmen are a great mistake."

"I believe that if the men in control of affairs in this country and abroad were under 40 instead of over 60, the world would not be in its present condition, and as far as I am concerned, I am going to try to confine my activities to applauding and backing up the younger generation.

"I believe in the present generation planning the things it has to put through.

"Traveling in Europe and Asia for sixteen continuous months gives one an impression of the world totally different from that we have as stay-at-home Americans. It is not only what a globe-trotting American sees of different countries; it is the imaginative conception that somehow comes of the people of the country.

"I have come, for my own part, to be absolutely sure that it is the duty and also to the profit of the United States to delay no longer, but to use her great moral and financial power to the utmost to help to solve the many pressing problems that must be solved if the world, as we know it, is to go on. It seems to me our first duty to enter the League of Nations, to which fifty-four nations already belong, including the Free State of Ireland and Abyssinia, which joined it this Summer. And there is every reason to believe that as soon as Germany and Russia apply they will be admitted. In the Council and on all the committees a place for the United States is still kept vacant in the hope that we shall fill it.

"In Paris I saw a number of people who were on their way back from the annual meeting of the League of Nations held last September and October at Geneva. They one and all told me that the Italian-Greek difficulty, which seemed to outsiders such a blow to the League of Nations, was really a magnificent tribute to its strength and power of public opinion organized with the League, to which even Mussolini found he must bow.

"I was in Constantinople in the Summer of 1922, living in the villa I had rented on the Bosporus, when the British battleships steamed past my windows as a demonstration to the victorious Anatolian Turks that they could not come back into Europe. If we had been there to stand by Great Britain, one of the greatest and most beautiful cities of the world could have been saved for civilization. Also all our American schools and missions, to which the lives of American teachers and American dollars have been given for half a century, could have carried on their beneficial educational work. Now it will soon all come to an end."

ASKS GOULD FUND RULING.

Jersey Bank Answers Second Wife's Demand for Interest on $1,000,000.

The Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey filed an answer in the Chancery Court at Trenton yesterday to the petition made recently by Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, second wife of the late George J. Gould, who asked the Court to compel the trust company to pay her the interest on $1,000,000 in 3½ per cent Liberty bonds transferred to her account by Mr. Gould shortly before his death. The unpaid interest to date is $17,500.

The trust company company said it had refused to pay the interest to Mrs. Gould because Kingdon Gould, son of George Gould by his first wife and co-executor of the estate, had claimed the bonds and their income for the estate; because the company wishes the Court to pass upon its right to pay the interest to Mrs. Gould, and because it wants the Court to determine the ownership of the bonds.

The papers show that Mrs. Gould established a trust fund for herself and her three infant children some months before Mr. Gould's death. Later, Mr. Gould, then in France, wrote to the trust company ordering it to transfer the $1,000,000 in bonds it held to his account to Mrs. Gould's trust fund. Five days after Mr. Gould died George J. Gillespie, counsel for Kingdon Gould, notified the company that he claimed the bonds on behalf of the estate.

The trust company asked the Court to adjudicate the matter so that everyone involved be compelled to abide by the decision. It asked that all interested persons become party to the action. This is expected to result in the issuance of a subpoena upon Kingdon Gould, and the filing of an answer by him so that a court fight over the transfer seems sure.

SENTENCED UNDER WAR ACT

Chicagoan Bought Goods, Pretending to Be Soviet Agent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Max Schmallman, formerly a glove manufacturer and father of ten children, was sentenced to Leavenworth Prison for two years and fined $2,000 by Federal Judge Cliffe today on one count of a charge that he falsely represented himself as an agent of the Russian Soviet Government and gave orders for several million dollars' worth of merchandise to American manufacturers and dealers.

On the second count he was sentenced to serve one year and fined $1,000 for failing to notify the Secretary of State of his intentions. The charges were made under the Espionage act.

Schmallman, who pleaded guilty, admitting that he was not a Russian Government representative, nevertheless said that he had given the orders for Russian merchants. The orders included 1,000,000 women's dresses, 1,000,000 pairs of shoes, 350,000 children's dresses, 1,000,000 overcoats and 5,000 motor trucks.

The firms to which he gave the orders, and which were said to have paid him commissions, failed to find the merchants to whom the goods were to be shipped and shipments were not made.

STRIKE HALTS PARIS MILK.

Police Organize Deliveries for Children.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Paris and the suburbs had to go without milk this morning, and black coffee was the rule at breakfast because of a strike of the milk handlers for higher wages.

The police organized emergency delivery crews and supplied automobiles in an effort to provide milk for the children by noon. Milk stations about the city thus got some of the usual supply, but virtually no house deliveries were made.

Rob Oklahoma Bank of $1,000.

LIVERMORE EXPECTS RECORD RAIL YEAR

Big Part of $3,000,000,000 Lost by Investors in 15 Years Will Be Recovered, He Says.

PUTS HOPE IN CONGRESS

Wall Street Operator Sees Confidence Restored in Consolidations Planned for 1924.

Investors in American railway securities next year will recover a substantial part of approximately $3,000,000,000 which has been lost during the last fifteen years, according to opinion expressed by Jesse L. Livermore, stock market operator, at a testimonial dinner given to him by his friends on Tuesday night. The details of Mr. Livermore's remarks were made public yesterday.

In addition to commenting on the outlook for the railroads, Mr. Livermore discussed business conditions in general. He said:

"In the district east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac are located the greatest number of our steel mills, locomotive works and car building plants; 1923 was the first year since the European war started that the American railroads bought more than their pre-war steel tonnage. The great activity in these plants, the automobile and building industries have given full employment to the American workman at high wages.

"Under these conditions these prosperous workers have bought more beef and pork products, more chickens and eggs, more milk, more bread, butter and cheese at prices generally higher than pre-war prices. The Department of Agriculture recently estimated the total farm income from the crops just harvested at over $1,000,000,000 more than last year.

All Up to Congress.

"Whether that estimate becomes a fact will depend largely on how the incoming Congress deals with the railroads. Calamity-howlers, both political and statistical, say because wheat is low we must lower railroad rates, destroy railroad credit, throw our busy workmen into idleness. This is one sure way to lower the price of wheat, corn, cattle, cotton, wool and everything else the farmers have to sell.

"Agriculture, transportation and industry can prosper together, but not at each other's expense. I do not believe that the common sense of the American people will stand for any such destructive program.

"While demagogues attempt to befog the farmer and workingman by vote-bribing attacks on the railroads, all realize today more than ever before that good prices, good wages and profitable business can only exist when there is a square deal for all.

"Farming, railroading and industry make up the brotherhood of American economies. For one to prosper they all must prosper.

"It has been very popular for several years for certain politicians to lay the blame for the farmer's misfortune on the poor railroads. The railroad investor, like the wheat farmer, has had some very severe losses. The only difference is that the wheat farmer has been losing for three years and the railroad investor for fifteen.

New Confidence in Railroads.

"Bears on the stock market and professional tipsters predict that Congress will do something to the railroads. It seems to me, on the other hand, the Congress will do something for the railroads. It will do the very thing that E. H. Harriman, the most farsighted of all our railroad leaders, tried to do in the days when railroad stocks were the favorites of American investors.

"Congress is going to do everything it can to induce the railroads to consolidate. Therefore, I believe that in 1924 there will be a restoration of confidence in American railroads. New bridges, new extensions, double-tracking and terminal expansion will follow, with the result that the American workingman will remain fully employed at good wages, and the farmer will get in cash the billion-dollar increase over 1922, now only estimated by the Department of Agriculture, and the investor in American railroad stocks will recover a considerable part of over $3,000,000,000 which he has lost in the last fifteen years."

DISPUTE RIO GRANDE CLAIM.

British Say Mills Report to Washington Had a Sinister Effect.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The British claim against the United States in the Rio Grande dispute before the Anglo-American arbitration tribunal rests upon the contention that the litigation started by the American Government to dispossess the original British company was not initiated with a bona fide intention of protecting the navigability of the Rio Grande.

It will be argued that as soon as forfeiture of the rights of the British concern had been obtained the American Government proceeded to construct a much larger dam in almost the same spot as the original company had proposed and impounded ten times as much water as the British project would have taken. The British Government will also argue that General Anson Mills, who was a member of the Mexican Boundary Commission, made a report on the matter to Washington which exercised "a sinister influence" upon the course taken by the American Government. It will bring up attacks which the General made on Dr. Nathan Boyd, an American, who had acquired a large interest in the British company, and "vituperations" which Mills is alleged to have cast upon Boyd.

The tribunal is expected to deliver a decision on Friday on a motion to dismiss the case on the ground that there is no substantial interest in the original company now held by British subjects.

IN COURT ON STRETCHER.

Cripple Testifies in His $100,000 Damage Suit Over Accident.

Lying on a stretcher which was wheeled into the Supreme Court in the Bronx yesterday, Charles R. Olson, 25 years old, of 768 Fox Street, the Bronx, former cross-country runner for the Bronx Church House, testified in support of his suit for $100,000 damages from the Metal Package Corporation, in the Pershing Square Building. Olson suffered a fracture of the spinal column when a street car he was operating collided with an auto truck of the defendant corporation at Tremont and Mapes Avenues, the Bronx, on Nov. 27, 1922.

Olson is paralyzed from the waist down and he burst into tears while telling his story, and the Court offered to suspend for a time so that he might regain his composure. Olson said he preferred to go on and have the matter over with. The plaintiff is married and the father of a boy.

Nansen Relief to Russia Stops.

Sending of food and clothing drafts and of relief packages to individuals in Russia has been discontinued by the Nansen Relief Commission, it was announced yesterday. The service, inaugurated when the American Relief Administration stopped sending drafts, has been suspended because the stock of food purchased for the purpose has been exhausted. Because the general relief work of the mission is in process of liquidation, it was decided not to replenish the supply.

HEAD OF FOUNDERS URGES 'OPEN SHOP'

William H. Barr Tells Convention It Is Only Way to Bring Down Building Costs.

ATTACKS TRADE UNIONS

Charging Them With Brigandage, He Blames Them for Soaring Price of Construction.

The open shop in the building industry is the only thing that can bring down excessive building costs, William H. Barr, President of the National Founders' Association, declared yesterday in an address at the annual convention at the Hotel Astor.

"That extravagant building costs directly governing ever-increasing rentals are brought about by the brigandage of the building trade unions is recognized by all and denied by none," he asserted. "Apparently the only answer to this problem is the absolute necessity for the adoption of the 'open shop' policy of employment in this troubled industry.

"There is manifest in all industrial centres a steadily increasing acceptance of the principle of 'open shop' operation, and it is equally true that these gains have shown a corresponding weakening influence in the ranks of organized labor. I believe this statement may be uniformly accepted and applied to most industries except the mines, the building trades and the railroads.

"Unfortunately, Governor Pinchot's adjustment of the difficulties in the anthracite fields served only to strengthen the union control of the mines and to increase the price of coal for domestic consumption. The settlement was as unwarranted as it was uneconomic.

"The possibility of cheaper railway transportation is again jeopardized by recent demands on the part of the brotherhoods for an increase in wages, which, if granted, would put them back on the unjustified and profligate scale of governmental wartime operation.

"Will Congress reduce our taxes? The answer is 'yes,' provided there is no bonus legislation, and if there is an observance of the strict economy in governmental operation which President Coolidge and the Cabinet are urging."

Other speakers included Magnus W. Alexander of the National Industrial Conference Board; James A. Emery and Dr. Paul Smith of the American Motion-Picture Corporation.

At the dinner of the association last night stereopticon views entitled "The Dawn of a New Industrial Day" were shown. These revealed the opinions of prominent men, including members of the Cabinet, on freedom in industrial relations. Those whose views were shown included President Coolidge, ex-President Taft, and Secretaries Hughes, Mellon, Weeks, Daugherty, New, Denby, Work, Wallace, Hoover and Davis. Prominent churchmen, educators and others were quoted as favoring the "open shop" principle.

SEEKS WORLD RAIL ACCORD.

Conference in Geneva Proposes Modifying Frontier Annoyances.

GENEVA, Nov. 21.—Of the four draft conventions now before the second international conference on communications and transit, the most important is deemed to be that touching the international régime of railways. The question was passed on to the present meeting by the Barcelona conference of 1921.

The draft instrument is not a substitute for conventions already existing between States or administrations, but embodies the obligations and principles contained in treaties already in force and is meant to facilitate the conclusion of individual treaties by unifying the fundamental principles underlying all such agreements.

Among the measures outlined as desirable for the improvement of international traffic are the junction of international lines to allow through service, the use of a single common station for frontier services, or at most one station for traffic in each direction, the obligation to afford protection and equitable treatment for all nationalities, without political prejudice, and the regulation and simplification of all customs, police and passport formalities. The convention also recommends the conclusion of special agreements to facilitate the exchange and reciprocal use of rolling stock.

SEEKS TO VOID MARRIAGE.

Court Puzzled by Plea Based on Husband's Ante-Nuptial Conviction.

Is a wife entitled to an annulment of her marriage if she discovers after the wedding that her husband has served a jail term for a misdemeanor? This was a question Justice Richard M. Mitchell was called on to answer yesterday in the Bronx Supreme Court.

"The issue is simple when a man has been convicted of a felony, the Court said, "but in the matter of a misdemeanor it is hard to tell where to draw the line."

The question came up in the suit of Edith Mintz, 21 years old, of 2,080 Creston Avenue, against her husband, Maurice. Mrs. Mintz stated she purchased $1,500 worth of furniture for their home. On March 19 last her husband asked her for her diamond ring so he could have it made over in the form of a birth present for her, and he never returned it. Later she said her husband cleared all the furniture out of the apartment. She said Mintz told her he had sold the furniture for $800. She reported the matter to the police, who, she said, investigated her husband's record and found that he had served a term for a misdemeanor.

CHURCH VESTMENTS SHOWN

Rare Embroideries Included in Exhibition by St. Hilda Guild.

Church vestments, altar linen and rare ecclesiastical embroideries were shown yesterday at the tenth annual exhibition of St. Hilda Guild, Inc., at 605 Lexington Avenue. The guild designs and makes vestments and linens for all denominations. All of the designs are made by Wilfred E. Anthony and are executed by the workers.

During the past year attention has been devoted to transferring old embroideries to new materials. A chasuble of white damask was shown which had rare embroidery taken from another chasuble which was used at Trinity Church for years.

Many of the pieces were loaned for the exhibition by churches. Others were orders that had not yet been delivered. A pulpit fall and markers, done in Roman purple and Lenten blue, will go to St. Matthew's in Laramie, Wyo. Works of the Oberammergau Players, who are soon to arrive in this country, were displayed.

Acquitted of Murder.

Louis Amberg, 23, of 329 Chester Street, Brooklyn, was acquitted of a first-degree murder charge in Judge Nott's part of General Sessions yesterday. He was indicted in connection with the shooting of Jacob Schabin, a waiter, of 229 Second Avenue, during a fight between rival bands of criminals at Second Avenue and Ninth Street on April 22. Two other victims of the shooting, Harry Schlessel of 421 East Tenth Street and Michael Schenck of 40 Ludlow Street, swore that Amberg was not the man who did the killing.

RUSH-HOUR SERVICE IN SUBWAY DISRUPTED

Jammed Signal and Cable Trouble Combine to Delay West Side Trains.

A jammed stop signal at Fourteenth Street and cable trouble an hour earlier near Chambers Street combined to tie up trains on the Interborough west side subway for twenty minutes and to slow down service for nearly two hours at the start of the rush hour last evening.

Trouble first appeared in a feeder cable between Franklin and Chambers Streets about 4 o'clock, engineers of the Transit Commission announced after an investigation. To offset the resultant intermittency of service on uptown express tracks, downtown express trains were transferred to the uptown express tracks at Fourteenth Street and turned back.

One of these trains became wedged in a switch just north of the Fourteenth Street station and instantly there was a steadily accumulating blockade of trains approaching at rush hour headway. Attempt was made to relieve the pressure by rerouting other northbound expresses over local tracks, but these rails already were reasonably crowded with local trains.

A second temporary "turn-around" was established at Times Square as the situation grew worse, and southbound expresses were shunted back over the uptown tracks to clear. As reported growing steadily at uptown stations. This in turn slowed up southbound service. No trains passed through the Fourteenth Street station from 4:45 to 5:09, according to the Transit Commission, which added that the disruption of service was not straightened out until almost 7 o'clock.

HISTORY FILM IS SHOWN.

Depicts the High Lights of 400 Years in America.

The first of a series of thirty-three photoplays covering the dramatic highlights in 400 years of American history was shown yesterday at the Plaza Theatre, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, where the opening performance of "Columbus" was given.

This series, called the "Chronicles of America," was fathered by Dr. George Parlmey Day, President of The Yale University Press, and is based on a history of the United States produced by many well-known historians under the general editorship of Professor Allen Johnson of Yale. Six picture plays have been completed so far and the remaining twenty-seven will be finished within the next two years at a cost, it is estimated, of nearly $3,500,000.

Before any of these historical dramas can be shown, their claims to accuracy must be minutely passed upon by a board of experts. The plays already completed are "Columbus," "Jamestown," "The Pilgrims," "Vincennes," "Daniel Boone" and "The Frontier Woman." Three others are now in process and scenario writing for others of the series is well advanced.

"The motive which has inspired these productions has been the desire to promote good citizenship, which, it is believed by all concerned in the venture, is immensely stimulated by a vivid and intelligent interest in the greatest of one's country's past," said Dr. Day yesterday. "These reels will embody the high spots, so to speak, in the story of American achievement from the discovery of the New World down to the close of the Civil War. They will show those phases of our past which explain the significance of our present, and they will render these truthfully, inspiringly and beautifully."

YACHTSMAN IS ACCUSED.

Charles A. Marsland Sued for $1,000 for Alleged Attack on Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Charles A. Marsland, prominent yachtsman and former Commodore of the New Rochelle Yacht Club, was named defendant in an action instituted in the New Rochelle City Court today by Mrs. Louise O. Story to recover $1,000 for injuries sustained in an alleged assault by Marsland.

Returning from a yachting trip on the Sound the day of the alleged assault, Mrs. Story and another woman charged they were attacked by Marsland and another man on the grounds of the New Rochelle Yacht Club. Both men were beaten severely at the time by the women's husbands. Later Story brought charges to have Marsland and his companion dismissed as members of the club. The charges failed and Story, who was also connected with the organization, was found guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of the club and was dismissed. Marsland makes a general denial of Mrs. Story's charges.

TO SPEND $5,000,000 FOR CEMENT DRIVE

RECORD YEAR IS REPORTED

F. W. Kelley Re-elected President at Closing Day's Sessions of Annual Convention.

The daily newspaper is the best medium for an educational campaign, members of the Business Committee told the Portland Cement Association at their annual convention which closed at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday. Those present represented 80 per cent. of the cement makers in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Mexico, South America and Cuba.

The extensive campaign conducted during the year, in which 5,000 daily newspapers were used, will be continued and developed in 1924, it was announced. This will involve an expenditure of more than $5,000,000 for advertising and the purpose of the campaign will be to improve and extend the uses of concrete.

It was brought out yesterday that 1923 has been a banner year for cement production, according to a report of the United States Geological Survey, which shows that in the first ten months of this year more than 120,000,000 barrels were produced, with considerable reserve producing capacity not used. Comment upon the showing made by concrete construction in the recent Japanese earthquake occupied a great deal of the session.

The following officers were elected: President, F. W. Kelley, Albany; First Vice President, Blaine S. Smith, Chicago; Second Vice President, L. R. Burch, New York, and Treasurer, John W. Boardman, Detroit. Mr. Boardman is the only new officer.

Three hundred attended the annual dinner last night, including the representatives from European and South American countries. The speakers were Robert W. Leslie, First President of the association; P. M. Stewart, head of the British delegation, and John J. Cornwell, former Governor of West Virginia and now general counsel for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Mr. Stewart in his address commented on the "Home, Sweet Home House," sponsored b the Federation of Women's Clubs and dedicated by the President Harding. This home was built of concrete block an Portland cement stucco. He expressed surprise that this type of material was not more extensively used in this country, as in England it is vry popular. He referred to the superiority of American concrete roads over British.

In his capacity as attorney for the Baltimore & Ohio, former Governor Cornwell declared that he was a vehement opponent of government ownership o frailroads. He pointed to the war record of the Government in this respect, and pleaded that if the railroads were handed over to the Government general inefficiency would result.

He said, in welcoming the British cement representatives, that friendly relations between the American and British countries could be developed through extensive trade relations, which he hoped would continue to increase.

CAUGHT WITH LOOT, MAID TRIES SUICIDE

Accused of Stealing $11,000 in Gems, Clothes and Cash From Mrs. Beverly Robinson.

In an apartment at 350 West Seventy-first Street last night Detective Joseph Daly of Headquarters and Detective Captain William Philips of Merrick, L. I., arrested Louise Johnson, 23 years old, a housemaid, charging her with having robbed the home of Mrs. Beverly Robinson at Hewett Avenue, Merrick, L. I., on the night of Nov. 17, taking $11,000 in jewelry, clothing and cash.

Detective Daly said that the girl had worked for Mrs. Robinson up to Oct. 29, when she left without waiting to collect her wages. Detective Daly traced her to the West Seventy-first Street address yesterday. He notified Captain Philips, and together they searched her room, reporting that all the clothing and jewelry taken from Mrs. Robinson's home had been found there.

While Daly and Captain Philips were searching the room the maid tried twice to commit suicide by drinking acid, but was prevented and later taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station, where she was put in the care of a matron.

Among the articles found in the maid's room were two diamond pendants, a lavalliere set with a diamond and sapphire, a diamond and platinum chain with emerald centre surrounded by fifty small diamonds, a diamond brooch, two fur coats and five silk gowns. The police said that $127 taken from the Robinson home was not found.

Detective Daly said the maid told him that she returned to Merrick on he night of Nov. 17. After calling up the house and receiving no answer, he said, she decided there was no one at home, and going in by a rear door, the detective charges, she ransacked the house.

AUTO THEFT GANG GUILTY.

Judge Calls Them "Worst in State" After Verdict is Rendered.

When a jury in Judge McIntyre's part of General Sessions yesterday returned a verdict of guilty against four men on trial for criminally receiving stolen automobiles, the Court denounced them as the "worst band of automobile thieves in the State." The defendants are Alexander Schindler, 184 Second Avenue; John Trombino, 326 West Twenty-fourth Street; Benjamin Fruchtman, 229 East Twelfth Street, and Ninard Lasliento, 8,306 Twentieth Avenue, Brooklyn. They were remanded to the Tombs without bail and will be arraigned for sentence next week.

Their conviction was brought about through the testimony of Arthur Newman, an alleged confederate, who told the manner in which they had stolen an automobile standing in front of 1,887 Madison Avenue on Feb. 13 last. It also was developed that the band had hired a garage in the Bronx in which they stored stolen cars and later drove them to Albany and other up-State cities, where they sold them.

"The jury made no mistake in this case," Judge McIntyre said. "They would have been warranted in finding you four men guilty of grand larceny as well."

GOLF INJURY CASE OPENS.

Counselman Contends Wind Carried Ball Which Hit Another Player.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Taylor began hearing testimony yesterday in the $15,000 suit brought by John B. Harris, a bond salesman, against Henry Coe Jr. because a golf ball struck by Mr. Coe on the links of the Rumson Club at Seabright, N. J., hit Harris on the head and caused concussion of the brain. Harris contends that as a result of the injury on July 25, 1920, he was unable to attend to business for two years.

Counsel for Mr. Coe contended that he waited a reasonable time before teeing off from the sixteenth green, to enable Mr. Harris to get out of the line of danger, but that a high wind carried the ball in his direction and caused the accident. The case was not finished.

LATIN DICTATORS LAUD THEIR SYSTEM

Mussolini and Primo de Rivera Exchange Fervent Compliments at Rome Luncheon.

KING TO VISIT POPE AGAIN

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 21.—It is announced that King Alfonso before leaving Rome will again visit Pope Pius. On this occasion he will not be accompanied by the Queen and the audience will be in the strictest incognito. The date has not yet been definitely fixed, but it will probably be Friday, which is the last day of the Spanish sovereign's stay.

During this audience the Pope and King Alfonso will study the religious questions which the latter has come to Rome to settle.

This morning the King and Queen of Spain were the central figures in a brilliant religious ceremony in the basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore, of which King Alfonso is honorary canon. A mass was sung by Cardinal Vannutelli, Dean of the Sacred Heart College and archpriest of Santa Maria Maggiore. After the mass King Alfonso and Cardinal Vannutelli both delivered speeches, in which they enumerated the strong ties which bind Spain to the Catholic Church and expressed the hope and wish that these ties may become even closer and stronger in the future.

A chief interest of the day, however, centred in the luncheon at which General Palmo de Riveria, head of the Spanish Directorate, gave Mussolini credit for saving Italy and Europe from Bolshevism and said that his own movement in Spain had learned much and had been much inspired by the example of Italian Fascismo, with which it shares many common aims.

"Your figure," he said, addressing Mussolini, "is not any longer only Italian but it is world-wide. You are the apostle of a campaign against dissolution and anarchy in Europe. You have known how to speak to the hearts of your people and have rapidly won them over to order, work and justice. This has been your truly masterful work and therein lies your real strength.

"Your name is pronounced by all healthy-minded people with profound respect and 'Mussolinismo' has become a religion, has become a doctrine of redemption which finds in the whole world thousands of admirers and proselytes. A great part of the Spanish army and people—indeed, almost all of them—realized that the example of Fascismo in Italy could be imitated and they performed the same work of redemption.

"This I am proud to proclaim today before the head of the Italian State, who is also head of Fascismo."

In his reply Premier Mussolini said: "When Italy last September heard of your movement we realized that, though different in method, our two revolutions had the same finalities. We both wished to free the vital forces of our peoples from disastrous influences of impossible political doctrines and of men incapable of assuming difficult responsibilities of commanding.

"Though Fascismo is a purely Italian phenomenon, there is no doubt that many of its postulates are universal, because many nations have suffered and still suffer from degeneration of liberalism. The love of discipline, the cult of beauty, strength and courage, of responsibility for the commonplace, the thirst for reality, the love of the proletariat—these are fundamental principles of the Fascisti creed and these may well serve for other nations."

After having said that he believed that General Primo De Rivera would remain long in office because his movement was deeply rooted in the conscience of his people, Mussolini referred to Italo-Spanish relations.

"Today," he said, "we can really speak of brotherhood between Italy and Spain. All Latin countries have suffered eclipses, but they have always dawned again with greater magnificence. The races bathed by the Mediterranean have inexhaustible resources of strength and vitality."

NO MOVE BY JAPAN TO OPEN LAND CASES

State Department Denies New Treaty Is Being Considered at This Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—If, as a result of the recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the California land cases, the Japanese Government contemplates taking up with the American Government formally the question of a treaty concerning immigration, naturalization and rights to hold land in this country, no intimation of such intention has reached the State Department.

Officials responded to inquiries on this subject today by asserting that the question was in no way before the department at this time.

Charges that the so called "gentlemen's agreement" between Japan and the United States respecting immigration is being abused, are absolutely without foundation, according to officials. The argument that 8,861 Japanese admitted under the gentlemen's agreement during 1923 is approximately three times as great a number as would have been admitted if the quota law had been applicable to Japan also is fallacious, officials assert, and cite official figures of the Commissioner General of Immigration to prove the point.

These figures show that in 1923 there were 9,023 applications from Japanese for admission to continental United States; that 8,861 Japanese were admitted; that forty-one were debarred from entry, and that 109 were deported after entry. In the same period 3,862 Japanese applied for admission into Hawaii, of which 3,856 were admitted; six were debarred from entry and four deported after entry.

While it is admitted that under the quota law, Japan would be entitled to something in excess of 2,000 emigrants to the United States, it is pointed out that to get a just idea of the Japanese immigration conditions, consideration must be given to the number of departures of Japanese from both the continental United States and Hawaii. A comparison of arrivals with departures indicates, it is pointed out, that the number of Japanese in the United States during 1923 actually was on the decrease.

MADRID TO AID BUILDING.

Municipality Decides to Help Co-operative Apartments.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—The municipality of Madrid plans to go into the co-operative apartment house business. It contemplates using 100,000,000 pesetas for the development of the city's suburbs, and also intends to appropriate funds for the erection of cheaper houses and for the improvement of housing conditions in general.

A credit bank will be established to lend money to builders of co-operative apartments for the middle classes, a project that will be extended over a period of four years. The funds will be realized from higher assessments on present property and also by an issue of guaranteed bonds.

KNAUTH INSOLVENCY KNOWN TO EXCHANGE

Threatened With Suspension Because of Condition Eight Months Before Crash.

PROMISED FUNDS FAILED

Perkins and Peyton Group, Which Lent Firm $3,000,000, Declined to Advance More.

In the bankruptcy hearing yesterday into the affairs of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, bankers who failed for $12,000,000 in June, it was disclosed that the Stock Exchange authorities were aware of the firm's weakness eight months before it collapsed. When the firm was threatened with suspension at that time, George W. Perkins and William C. Peyton, who had advanced $3,000,000 to Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, appeared before the Stock Exchange Committee on Business Conduct and, it is understood, promised to extend the necessary aid. The committee accepted the assurance, but the financial assistance did not materialize and the firm failed.

The question now before the referee is whether Perkins and Peyton and their associates in the loans were legally partners in Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, and as such liable to the creditors. Mr. Peyton was questioned by James N. Rosenberg, counsel for Receiver Middleton S. Borland.

Firm Ignored Peyton's Advice.

Mr. Peyton testified that if the firm had closed out its foreign exchange position in June, 1921, it would have made $500,000. His advice was not taken, he said, and the firm finally lost several hundred thousand dollars.

"After this disastrous Summer of 1921 were not measures taken to prevent a recurrence of losses in speculating in foreign exchange?" Mr. Rosenberg asked.

"I don't remember what measures were taken," Mr. Peyton replied. "I know I stated that if foreign exchange could not be carried on without speculation it wasn't a business they should engage in."

Despite his advice, Mr. Peyton said that the firm suffered another loss of about $1,000,000 at the end of 1922, or early this year, through foreign exchange sales.

Without explaining why he should have been summoned before the officials of the Stock Exchange, rather than partners of the firm, Mr. Peyton said that after the filing of answers to the Exchange's questionnaire he and E. W. Bowman, a brother-in-law of George W. Perkins, were requested to appear before Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the Stock Exchange; Winthrop Burr, Chairman of the Business Conduct Committee, and other officers of the Exchange. This conference, said Mr. Peyton, was in October, 1922.

Cromwell Thought Position Bad.

"I remember that Mr. Cromwell stated that he thought Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne were in a very bad condition," said Mr. Peyton. "I remember also that Mr. Cromwell stated that in his opinion no business was solvent unless it had sufficient assets which could be sold at 3 o'clock any day to pay all its debts. He asked me if I agreed, and I said I did not. He asked me if Mr. Perkins had any intention of calling in the loan ($3,000,000), and I said no."

"Did he say what the Stock Exchange was going to do?" asked Mr. Rosenberg.

"I think the intimation was that they were going to suspend the firm. I can't remember the exact words, but I recollect that was the intimation."

"Don't you think, Mr. Peyton, that 'intimation' is a rather weak word?"

"It was the substance of Mr. Cromwell's remarks," he declared.

"That they would be suspended?"

"Yes."

"And did you argue at all? Did you try to persuade them that the firm should not be suspended?"

"I have a recollection that we argued about the question of solvency."

"Did you maintain that the firm was solvent?"

"I don't recall."

"Did you believe that the firm was solvent?"

"I thought so."

Assets Two-Thirds of Liabilities.

Consulting the figures before him, Mr. Peyton said that the total liabilities, as of Aug. 31, 1922, were $13,700,040.81. He admitted that the firm could realize on only enough to meet two-thirds of its liabilities.

"Is it not a fact that the Stock Exchange threw out a whole lot of assets as not being proper to be taken into account as assets?" the lawyer asked.

He answered that the Exchange officials had cut $2,000,000 from the firm's list of assets and asked that they be disposed of for cash. The intimation was, said Mr. Peyton, that the firm would be suspended if this were not done.

"Do you remember that the amount that they threw out was more than the total capital of the firm?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"And that if these assets had been thrown out, the firm would have been insolvent?"

"My idea was that 'Here you have $2,000,000 in stocks and securities of one thing and another that we don't think are proper assets and therefore you must dispose of them and realize from them enough to give you capital to work on.'"

Plan Formed to Aid Firm.

Mr. Peyton testified that a plan for a joint stock association had been drawn up by F. P. Delafield, counsel for Mr. Perkins, by which the Perkins-Peyton group were to furnish $3,400,000 additional capital by loans to individual members of the firm. It had been agreed, said Mr. Peyton, that this plan would not be carried through if Herbert R. Smithers remained a member of the firm. Mr. Peyton said he was willing to take the responsibility for this suggestion and denied that any one else had urged that Mr. Smithers be forced out. Mr. Peyton declared that the formation of this association was for the purpose of avoiding the threatened suspension from the Exchange.

"Is it not a fact," he was asked, "that this plan was submitted to the Stock Exchange?"

"I don't know. I've been curious to know that," answered Mr. Peyton.

"Have you knowledge as to why the Stock Exchange did not suspend Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne?"

Said Delafield Saw Officials.

"I believe that Mr. Delafield had made various visits and had conversations with the Stock Exchange authorities. That is my belief."

"Did you bring any influence to bear to prevent the suspension of the firm?"

"No."

"What position if any did Mr. Cromwell or Mr. Burr take as to whether the firm was going to be suspended or not?"

"My recollection is that when the interview was ended the assertion was made that unless the firm rectified its position that the Stock Exchange would suspend it."

"Did you participate in any conversations with anyone looking to a rectification of the affairs of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne?"

Mr. Peyton replied that he had several conversations with members of the Perkins group as well as with partners of the firm at which he and his associates had decided to lend the partners $3,400,000 on the firm's slow assets.

"Do you think you were making a sacrifice or improving your position," Mr. Rosenberg asked.

"I think I was making a distinct sacrifice," Mr. Peyton replied.

"Why were you doing that?"

"Simply trying to help the situation."

"To save the firm from being suspended?"

Thinks Lawyer Averted Suspension.

"Did you ever learn from any one why the firm was not suspended in the face of Mr. Cromwell's statements?"

"I never knew why, but I have certain suspicions and beliefs."

"Weren't you informed by Mr. Delafield that the Stock Exchange examined the plan and were willing not to suspend because of it?"

"I don't know. I know I heard from Mr. Delafield that he was in consultation with the Stock Exchange and I suspect he must have shown them this plan. I imagine it was on the representations of Mr. Delafield at the time that the firm was not suspended."

Mr. Freeman, the only other witness during the day, described the various conferences that had taken place before he, Mr. Perkins, Mr. Peyton and others had loaned the firm the money. Mr. Hall, a good friend, had asked him to interest the Perkins family in lending the money, Mr. Freeman testified. Mr. Hall had told him, he said, that the firm had insufficient working capital.

"He told me that prior to speaking to me, he had carefully gone over the assets and liabilities and he was satisfied that the firm had a capital of about $700,000. He told me that in the year just preceding the firm had made a substantial profit in underwriting stocks. In one year, I believe he said a recent one, he told me the firm had made over $2,000,000."

Mr. Freeman, who said that he was employed by the banking firm of G. Amsinck & Co., Inc., told Mr. Perkins, and both agreed to help the firm but first sought the advice of Mrs. George W. Perkins Sr. and Mrs. Freeman, daughter of Mrs. Perkins. The women, he said, "expressed the desire to be of assistance but urged us to be very careful in anything we did; that they didn't feel that they or we should help out if there were going to be a great risk attached."

The examination of Mr. Freeman will be continued at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PLEA FOR THE SCHOOLS.

Mrs. J. R. Swan Says There Are Too Few Visiting Teachers.

In the whole of New York there are only fourteen visiting teachers employed by the Board of Education, in spite of the tremendous enrolment and the urgent plea by Principals and Superintendents for more, Mrs. Joseph R. Swan, Chairman of the Joint Committee on Education for American Educational Week, said last night. "Citizens who desire to observe American Educational Week can espouse no better cause than the establishment of visiting teacher work on a larger basis in New York and should urge that funds be appropriated from year to year to meet the present and growing needs of the public school for visiting teacher service," Mrs. Swan added.

"The crowded condition of our schools tends to smother the individual child under the sheer weight of the numbers to be educated. He is lost in the mass, and yet we pay high taxes for our schools that he may be developed into a good citizen. To insure to each child this opportunity for individual development, we have one member of the school staff whose sole duty it is to individualize, that is, to meet the particular needs of the children in the school. This is the visiting teacher, the link between the home and the school.

"Usually, it is the teacher or principal of the school who refers a problem child to the visiting teacher. She becomes friendly with this particular child. She goes to his home not to teach him, but to understand the problem which he presents in the class room, whether or not it is a problem of behavior or of poor class work, or whether he shows evidence of neglect or misunderstanding at home or elsewhere. She talks with his parents, explains to them what the school aims to do for him, finds out his aptitudes, his limitations, his interests—in short, his assets and liabilities. She brings the home and the school into mutual understanding and co-operation, and by this means she prevents him from joining the ranks of juvenile delinquents and the inefficient, and from forming the habit of failure. Principals have found her particularly effective in redirecting young girls who are in need of guidance."

COLLEGE GIRLS SIZE UP MEN

Chicago Co-Eds Decide All Are Dull Talkers, Serious, Frothy or Trivial.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—University of Chicago co-eds, meeting to discuss men, dances, parties and proper introductions, decided yesterday that "all men are talkers: some of them serious and dull; some of them frothy and dull, and others trivial and dull."

A movie with the right man is more desirable than grand opera with a "sap," said the girls. They expressed themselves in favor of three dates a week, preferably theatre dates. Two shows are regarded as better than one theatre-and-supper date.

"If the man is interesting, I want him all for myself," said one co-ed. "But if he is tiresome, I don't want anybody to see me with him."

The girl most popular with men is one who can adapt herself to a companion and a condition, whatever they may be, the meeting concluded.

FINDS CO-EDS' FEET BIGGER.

Ohio State Professor Also Reports Increased Weight and Waist Line.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 21.—The feet of the modern college girl are steadily increasing in size, according to Miss Lydia Clark, head of the women's department of physical education at Ohio State University.

Miss Clark says that modern clothes and the great interest shown by the modern co-ed in outdoor activities are causes for the increase in size.

Not only are their feet increasing in size, but statistics show that the increase is general. Figures from Vassar, Smith and Leland Stanford show that the average weight of the college woman has increased from 123.5 pounds to 125.8, and that the waistline has increased on an average of 1.3 inches, Miss Clark says.

TO AID HARDING MEMORIAL.

Charles M. Schwab Heads Committee to Conduct Campaign.

Charles M. Schwab yesterday accepted the chairmanship of the New York Committee for the Harding Memorial Campaign, which proposes to raise funds for the erection of a mausoleum at Marion, Ohio, for the late President; purchase of his old homestead as a national shrine, and endowment of a chair in some central university giving instruction in public service to prospective Government employes.

Others who will serve on the New York committee are Elbert H. Gary, Dwight Morrow, Nathan L. Miller, William M. Calder, George F. Baker Jr., Frank A. Munsey, Adolph S. Ochs, Charles E. Mitchell, Otto H. Kahn, Clarence H. Mackay and William Hamlin Childs.

FORD BRINGS OLD FIDDLER.

"Jep" Bisbee Is on Way in Private Car to Play for Edison.

Special to The New York Times.

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 21.—Jep Bisbee, who has fiddled at dances around his home village of Paris, Mich., for half a century, will fiddle for the world.

In the private car of Henry Ford, Jep left here today for East Orange, N. J., where Thomas A. Edison will make good his promise of last summer to have the fiddler make phonograph records. Bisbee also has been told that he will be asked to dance an old-time jig before the motion picture camera.

It is understood here that Mr. Ford will board the car at Detroit. With Mr. Bisbee are his wife, a son and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Bryant of Traverse City, Mich. Bryant is a sister of Mrs. Ford.

GERMAN TOYS FLOOD CHRISTMAS MARKET

Present Imports Running Higher Than in Any Recent Year.

DEMAND DOLLAR PAYMENTS

Collapse of Mark and Tariff Here Have Not Prevented Germany From Recapturing Trade.

German toys for American children and American dollar banknotes for German children will be the Christmas vogue for 1923, according to facts and figures obtained yesterday. This year's shipment of German toys into this country exceeds in volume and value the pre-war consignments, when Germany was the recognized toy shop of the world. Shipping men report that nearly every vessel arriving from German ports has carried German Christmas toys as an important part of its cargo.

To pay the American toy bill, bankers said that German manufacturers no longer desired paper marks. Last year American buyers went into the foreign exchange market and bought paper marks for the German manufacturers. This year, German manufacturers are asking for their pay in American dollars or in merchandise. The same procedure, it was said, is being followed with England and Holland, which are toy buyers, and by receiving pay in the terms of currency of the buying countries, German manufacturers are building up reserves outside of Germany.

German manufacturers' wage and material bills, on the other hand, are being paid partly in paper marks. But recently, German workmen have demanded their pay in terms of other currencies, the American dollar preferred, and as a result the German paper mark has suffered practical repudiation. Marks yesterday were selling nominally at four trillion to the dollar, against 8,000 for the dollar a year ago.

Germany Rebuilds Toy Trade.

Despite the collapse of the currency, Germany has built up its toy business to imposing totals. Figures furnished by the United States Department of Commerce showed that Germany began to manufacture toys immediately after the armistice. From Nov. 11 to the end of the Christmas season, Germany shipped into the United States toys valued at $68,235. In the next three years this figure was increased to $451,286 in 1919, to $1,051,367 in 1920, to $1,096,006 in 1921, which was a year of business depression in this country. The final figures for 1922 have not yet been compiled.

Tariff schedules have not checked the German toy invasion. Another boon to the German toy industry came from the Japanese earthquake. During and following the World War, Japan stepped forward rapidly as a manufacturer of American Christmas presents, particularly of dolls. In 1920 the Japanese had a considerable edge on German manufacturers in the competition for American trade, and in 1921 the two nations were reported to be fairly nearly equal. Since then Germany has forged ahead, particularly this year.

Figures showing the importation of Christmas toys of all nations add evidence of the return to pre-war trade. In 1913, total Christmas - toy imports amounted to $13,000,000. This figure fell off during the war to $1,000,000 in 1918, thence jumped back to $6,000,000 in 1920, and to $10,000,000 in 1921. The 1922 and 1923 figures, it was said yesterday, would show further increases.

MRS. OSBORN DENIES STORY HUSBAND TOLD

Says That She Had No Hatred of Out-Door Life to Cause a Separation.

Special to The New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Chase S. Osborn, wife of the former Governor of Michigan, at the Battle Creek Sanitarium today denied that her love of social life led to her separation from her husband, self-styled "Barbarian," which was verified Tuesday with an announcement by Mr. Osborn.

The separation, as explained by Mr. Osborn, was agreed upon because he loved life in the woods, while Mrs. Osborn craved the pleasures of urban life. In separating he yielded to the wishes of his wife, he said. But Mrs. Osborn, weeping and nervously twisting her handkerchief, denied this. She was hurt, too, she said, to think that her husband had made public a "private contract."

"I want to say that I am not a social butterfly," she explained. "I am far from being one. It is true that Mr. Osborn does love the out of doors, but so do I. He loves to hunt. I love to hunt. I accompanied him on his African trip. We slept on the ground, and there was not even a canvas over our heads. I went with him, not because of the trip, but because it was his pleasure too.

"I have hunted with my husband near our lodge at the Soo. I have shot my limit of ducks and had them back at the lodge before breakfast. I have risked my life hunting, often alone, because I love the sport. I have always accompanied my husband on hunting trips, until two years ago."

She paused.

"It was two years ago that my husband and I agreed upon the separation. No, I won't discuss it. It is horrible that it should be made public. Had our troubles reached the courts they would have become public property. But that is not our way, and I can't understand Mr. Osborn's reason for making it public now.

"We have four children, two boys in California and two girls in the East. They are all happily married, and for their sake—well, I don't care to discuss it further."

Mrs. Osborn arrived at the sanitarium this week. She was nervous, she said, and needed a rest. She plans to return to Sault Ste. Marie, the Osborn home, or go East to her daughters late in the week. She will spend Christmas with them, she said, and then probably will take a Mediterranean cruise with friends.

BANKER'S WIFE SPEAKS AND BURGLAR FLEES

Mrs. J. D. Winsor Jr. of Rosemont, Pa., Demands What He Is Doing and He Runs Away.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Mrs. James D. Winsor Jr. of Rosemont, frightened a burglar from her bedroom at 4 o'clock this morning by calmly demanding what he was doing there.

At the question, the prowler turned from a dressing table, dropped a number of jewels and ran from the room. He escaped from the house through a first floor rear window which he had pried open.

Mr. Winsor, a banker, was away on a business trip. His wife was alone except for several servants sleeping in a separate wing of the house. Mrs. Winsor was awakened by a slight scraping sound as the burglar cautiously pulled out a drawer and ran his hand around in the interior.

She telephoned to the Ardmore police and a squad was sent to the Winsor home, but the burglar eluded them.

Realize what Kellogg's Bran means to your family's health?

Eaten regularly each day, Kellogg's Bran will permanently relieve constipation; it will free you from dangerous toxic poisons that lead to 90% of all human illness; it will remove the cause and sweeten a bad breath; it will clear a rough complexion through its work on the bowels. In fact, Kellogg's Bran, through its natural action as a bulk, indigestible agent, will tone-up the whole system!

If you knew exactly what constipation means from a medical view-point you would lose no time eating Kellogg's Bran, yourself and serving it daily to your family. And, Kellogg's is actually delicious, its nut-like flavor adding greatly to the enjoyment of eating cereals. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; in chronic cases, with each meal.

There are many attractive ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it in winter with hot milk as a cereal. Or, mix it with cereals before serving. Many housewives cook it with cereals, in each case adding two tablespoonfuls for each person. You will also enjoy the nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran when it has been sprinkled over hot or cold cereals.

You have missed some of the joys of life if you have not eaten raisin bread, muffins, griddle-cakes, etc., made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each box.

Don't delay your fight against constipation; don't lose a minute in the great battle against illness! You can buy Kellogg's Bran from all grocers and you can have it served in individual packages at first-class hotels, restaurants and clubs.

Even well-brushed teeth do not stay clean

. . Only teeth that are constantly protected by active, healthy mouth glands are clean all day and night

Today, your tooth paste must do more than merely clean the teeth. It must keep the mouth glands active.

Six tiny glands in your mouth are your only protection against the acids of decay, which are constantly forming. But lack of exercise has made the glands too weak to do their work without help.

Pebeco makes the mouth glands flow more freely. As soon as it enters the mouth an increased flow of healing fluids pours over the gums and teeth; in between the crevices where the tooth brush cannot reach. These fluids neutralize the acids of the mouth as fast as they form and keep the teeth always clean and safe.

Pebeco does more than clean the teeth, it helps the mouth glands keep them clean.

To introduce BRIARCLIFF LODGE as a winter home for discriminating people, I have reduced my rates 50% and yet have maintained the exceptional quality of service for which BRIARCLIFF LODGE is so well known. The social atmosphere, the delightfulness of the surroundings, the excellence of the table, the completeness of our facilities for the comfort and entertainment of guests—these are admitted by those who know BRIARCLIFF LODGE. There is, however, another consideration of importance—the matter of living costs.

Keep Daylight on Your Desk

DAYLIGHT is the best working light because Nature made it right for eyes. That is why every Emeralite has a special screen which changes electric light into soft, eye-saving daylite.

Eyes behave better and last longer when working with a light that suits them.

Better light means better eyes, also better work.

The Emerald glass shade, tilted by a touch of the hand, reflects a flood of soft daylite, just where it is needed, does not tarnish or collect dust, and having no perforations gives enduring service.

Emeralites are those good-looking, practical lamps that you see wherever eyesight and the economy resulting from standardized equipment are appreciated. Ideal for the home, too.

Genuine Emeralites are branded and have the Daylite screen. Look for trade mark. It is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Sold by office supply and electrical dealers. Write for illustrated booklet showing over 50 designs of Emeralites for desk, typewriter, adding machine, home use, etc.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds or the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

KAFKA FILES REPLY TO WIFE'S CHARGES

In Answer to Separation Suit, Lumberman Says She Broke Up 16 of Their Homes.

ALLEGES WANTON CONDUCT

Accusing Her of Extravagance, He Asserts She Incurred Unwarranted Debts of $75,000.

Otto Kafka, lumber and steel merchant, who brought an unsuccessful suit against the Mexican Government last year for $2,500,000 damages for alleged breach of contract for $20,000,000 worth of railroad supplies, filed an answer in the Supreme Court yesterday to a separation suit by Mrs. Alice Stickney Kafka, in which she alleges cruel treatment. The papers in Mrs. Kafka's suit have not become public, as they are filed under seal on her application for alimony pending the suit.

In his answer Mr. Kafka states that he married the plaintiff in 1910, and that "between sixteen and eighteen permanent homes which he established during their married life have been broken up, discontinued and destroyed through the wanton, disobedient and extravagant conduct of the plaintiff."

Mr. Kafka states he had $500,000 at one time, but that his wealth has been dissipated since 1918. He alleges his wife abandoned him last December, taking their children, John, Clara and Charles.

Concerning dinners at the restaurant de l'Elysée in Paris, mentioned in his wife's papers, Kafka says she shared them, both as to eating and drinking. He states that while he is Austrian by birth, he has been naturalized an American. He says he was interned for a time during the war as an enemy alien at the instigation of his wife and her attorney.

Kafka alleges that in 1921, "in utter disregard" of his instructions, his wife incurred unnecessary debts of $75,000 and she entered into "extravagant business deals" which further depleted his fortune. He insists that he was at all times generous to his wife and family, that he provided three automobiles for their use and that he gave his wife jewelry worth $60,000, in addition to money, and traveled with her extensively.

Kafka admits that in 1918 he bought a home in Tarrytown at a cost of more than $50,000, and was then worth more than $500,000. He says he advertised subsequently in THE NEW YORK TIMES that he would not be responsible for his wife's bills except under the conditions stated in the advertisemnt. He states that when he went to Mexico to put through the transaction resulting in his $2,500,000 suit, his wife occupied a small New York apartment which he describes as a "pig-sty," and he then insisted that she summon their children back from California and bring them to Mexico. She arrived there with them on Jan. 1, 1922, and they occupied a suite at the Hotel Princess in Mexico City.

Kafka admits that he may have been in a disagreeable frame of mind at different times, but says it was due to his wife's provocation. He says that if she suffered "mortification and humiliation," as she alleges, "she brought it on herself by her conduct, and it was probably due to a hysterical condition induced by auto-suggestion." He says she has twice sued him for divorce in the last five years, but has not pressed the cases.

PINCHOT FOR FREE MEETING.

He Tells Templeton That Coal Conference Will Not Be Restricted.

WATERBURY, Conn., Nov. 21.—Replying to Governor Templeton's letter of Nov. 15 to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, in which the former named certain conditions under which he would attend the proposed Governors' conference at Harrisburg Nov. 26 to discuss the anthracite situation, Governor Pinchot, in a letter received by Governor Templeton today, says that it is his plan to have all questions dealing with anthracite considered at the conference.

Governor Pinchot writes:

"My plan is to have all the questions dealing with anthracite coal, which any one of the Governors may choose to discuss, open for the attention and action of the conference. In other words, while my prime purpose in inviting the Governors to come to Harrisburg is to agree on a joint plan of Federal action, which is, in my judgment, the only action that can adequately meet the situation, I shall, of course, be delighted to have the questions your letter raises, or any other questions which any other Governors may choose to discuss or bring up, raised before the conference.

"As I see it, what we want to get is fair treatment to the anthracite-using public, and anything that will help in that direction ought to be in order at the conference."

AT 42 WOMAN WEDS MAN.

So Justice Morschauser Holds in an Alimony Heaping.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 21.—"At the age of 42 it is not the man that marries the woman, but the woman that marries the man," Supreme Court Justice Morschauser said today when a motion was made for temporary alimony in the separation action brought by Mrs. Ida Chabot Weiser of New York against Samuel Weiser, manager of the New York offices of the Amherst Knitting Mills.

Mrs. Weiser, a pretty French Canadian, and the defendant were married in New York last September. She alleges that he deserted her a few days later. Charles E. Long, her attorney, told the Court this morning that a man of Weiser's age, 42, should know what he is doing when he ventures into matrimony. It was this statement of Long's that provoked the remark from Justice Morschauser. The Court granted $100 alimony until the motion is further argued next Tuesday.

VOTING DISPUTE SETTLED.

Judge-Elect Kelly and Rival Each Get Six Protested Ballots.

Edward Kelly, elected Municipal Judge in the Rockaway district of Queens by twenty-seven votes, and William P. Weiners, independent candidate, both secured six additional votes to their total vote, as certified by the Bureau of Elections, as the result of a reinspection of 254 void and protested ballots made yesterday under supervision of Justice Leander B. Faber in the Queens Supreme Court.

At Justice Faber's direction, two Board of Elections officials and attorneys for Mr. Kelly and Mr. Weiners agreed that all but nineteen of the ballots could be canvassed. These were returned to Justice Faber, who rejected seven and allowed six to Mr. Weiners and six to Mr. Kelly.

It is understood that no further contest will be made by Mr. Weiners.

URGE LAW ENFORCEMENT.

State Club Women Back Coolidge Drive—Hear Fosdick on League.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The unqualified support of the clubwomen of New York State was pledged to President Coolidge in his campaign for "law enforcement" in a resolution unanimously adopted today at the annual convention of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs. The resolution further puts the federation on record as favoring a "strong State law enforcement code."

Adoption of the resolution came after an address by Dr. Ella A. Boole, Chairman of the Federation Law Enforcement Committee. Mrs. Alba H. Hildreth of Syracuse, former federation President, also urged support of law enforcement.

At the conclusion of the afternoon session convention delegates were received by Governor Smith and Mrs. Smith in the Executive Mansion.

Raymond Fosdick spoke on "The League of Nations and the World Court" and John C. Freund, editor of "Musical America," discussed "What Music Has Done for Us," at the evening session. Mrs. Eli T. Hosmer, State motion picture censor, explained the methods and purpose of deleting films and Baroness Katharine E. von Klenner presented a musical program.

POSED AS FINANCIER.

Man Who Escapes From Asylum Accused of Passing Bad Checks.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 21.—H. T. Harmon, an inmate of the State Hospital for the Insane at orris Plains for more than a year because of worthless check operations made in the belief that he was wealthy, today made a half dozen local merchants also believe that he was a financier. A well-dressed, smooth-talking man, he succeeded in having them cash several checks for $25 each. On turning the checks into the American Trust Company here tonight, on which bank the checks were drawn, the merchants found they had been imposed upon.

In investigation revealed that Harmon escaped from the insane hospital last Friday. Tonight authorities of the hospital are searching for him.

ZANGWILL ON YIDDISH STAGE

Author Speaks at Opening of School of the Theatre.

New York is aptly termed the theatrical capital of the world, not only because of the number of plays and actors here, but also because of the number of dramatic schools making New York their headquarters. The Yiddish School of the Theatre is the most recent one to open its doors, at 425 Lafayette Street. With an enrolment of forty-six pupils, the school, which is the first institution of its kind to be established in America, was officially opened Nov. 9.

Israel Zangwill, dramatist and author, now here on a lecture tour, at the opening exercises pointed out the importance for the existence of such a school. In his address he said:

"When I first came to America a generation ago the Yiddish drama seemed in a childish condition. Absurd songs, for example, were interpolated in the middle of dramatic scenes because, they said, the audience wanted it so. I believe the audience does not know what it wants till it gets it. I am delighted to find that the Yiddish theatre is now permeated by an artistic spirit so much finer than the old. The troupe of players I recently saw in London played with an ensemble superior to that of the average British theatre, while some of the individual players of the troupe were still higher above the average. It is my hope that the Yiddish stage will be able to give a lesson in art to the English stage, whether in London or New York."

Included among the organizers and founders of the Yiddish Theatre Society are Peres Hirshbein, David Pinski, Mendel Elkin, Halper Levick, Samuel Niger, Dr. Abram Gideon, Max Cattin and others. For the first semester Richard Bolesiawsky, Regisseur of the Moscow Art Theatre, will lecture on "Experimental Dramatics"; Michal Fokine, "Rhythm and Dancing"; Ivan Lasareff, "The Art of the Theatre"; Dr. Jehuda Jaffe, "Dialectology"; Samuel Niger, "History of the Yiddish Literature and Drama"; Dr. Jacob Schatsky, "History of the Yiddish Theatre"; Leo Low, "Voice Culture and Solfeggio"; Mendel Elkin, "Ensemble Elocution and Dramatics." In the second semester Abram Maniewitch will lecture on "Decoration."

(for $1.00 a year)

The manufacturer is a group producer—and seller. Even the smallest manufacturer with few or no salesmen has recourse to the tremendous selling, distributive and credit power of our great jobbing system. When his product moves into the merchandising stream he can know fairly accurately where it is going, what price it will bring, and what profit to expect.

Until recently the farmer has always been market blind. He produced as an individual, concentrating his energies on production. He sold as an individual, dumping his products at harvest time with millions of other farmers doing the same—taking a price for his labor heavily depressed by his short-sightedness and lack of marketing vision. Beyond the local elevator, creamery or shipping pen he did not see. His products moved into consumption through mysterious channels beyond his ken, acquiring a face value in the process far beyond that for which he surrendered them at the shipping point.

The Country Gentleman has changed this. As the other farm papers did a splendid service in preaching the gospel of greater production, The Country Gentleman has gone farther, spreading the doctrine of better grading and branding, of co-operative action, of modern marketing methods. It has shown the farmer how to apply the principles of modern salesmanship learned years ago by his manufacturing cousin. It has removed the mystery from merchandising and market, and has shown him the way to better profits, consistently maintained throughout the year.

It was the farmers' first salesmanager. It has the backing and influence of the progressive type of farmers who, because they are profiting from the principles it first propounded, are the farmers who are making money today.

THE PLAY

By JOHN CORBIN.

Goldoni Restored.

THE MISTRESS OF THE INN (LA LOCANDIERA), a comedy in five acts by Carlo Goldoni. At Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theatre.

Cavalier di Ripafratta.....Constantin Stanislavsky
Marquis di Forlipopoli.....Giorgi Burdzhaloff
Count d'Albaflorita.....Alexander Vilmovsky
Mirandolina.....Olga Pishova
Ortensia.....Olga Knipper-Tchekhova
Delanira.....Varvara Bulgakova
Fabrizio.....Akim Tamiroff
Servant.....Boris Dobronravoff

A surprise is in store for those who have primed themselves for the Moscow Art Theatre performance of "La Locandiera" by reading the "official book of the play," as also for those who remember Eleonora Duse's production. In reviving Goldoni's masterpiece, Stanislavsky has brushed aside all modern condensations and put on the comedy in its original five scenes, here called acts, and with two female characters that have long been cut out.

There is much to be said for both versions. Goldoni's Mirandolina, Mistress of the Inn, though a character of highly artificial comedy, is a creature of such essential womanhood, and so finely psychologized withal, that it is quite possible to play her in the manner of high comedy. As interpreted by Duse, she became a young minx of the subtlest charm, the most delicate and delightful humor—Duse's one comedy part that gained world-wide fame. Yet Stanislavsky's fidelity to "the Molière of Italy" is no less deserving praise.

In his authentic version the essential subtlety of the part of course remains, though relegated to a secondary plane, to a sort of dramaturgic subconsciousness. The surface values gain greatly in variety and brilliance of color, in liveliness of action—in comic force if not in comedic subtlety. What Mirandolina has lost in verisimilitude she has gained in the more obvious theatric appeal. As played by Olga Pishova, she makes saucy moues and rolls glassy eyes at her many adorers. Her plastique and gesture are so far from the Duse manner as to remind one constantly of Katinka of the doll-like polka. The whole production, in fact, recalled the Chauve Souris. Costumes and scenes are gayly colored in the latest Russian manner and the acting has a verve and a go that seem inspired by Zakoff but were in reality the original source of his inspiration. For almost four hours, beginning punctually at eight, the audience was kept in a gentle breeze of amusement—or that part of it, at least, which could follow the neat turns of the dialogue.

Stanislavsky played the woman-hating Cavalier, chief quarry of the all conquering Mirandolina, with a fine gruffness and comic spirit. It is a performance more humanly recognizable than that of Olga Pishova, which seemed at times disillusioning in its insistent artificiality. Olga Knipper-Tchekhova and Varvara Bulgakova played two actresses masquerading as titled dames. These are the characters that were cut in the Duse version and, so far as the imperfectly Muscovite observer could gather last night, their humors were rather too ponderous on the one part and littlenish on the other.

The men were admirable, as always in the productions of this marvelously versatile company, and not only Burdzhaloff and Vishnevsky, but the servants played by Tamiroff and Dobronravoff, who gave two of the most human and humorous performances of the evening.

"The Mistress of the Inn" will be repeated on the remaining evenings of this week and on two Saturday evenings thereafter. It strikes a note quite new in the American repertory of the company, and should be witnessed by all true Muscovites.

INSISTED ON PRIVATE CAR.

Didn't Know Contract Failed to Provide One, Says Nora Bayes.

Supreme Court Justice Mullan said yesterday that he would appoint a referee to hear the suit of Fulcher & Bohan, theatrical managers, to restrain Nora Bayes from appearing on the Keith circuit or elsewhere except under their management until sixteen weeks from Oct. 17 last, when, it is alleged, her contract with them was made.

Counsel for Miss Bayes asserted that she would not have signed the contract had she known she would be billed to give an "intime revue" or to play one night stands without a private car. The attorney insisted that she had to quit because she became ill from the strain of traveling. The car would have cost $1,400 a week, and counsel for the theatrical managers said that Miss Bayes at first agreed to pay part of this sum out of her salary of $2,500 a week and a third of the net profits of the tour, but later produced a physician's certificate that she was unable to continue the itinerary.

Moriz Rosenthal, Pianist, Arrives.

Moriz Rosenthal, noted pianist, who has not visited the United States for seventeen years, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic to make his fifth tour through the principal cities to the Pacific Coast under the management of the Wolfsohn Musical Bureau, Inc. He left for Chicago, where he will give his first concert tomorrow. The pianist will make his first appearance this tour in New York on Dec. 14 at Carnegie Hall.

Mr. Rosenthal said that he did not care much for the ultra-modern composers, but preferred the modern school. He will also play works from the old composers.

Although Mr. Rosenthal made his first appearance in America thirty-five years ago, he is young looking for his age and has few gray hairs in his long black wavy hair.

Lona Schmidt Here for 'The Miracle'

Lona Schmidt, an attractive blue-eyed twenty-five-year-old, tall, slim blond and said to be the most beautiful actress in Vienna, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic to play one of the leading rôles in the Morris Gest and Max Reinhardt production of "The Miracle." She has played principal parts in the big spectacles produced during the last four years in the Austrian capital and in Berlin.

On the liner also came Luis Rainer, a noted Viennese actor, who will play an important part in "The Miracle."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Hell Bent," a play by Hatcher Hughes, will be produced in New York by Marc Klaw, Inc., late next month.

"Sharlee," a musical comedy, will open at Daly's Sixty-third Street Theatre tonight.

"My Dear Lady" will be the title of the musical piece to be produced by Laurence Schwab. Constance Bliney and Marjorie Gateson will head the cast.

The Union of East and West will stage a performance of "The Bird and the Fish," by Mabelle Shapleigh and Alfred Kahn, tomorrow afternoon at the Garrick Theatre.

Frederick Lonsdale will sail for London on the Majestic Saturday.

Ruth Draper will give an extra recital tomorrow afternoon at the Selwyn Theatre.

Mary Kennedy, who played the leading feminine part in "In the Next Room" when it was produced last Spring, will again be seen in the part at the Vanderbilt Theatre next Tuesday night.

Theodore Roberts will be seen at the Palace next week in a sketch, "The Man Higher Up," by William C. De Mille. Hazel Dawn will be another on the Palace program next week.

MUSIC NOTES.

"Carmen" will be sung at the Metropolitan this afternoon for the benefit of the Bloomingdale Day Nursery Association.

The Symphony Players, twenty musicians of the new Civic Symphony Orchestra, give a concert this evening at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church.

The newly formed Orpheum Society holds its first concert this evening at the Savoy Hotel.

TRIAL OF SONG ROW OPENS.

Music Publisher Asks $1,000,000 Damages, Alleging Piracy.

Trial of the action instituted last Spring by Fred Fisher, music publisher, to restrain further singing of the song "Ka-lu-a" in the musical comedy "Good Morning, Dearie," was begun yesterday before Federal Judge Knox. The defendants are Charles Dillingham, the T. B. Harms Company, Jerome Kern, Ann Caldwell and Edward Joyce.

It was alleged that a recurrent base note in the song "Dardanella" had been pirated and used in "Ka-lu-a." The defendants contended the notes in question were taken from works of musical masters more or less ancient. While Mr. Fisher, the only witness of the day, was testifying musicians who will later testify were practicing the disputed notes in an adjoining room. Claims for damages amount to about $1,000,000.

HAMPDEN BREAKS BONE IN A STAGE LEAP

Walter Hampden's production of "Cyrano de Bergerac" will be compelled to halt for at least two weeks because of the injury suffered by the star during the performance Tuesday night. Mr. Hampden, while taking a leap called for in the third scene of the play, broke a bone in his left foot.

After a brief interval the star finished the performance, but yesterday it was found necessary to encase the foot in a plaster cast. According to present expectations Mr. Hampden will resume the run of the play on Monday night, Dec. 10. "Cyrano" has proved to be Mr. Hampden's greatest success, and the shutting down of the play at this time will deprive the star of the Thanksgiving performances, customarily the most profitable period of the year.

SETTLE MUSICIANS' STRIKE.

Yiddish Art Theatre Proceeds With Levick's "Beggars."

The strike of musicians, actors and ushers which caused the abandonment of the first performance of H. Levick's "Beggars" at the Yiddish Art Theatre Tuesday night was settled yesterday by an arbitration committee and last night's performance went through on schedule.

The musicians, who had been playing during the performances of the first play of the season, insisted on playing Tuesday night at the première of the new play. The management said the play did not require music. The musicians insisted on playing or on being paid for the remainder of the season. When their request was refused they called on the actors and ushers, who are fellow members of the United Hebrew Trades, and the latter joined in a sympathetic walkout.

An arbitration committee consisting of Maurice Swartz, director of the theatre; Rubin Guskin, President of the Hebrew Actors' Union, and representatives of the Jewish Musicians' Union and of the Yiddish press straightened out the tangle yesterday and they will draw up terms of a financial nature shortly.

Wed on Stage of Little Theatre.

To the accompaniment of grinding motion-picture cameras, and in the presence of an audience that had come to see "Chicken Feed," a wedding ceremony was performed at the Little Theatre yesterday afternoon following the matinée. Dr. Frank Crane officiated.

The contracting parties were Mary A. Tichenor of Salisbury, N. C., and Upham S. Moore of Wilmington, N. C.

Henry Duffy, leading man of the play, acted as best man, and the entire company trooped onto the stage in make-up to observe the ceremony.

ORATORIO SOCIETY BEGINS ITS JUBILEE

"Elijah" of Mendelssohn Sung at the Start of a Season's Festal Observances.

A MIGHTY CHORUS OF 300

Conductor Albert Stoessel Provides a "Comeback" of Choral Singing of an Elder Day.

Flanked by green palm clusters and banners in gold proclaiming "Jubilee—Oratorio Society of New York, 1873-1923," an augmented chorus of that veteran organization began in Carnegie Hall last night a season's celebration of the society's half-century in musical service with a prophecy of greater service hereafter. Because of the coming dual performances of "The Messiah," to be sung as usual at Christmas time, there was abundant fitness in starting the festival observances with a work easily second favorite after Handel's own, the "Elijah" of Mendelssohn. This work, unheard for several seasons, had first been performed by the Oratorio Society in 1874, the third year of the then young chorus under Leopold Damrosch. It was sung last evening for the thirtieth time in fifty-one seasons.

There was new life in the "Elijah" of 300 voices freshly trained by Albert Stoessel, with an enthusiasm bred in camp service during the war. The mighty chorus could have been swelled to 400 had it not been found impossible to seat so many on a platform which also held the players of the New York Symphony Orchestra. Many of the white-robed women choristers present therefore did not sing, but found place among the listeners in the few unsold seats of the hall's floor and galleries. On the crowded stage the men numbered about a third of the choir. The soloists were those of latter years—Lillian Gustafson, Ruth Rodgers, Marjorie Squires, Richard Crooks and Louis Graveure—and the organist, Philip James.

The chorus rose and applauded the entrance at 8:30 o'clock of Conductor Stoessel and the stars. Mr. Graveure as Elijah set a keynote for the singing in the Prophet's first words that rang clearly above the translucent orchestra of Mendelssohn's prelude—music of grace and delicacy, or light and decorative line, like the art and architecture of its own period. Then came the choral appeal, "Help, Lord," with a substantial, sculpturesque volume of tone not unworthy of two generations of singers gone, and recalling in Carnegie's more confined acoustics the mass effects of forgotten "monster festivals."

It was a "come back" of choral singing of an elder day, suggesting in its spirit of earnestness, increased tone volume and reverent treatment of Biblical text the most striking instance of popular musical reaction since the World War. An honorable history of the society was recalled in printed folders, which gave portraits of the "founder and living conductors," but omitted one not living, the late Louis Koemmenich, whose deposition by the directors in 1917 led to open protest by 200 singing members. M. Koemmenich was conductor for five years, and Mr. Stoessel, who followed after an interregnum, is already in the fifth year of a like term, with a confident future before him.

Of those who have contributed silently to the Oratorio Society's maintenance and progress, many were present last evening, while others not present were accounted for by subscriptions to its fund. Among the named boxholders were Mrs. Carnegie, Charles M. Schwab, the sons and grandsons of Dr. Damrosch and many clergymen of many faiths. Others were former Treasurer P. H. Comstock, E. R. Stettinius, Theophile Eppler, Hartwell Wilkins, C. Riegger, C. F. Ahlstrom, Alfred Bourne, Mrs. W. C. Demorest, Mrs. H. B. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, W. H. Johns, W. H. Maiden, James B. Munn, Dr. John P. Munn, C. H. Newman, H. Wheeler Pooler, John A. Poynton, Miss Fifine Pressler, Robert E. Simon and R. W. Tebbs.

MANAGERS MAY SPLIT ON EQUITY PLAN

Twenty Are Said to Oppose the Agreement Proposed by Lee Shubert.

Alignment of forces for tomorrow's meeting of the Producing Managers' Association continued yesterday, and another meeting of those opposed to the Equity-Shubert plan was held in the offices of Sam H. Harris. It is claimed that twenty producers, including many of the most prominent, have come together to oppose the proposed settlement. Since it would require a two-thirds vote to adopt the agreement, the solid vote of these twenty would be effective in balking its adoption.

It is thought that tomorrow's meeting of the organization may definitely settle the matter one way or the other, as the three weeks allotted by the Actors' Equity Association have almost elapsed. The Shubert forces, so far as is known, are standing firm in their determination to accept the agreement, a step that would mean the breaking up of the managers into two separate organizations.

John Golden said yesterday that all announcements listing him on one side or the other were false, as he had not yet determined whether to vote for or against the agreement.

MUSIC

"Tannhäuser" at the Opera.

By H. C. COLLES.

TANNHAEUSER. Music drama in three acts and four scenes. German text and music by Richard Wagner. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

Landgraf Hermann	Paul Bender
Tannhaeuser	Rudolf Laubenthal
Wolfram	Clarence Whitehill
Walther	George Meader
Biterolf	Carl Schlegel
Heinrich	Max Bloch
Reinmar	William Gustafson
Elisabeth	Maria Jeritza
Venus	Margarete Matzenauer
A Shepherd	Raymonde Delaunois
Four Pages	Grace Anthony Minnie Egener Laura Robertson Louise Hunter

Conductor, Artur Bodansky.

"Tannhäuser" of all Wagner's operas is the one built on a strong and simple stage situation. It owes its widespread popularity, as compared with "Der Fliegende Hollander" and "Lohengrin," largely to that fact. Tannhäuser, torn between the desires of the flesh and the aspirations of the spirit, is a human figure; no artifice is required for the development of his story. The antithesis between the Venusberg and the pilgrim's song on the Wartburg, so effectively asserted in the overture, maintains itself throughout the three acts. It gave Wagner, even in the first draft of the opera, magnificent opportunity for the display of that power of dramatic characterization in his music which marked him at once as a great operatic composer.

He accentuated the contrasts much more vividly when he revised the opera for its revival in Paris fifteen years later. In doing so he risked a good deal, for he did not carry the revision far enough, and the fervor of his mature orchestration in the first scene undoubtedly threw into relief some bald places which he left as they originally appeared in later scenes. But when all the weak places have been admitted and the patchwork noted, the opera remains but little injured by them, because of the conviction with which Wagner concentrated on the emotional crises of the situation and the moments of sheer musical inspiration which they provoked in him.

In last night's performance under Mr. Bodanzky's direction we were given the full flavor of the brilliant ballet music of the Venusberg scene, and the performance throughout was noteworthy for its orchestral finish and, the care with which the elaborate ensembles were treated. Small blemishes of intonation on the part of the choruses off the stage, and occasionally of the principals on it, were apparent, however, and such things, even if they amount to no more than a fear that the singers are going to flatten, are always distracting.

Rudolf Laubenthal was the Tannhäuser, and while he sang earnestly and finely he is hardly the ideal representative of the part able to carry all before him. He began with something of that constricted quality of tone which was a drawback to his first appearance in "Die Meistersinger," but he is so free from many of the worst faults of the average German tenor that it is to be hoped he will overcome this one. As he warmed to his work, his singing became freer. But he lacks a good deal of the dramatic impulse of the thing. In the hall of song scene it was difficult to believe him to be racked with turbulent passions. His ascetic appearance belied him; several of the devout defenders of sacred love looked far more likely to succumb to their lower natures than he, and he never seemed really fired to ecstasy or extinguished in despair.

Again it seemed a curious arrangement which cast Mme. Matzenauer for Venus and Mme. Jeritza for Elisabeth. The former sang with purity of style and refinement; the latter in every movement and tone is naturally full-blooded and impulsive. Mme. Jeritza seemed wanting in quiet sustaining qualities in the earlier scenes of the second act; her moment came when she threw herself between Tannhäuser and his accusers. When all the perfect ladies gathered up their skirts and ran away, she stood out as the real woman, with enough of the Venus in her still to love and protect the sinner, and her voice was splendid in that moment. But she hardly fulfilled the ideal of the sainted Elisabeth elsewhere.

With Mr. Bender singing impressively as the Landgrave and Mr. Whitehall giving character to the rather colorless part of Wolfram by his fine singing, some passages of the score which are apt to pass with slight notice gained an unusual importance. The cast was well completed in the smaller parts by singers who understood how much greater is the whole than the part.

Did Not Give Scenery to Rosenfeld.

The scenery used by Sydney Rosenfeld for "Virginia Runs Away" was only loaned and not given, according to a decision handed down yesterday by Magistrate George W. Simpson in the West Side Court. As a result, "Virginia Runs Away" is unlikely to be acted in New York again in the near future.

Mr. Rosenfeld, author of the play, brought L. Lawrence Weber into court yesterday on a charge of stopping performances of his play at the Longacre Theatre by removing the scenery from the playhouse. Testimony was given that Mr. Weber and John Cort, the original producer of the play, were the owners of the scenery, and that they had jointly removed it. It was held by Magistrate Simpson that they were within their rights in so doing.

Jeneie Callaway-John in Songs.

Jeneie Callaway-John gave her annual recital of soprano songs last evening at Aeolian Hall, with the assistance of Richard Hageman at the piano. Respighi's "Au milieu du jardin" was given with much charm of manner, fluency of tone and excellent phrasing. While she did not give any evidences of vocal power, there was no lack of expression in her interpretations and she provided a varied and pleasant evening of music. There were modern groups of songs in German, French and English, as well as three songs by Respighi and two operatic airs by Mozart. An audience of good size applauded enthusiastically and presented the singer with generous floral gifts.

DILUTING THE MELLON PLAN.

About this time it was to be expected that politicians in Washington, who at first were opposed to Secretary MELLON and all his works, should be casting about for a compromise. They have felt the extraordinary force of public opinion demanding that taxes be cut. This is so strong that they cannot resist it. But they fancy that they will be able partially to evade it. Their theory is that not so much need be saved as Secretary MELLON urges, so that there may be something left for Congress to squander. Reduce the taxes, they say; why, certainly; but don't lower them so rashly as to take away the money needed for the bonus and other political luxuries.

A much-favored formula at Washington just now is said to be tax reduction so as to show a moderate retrenchment, but an indefinite bond issue so as to keep the soldier vote where it will do the most good. This is obviously a plan to slow down economy but to speed up extravagance. If bonds may rightly be issued for a bonus, so they may be for any other fixed governmental expenditure. As finance, the scheme is thoroughly unsound. As politics, it is doomed to failure. All that Secretary MELLON and President COOLIDGE have to do is to stand fast for their full program, and the shifty compromisers who are now willing to go half of it will be compelled to take it entire.

UNCLE SAM, CREDITOR.

It is agreeable to note that the Administration at Washington gives a very cold reception to the proposal that it should now proceed to "remind" France of her debt to the United States. Put forward on the reported authority of a prominent United States Senator, the idea seemed to be that the Department of State could follow up the failure of M. POINCARÉ to agree with Secretary HUGHES by a little note saying to the French Foreign Office: "By the way, "when are you going to pay us what "you owe?" But it needed no official denial to make sure that nothing could be further from the thought of Mr. HUGHES. It would be undignified for him to display any sense of being hurt by the break-down of his negotiations with the French Government. Moreover, it would be inconsistent for him to depart from the line respecting the French and other foreign debts which he marked out in his recent communication to Lord CURZON. The American position is that the loans made by the United States cannot be canceled, since to do so would be to void a solemn international obligation. But this Government, as Secretary HUGHES explains, means to be a considerate creditor, not pressing for payment in a way to make it awkward for th debtor, and always disposed to be reasonable in agreeing to convenient times and means of settlement.

There is no reason why we should plume ourselves regarding that attitude, as if it were specially virtuous. It is in reality forced by the circumstances of the case. Neither the United States nor Great Britain could compel France to pay up before she gets ready. There was a distinct intimation in the famous Balfour note, afterward repudiated by the British Government, that if the war debts were not scaled all around, England would be compelled to call upon France to begin paying at least interest on her debts. That was an extreme position which our Government has prudently refrained from taking. On the French side there have been irresponsible utterances, as by M. LOUCHEUR, to the effect that France cannot pay and never will pay. But the official statements by the French Government have always been correct: she would pay in due time. Only ten days ago the French Premier reiterated his previous assertions that France would never "repudiate" a just debt. On this subject the Temps recently laid down what it declared to be the true "French doctrine." This is that those concerned "ought not to "discuss the cancellation of debts but "to make arrangements for their "payment."

What this means on French lips everybody knows. Let Germany pay her debts in full, and France will discharge hers to the last centime. This being so, it is evident that for the United States to seize the present occasion in order to press for payment would be both ungracious and futile. The time has not yet come to offer the necessary adjustments and concessions. When it does come, it is to be hoped that the United States will be not simply an indulgent creditor but a sagacious and far-sighted one. France and the other European nations which owe us money might be able to offer us some things more valuable than cash. If certain trade arrangements could be made, certain political undertakings assumed, it might easily prove true that the United States would see a greater advantage in accepting them than in demanding the uttermost farthing from our debtors.

ONE WAY TO CELEBRATE EDUCATION WEEK.

The Board of Superintendents and the Board of Education in this city cannot observe Education Week in a more worthy way than by appointing to the vacant positions of District Superintendents the three best qualified persons among all those whose names are on the list of applicants. Nothing can do more to harm our schools than to let political or ecclesiastical or private considerations disturb the impartial weighing of merit in filling such highly important places. On the other hand, the appointment to these positions of men or women who in their own personal qualities, and acquisitions through study and experience, illustrate the virtues, attainments and ideals which we as a people wish to keep before our hundreds of thousands of children, and in the emulous sight of our thousands of teachers, will do more than all the Education Week speeches and popular celebrations to help the schools. For while popular interest is helpful and buildings are important, teachers are alone essential. Anything that interferes with the selection of the very best attainable as Superintendents becomes harmful to the great teaching staff of this largest school district in the world.

FAVORITE SONS MUST FIGHT.

Authoritative statements that the California delegates are not to be turned over to Senator HIRAM JOHNSON as if they were his own sunkissed oranges indicate the gloomy outlook for favorite sons in general. If Secretary HOOVER'S friends are to organize in California so as to secure for President COOLIDGE at least a large fraction of the delegation, similar steps will doubtless be taken in other States. Already Senator WILLIS of Ohio has perceived the danger signals. He firmly declines to be the favorite son of Ohio and adds, as if with a warning allusion to other gentlemen who may be aspiring to that honor, that President HARDING left no political heirs in his own State. Pennsylvania had been set down as a sort of preserve for Governor PINCHOT, but strange rumors come that he will have to fight for every delegate he gets, and that the majority of the men sent from the Keystone State to the National Convention will be either uninstructed or openly for President COOLIDGE.

A pretty pass we have come to if favorite sons have got to make their own the words of the hymn: "Sure I must fight if I would win." This is a sad falling off from the political courtesies of other days. What could be more gracious, and at the same time more harmless, than to allow a favorite son to have without question the delegates from his own State? It was usually an empty honor—though sometimes a little expensive for the favorite son. He was ordinarily content to have been thus honorably "mentioned" for the Presidency. The fact would appear in the political history books. His family would be pleased, his friends gratified or amused. His name would appear for a ballot or two in the National Convention and then would vanish to be heard of no more. The whole is a form of public vanity so transparent and ineffective that it seems almost hard-hearted not to allow simple-hearted politicians to indulge in it. But the political advisers of the President seem to have resolved to make an end of the pretty game.

Perhaps they woke up to the fact that the game, as it was proposed to play it this year, was not so very pretty or negligible. If only favorite sons could be multiplied throughout the land, and each one given the delegates from his own State without a contest, the possibilities of interesting combinations and sharp bargains at the National Convention would be great and tempting. Most of the favorite sons, it is true, would be expected to figure only in the ruck of candidates, but one or two of them might secretly be picked out as the dark horses upon whom the political gamblers would place their money. This sort of "killing" in the great national sweepstakes next year has been seemingly headed off by the friends of President COOLIDGE. He is not seeking delegates, but if his supporters in the various States offer them to him, how can he prevent that? The favorite sons could perhaps tell him how, but their modesty would scarcely permit their doing so. Besides, their time will hereafter be too much taken up with defending their vested interests at home. It may be that even the great Senator JOHNSON will have to return to California to fight for what he thought was his without a struggle. And the worst of it is that he would seem to be going back in the guise, not of a favorite son, but of a prodigal son.

THE VETERANS' BUREAU SCANDAL.

For nearly a month the Senate subcommittee has been holding open hearings to investigate "the leases "and contracts executed by the "United States Veterans' Bureau or "the Treasury Department for vocational schools and hospitals, and for "the purchase, rentals and sales of "real estate and supplies used or to "be used directly or indirectly by the "Veterans' Bureau for the veterans "of the World War." It is well to bear in mind these instructions to the committee. Open hearings are now to be followed by executive sessions at which all the evidence gathered is to be examined. Upon it a report to the Senate will be based. While in the hearings charges of spoliation of the Government and graft have been made and reputations have been assailed, it may be inferred from a statement made by General O'RYAN that the evidence taken under oath did not come as a surprise to the committee. General O'RYAN said:

> What has been presented in the public hearings constitutes but a fragment of what has been developed since the investigation began last March, both in regard to the neglect of the disabled and corruption and waste in the Veterans' Bureau.

It now appears that the committee had the assistance of a volunteer organization of lawyers, doctors and specialists, most of whom were ex-service men. On Oct. 25 Chairman REED intimated that the material collected, together with the evidence brought out at the open hearings, would be laid before the Department of Justice. The following day the statement was given out at Washington that the department was preparing to go before a special Grand Jury. This announcement was made after a conference between the Attorney General and the President.

What the committee brought out at the open hearings may now be regarded, in view of what General O'RYAN says, as little more than an indication of the plundering of the Government and the criminal neglect of disabled veterans that have gone on since Congress established the bureau. Large sums of money were paid for undesirable hospital sites; excessive fees were given to architects and agents; supplies needed by the bureau were carted off and sold for a song; bribes were offered. The trail of corruption was over many enterprises intended for the relief of ex-service men. The politicians were accomplices, or allowed themselves to be used by rogues. It is an old story that the politicians filled the bureaus with their creatures. Congress had a great deal to say about the conduct of the bureau and was much deferred to. Members of Congress were in part responsible for its incompetent management, and there is no doubt that Congress was to blame for delaying for two years an investigation of the bureau.

ITALY AND SPAIN.

The visit of the King and Queen of Spain to Rome is a great social occasion. It also has political significance in that it seems to bring nearer the prospective reconciliation between the Quirinal and the Vatican. Yet doubtless the most important aspect of the international festivities may be seen in the conferences between Dictator MUSSOLINI and Dictator PRIMO RIVERA. These gentlemen are both pledged to give their countries a strong and efficient Government, abroad as well as at home, and they are at present not responsible to Parliaments. For them it is easier than for ordinary statesmen to strike out in new courses. So we hear much vague talk of an Italian-Spanish rapprochement based on common Latin blood.

The Latin blood is a convenient excuse, no doubt, yet it must be observed that, in so far as an Italian-Spanish combination might be directed against another Power, the State most immediately threatened is the one which for some centuries past has posed as the leader of the Latin peoples. MUSSOLINI ought to be grateful for such French support as he got in the Corfu affair, but he can hardly show himself too grateful in view of the continued ill-feeling against France which is strong in all sections of Italy. Tunis and Corsica are still sore spots; and there are sources of trouble not only in the past but in the future. The great problem of all the Mediterranean countries today is the Italian birth rate—a problem most serious for Italy herself. The outlet offered by immigration to the United States has been largely cut off. What is Italy going to do with her surplus population?

Some of the nearest and most natural fields for Italian expansion are barred by France or by England. Latin feeling against the supposed Anglo-Saxon preponderance in world affairs may seem ridiculous to "Anglo-Saxons" who see little reason to speak, in these times, of racial unity a- between Great Britain and the United States, and fail to observe any notable signs of Anglo-American cooperation in recent world affairs. But it is a very real feeling in both France and Italy, and like some German sentiments before the war must be accepted as a political fact, even though unfounded.

Now Spain, of recent years, has been more or less constrained to follow England's lead, in the Moroccan question, for instance. England, as usual, got more out of the collaboration than did her partner. With MUSSOLINI notifying the world of Italy's interest in Tangier, Spain and Italy may be able to collaborate as a third party in the Moroccan question, lately left as a bone of contention between France and England. In an Italian-Spanish combination Italy must of necessity be the stronger partner, but it might serve both Italian and Spanish interests better than the oscillation between the French side and the English side to which both States have hitherto been condemned.

COLLEGE EXAMINATIONS.

The meaning that should be given the proposal to abolish certain examinations at Columbia College is, according to The Columbia Spectator, that it was only one feature of a program for promoting student responsibility, both in scholastic and non-scholastic activities. The ultimate object was to make it possible for the student to receive "a more satisfactory intellectual "background for his college experi-"ence." Just how an examination, at any rate an examination of the right kind, takes away from a serious student—and it is only he whom it is proposed to relieve from final examinations—a sense of responsibility or robs him of his own intellectual background is not clear.

What can more effectually deepen that responsibility, at any rate for those whose own intellectual eagerness does not supply it, than a knowledge that they must give an accounting of the deeds done in their intellects during the period of their instruction?

For those who have a high average and who have presumably this sense of responsibility already developed there is the added reason which Dean HAWKES suggests, that the examination itself forms a part of the student's education. It is worth while to test the mind fed at the intellectual table in training for the supreme game for which students cannot prepare in a few days immediately before the examination any more successfully than players can for participation in the great varsity games. The contest not only adds to the incentive; it gives a fuller measure of ability to use all the powers both of information and of reasoning that a student has in order to meet a critical situation. Obviously it should be no such examination as a student can pass with "extraneous" aid.

There are "final examinations" in nearly every occupation where human intellect or strength or skill enter to any considerable degree. There are always elements of uncertainty also that add hazards of unfairness to the tests even at their best. This is true in every field of human activity. In college sports the tests are already applied and are inexorable and no respecters of persons. There are preliminaries, semi-finals and finals. It is only the players who fall in the tests along the way that are denied the final trials, from which in scholarship it is proposed to excuse the best students. It is to the practice of the football field that the intellectual sluggard should be sent at this season to consider its ways and be wise. The problem is not how to get rid of examinations, but how to make them real tests that both measure and add to the strength of those who take them.

AGRICULTURAL ROMANCE AND REALITY.

Senator BROOKHART of Iowa can hit almost anything with a rifle. That makes it more curious that his mind almost invariably misses a fact. Ever since his election he has been shooting at statistics. He finds it easier to set up clay-birds of his own, so to speak. These he brings down with great satisfaction to himself. He produces imaginative figures. He scatters millions with a lavish hand. He flits over the country exhibiting these. Their romantic character is often exposed. Sometimes it is exposed in his own presence by speakers who follow him. But nothing can shake his firm belief in his own mythology. He circulates joyously, repeating or adding to it. He was here the other day, smiting the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, to the Federal Reserve Board, shows the facts. A basic change in agriculture has come since the end of the World War. Inevitably, that war stimulated production and put up the price of farm lands. Inevitably, too, when the stimulation ceased and the farmers had to return from extraordinary to ordinary conditions, those of them who had already overextended their credit had to suffer. The fittest survived. This readjustment brought about considerable losses. It was a passing phase, not a permanent condition. Today farming is on a sound foundation. Mr. RICH tells us that in the Northwestern grain area there are 388,242 farms. Of the farmers in the region 203,040 are altogether or mainly grain raisers. Of these, 5,388 "are "bankrupt or being foreclosed, 9,302 "so involved as to be in imminent "danger of bankruptcy, and 4,959 "have been forced to abandon their "farms."

The ratio of failure is thus 7.2 per cent. Clearly, the farming business is a good deal safer than ordinary business. Notice that the highest percentage of failure, 17.7, was in Montana. Why? Because in that State "51 per cent. of those who went upon "the lands were without previous "farming experience and 30 per cent. "had no capital." There was too much credit rather than too little. The two Dakotas, Minnesota and Montana were overbanked. Governor NESTOS told us the other day that North Dakota had a bank for every seven hundred inhabitants. Not want of credit, but want of business capacity, of knowledge of farming methods, of thrift and energy, was the main cause of failure. In two-thirds of the cases additional credit would have been of no use.

Mr. RICH denies that the farmers as a class are in bad financial shape. "The ratio of assets to debt for agri-"culture as a whole is satisfactory, "although the same statement nat-"urally does not apply in many indi-"vidual cases." So, while Senator BROOKHART as the mandatary of dissatisfaction and distress that are lessening and passing howls for Government aid to the farmers, this unprejudiced expert, who has studied in detail the agricultural and financial situation in half a dozen grain-farming States, comes to the conclusion which many politicians who cater specially to the farmer have also reached: "The seri-"ous problems confronting farmers in "the Northwestern grain country are "the product of economic causes and "are not to be cured by political or "legislative processes."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

For Thirty Years His Friend.

Of the almost innumerable tributes to Dr. STEINMETZ that have been written since his death, none has shown more appreciation of his achievements and character than that contributed by E. W. RICE, Honorary Chairman of the General Electric Board, to the Nov. 16 issue of Science.

The association of the two men began thirty years ago, at the time when the General Electric Company was organized. Among the small companies then taken in was that of RUDOLPH EICHMEIER of Yonkers, and Mr. RICE advised its admission only on condition that with it came a young engineer of whom he knew nothing except that he had written for the scientific journals articles showing notable originality and intellectual power. Of their first meeting Mr. RICE says:

> I was startled, and somewhat disappointed, by the strange sight of a small frail body, surmounted by a large head, with long hair hanging to the shoulders, clothed in an old cardigan jacket, cigar in mouth, sitting cross-legged on a laboratory work table. My disappointment was but momentary and completely disappeared when he began to talk. I instantly felt the strange power of his piercing but kindly eyes, and, as he continued, his enthusiasm, his earnestness, his clear conception and marvelous grasp of engineering problems convinced me that we had made a great find.

This picture of STEINMETZ remained correct for the rest of his life, and Mr. RICE'S opinion of him changed only as he came to realize that his quality as a man equaled those possessed by him as an engineer.

Far From a Mere Theorist

To most of us it means nothing when Mr. RICE writes that STEINMETZ'S first great achievement was his demonstration of "the laws governing losses in iron subjected to varying magnetic induction," and that "the hysteresis varied as the 1.6 power of the density of magnet flux," but it seems that as a result of that demonstration "the quality of our electrical machinery was improved, and the weights and costs reduced," and that "it is difficult at this date to realize the fundamental importance of this one contribution to the orderly and definite progress of the electrical industry."

It was when that industry changed from the use of the direct to the use of the alternating current that STEINMETZ'S powers as a mathematician had their first full play. At once the manufacturers of electrical apparatus had to pass from the realm of arithmetic to that of the calculus, for the problems to be solved were of enormously increased complexity.

"STEINMETZ," writes Mr. RICE, "took hold of this situation with characteristic energy and soon brought order out of chaos." By the use of what was known as "complex quantities" he "abolished the mystery and obscurity surrounding the alternating current," and not only used the system himself but taught "our engineers to do the same work by methods almost as simple as ordinary arithmetic and algebra."

Mr. RICE gives no support to the theory that STEINMETZ lacked practicality—that he lived in the abstract world of "pure" science. He both denies and confutes that theory by crediting the man with a great number of useful inventions and describing several of them. And he takes equal pains to show STEINMETZ as having many besides professional interests—as a good citizen. He tells a significant story of talking, just after STEINMETZ'S death, with one of his near neighbors. The neighbor's praise ended with, "and he was my friend," spoken with deep emotion. The neighbor's little son, only seven years old, listened to the conversation and joined in with, "He was my friend, too, daddy."

Criminality Almost at Its Limit.

Lamentably numerous as are people who allow themselves to be led away from real medicine and to risk their lives by subjecting themselves to treatment by the practitioners of one or another delusive cult, nobody can fail to realise the enormity of the crime committed by the men who have been selling medical diplomas to anybody willing to pay for them, and so scattering through the country scores and hundreds of men whose only claim to public confidence is an unearned title of "M. D."

It is hard to tell whether the managers of the "diploma mills" or those who exploit their worthless parchments are the worse. "Murderer" seems a name too kindly for application to either class, but in an ultimate analysis it is probable that the granters of the fake degrees are deserving of a deeper condemnation and heavier punishment than are the ignorant wretches who profess to be doctors without one qualification for the tasks they assume to perform. The fraudulent doctors do the actual killing of deceived patients, but it is the teachers who do not teach that for sordid gain make the killing inevitable. They have no pretense of good intention, or even of the self-deception which serves as a sort of excuse for not a little of the current and popular quackery to which so many Legislatures have given legal rights.

Why Apples Come From Afar.

One of THE TIMES'S correspondents lamented yesterday that of the apples that reach our market, especially at this time of year, most are from far away, while better apples grown up-State never were picked because it did not pay to bring them here.

The lamentation was justified, but the consumer's grievance will not be remedied until the up-State orchardists become as wise as their rivals on the Pacific Coast, change individualism into co-operation, and learn how to grade, pack, transport and advertise their products. When they do that, and when they realize that apples in small orchards are almost unsalable, no matter how good they are, then the Western growers will not find it so easy to overcome the handicaps of inferior quality and longer haul to market.

We unfortunate New Yorkers hardly can organize to buy our apples, but the farmers in this part of the country, if they would, could organize to sell them to us, much to the satisfaction and profit of all concerned.

Our Debt to Rome, N. Y.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Sunday, Nov. 18, was an article entitled "It Is a Mighty Mean City That Boasts No Nickname," which I read anticipating that you were telling the world that Rome, N. Y., was known as "The Copper City," because more than one-tenth of the copper used in the United States was manufactured in Rome. Not that we thought that the world didn't know it. We believed it did.

However, as the gentleman who wrote the article did not know it or forgot it, we hasten to tell him, or remind him, as the case may be.

ROME CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.
E. D. BEVITT, Secretary.
Rome, Nov. 20, 1923.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What ails the staff when "riding on the cars" to Syracuse that eyesight, day or night, does not disclose the blazoned panoply of painted and illuminated signs that all proclaim "Rome—The Copper City"?

True, she is small, but looms large in copper—she cannot boast a Central Park, garnished and swept(?) immaculate in its neatness(?), nor Hippodromes (that were), nor lights of either white or rosy tint that lure the green and tempt the unwary "countrymen" to shed their pelf, but just the same, one-tenth of all the copper that ye use is wrought in Rome.

Haven't you ever heard, too, that there is no crime in Rome? Why? Because it is the Copper City. Once more, Rome needs no police protection! Why? Same answer.

Law-abiding, amendment-observing town! with copper, copper everywhere, nor any drop to drink! Don't slight Rome! You make stills out of our copper, and one-tenth of your destiny thereby is in our hands.

Votes for Higher Living Costs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reason would lead one to think that most people would stand by every word appearing in the article published in today's NEW YORK TIMES entitled "Voting Higher Living Costs," and also that action on the referendum, as well as in any future referendum, ought not to be made operative until the revenue needed to meet the proposed expenditures should have been duly procured and enacted. The people are sympathetic, but surely they would also be fair. R. D. T.

Eye Strain at the Movies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have heard at the movies people complaining of the strain on their sight caused by the small print. Every one can't sit near. In Italy the whole screen is covered (and the "page turned" if necessary) to get big print. Here I see a close-fisted text on a very wide margin. No wonder oculists say movies double their business. Surely, the public could exact that the eyes of workers—their very life—need not be tired also at play time.

Marshall and Smith.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not Thomas R. Marshall for President and Alfred E. Smith for Vice President on the Democratic ticket? It seems to me that Marshall is one of our great men, not given to noise, but to solid achievement. And our own Al Smith—one of the people's people, broad, plain, democratic and efficient. READER.

"ON THE ROAD TO RYE."

Three witch houses
Down beside the Sea,
Roofs like old poke bonnets,
Like as like can be,
An' hidden eyes that seem to stare,
Cruel-like, at me!

Three witch houses,
Yellow, red and brown,
All the windows shut an' locked,
All the curtains down,
Yet somethin' seems a-watchin' as
I hurry by to town.

Beautiful the Fall is,
Earth an' Sea an' Sky,
Woods aflare with color
As the red leaves fly,
But somethin's there a-watchin' me
On that road to Rye!

Three witch houses,
Still an' small an' low:
How they stare o' Winter nights
When the four winds blow
As they huddle eerily
Under drifts of snow!

Cold they look an' old they look
When I hurry by;
Seems to me I see them wink,
Crafty-like and sly—
Three witch houses
On the road to Rye.

FIVE-TO-FOUR DECISIONS.

Ex-Justice Clarke's Proposal for Cases Involving Constitutionality.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the leading editorial article in THE TIMES of Nov. 20:

It seems very clear that your writer had not read my article, to which he refers, in The Journal of the American Bar Association, in which the suggestion is made that if two or more Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States should agree in concluding a disputed act of Congress to be valid, this could wisely be accepted by the other Justices as raising such a "rational doubt" as to its invalidity as would prevent its being held unconstitutional.

If your writer had read my article, he would scarcely have grouped my suggestion with the greatly different legislative proposals of Senators BORAH and LA FOLLETTE. After restating the sources of the power in United States courts to declare acts of Congress invalid and void, and unqualifiedly approving it as of the greatest value to our country, I commented upon several limitations on the power which have been self-imposed by the Court, among others the one never given stronger statement than in the Minimum Wage case opinion last April, in these words:

"The Court by an unbroken line of decisions from Chief Justice Marshall to the present day has steadily adhered to the rule that every possible presumption is in favor of the validity of an act of Congress until overcome beyond a rational doubt. But if by clear and indubitable demonstration a statute be opposed to the Constitution, we have no choice but to say so."

However, after thus expressing this limitation upon its power, the Court proceeded to declare the act involved unconstitutional and void, although Chief Justice Taft and Mr. Justice Sanford united in a carefully written opinion in declaring that in their judgment, "on the basis of reason, experience and authority," the act was valid, and although Mr. Justice Holmes in a separate opinion declared that to him the power of Congress to enact the law seemed "absolutely free from doubt."

Using this as an illustrative case, my suggestion, by no means a new one, is that when two or more Judges, equally able and experienced, who have heard the same arguments on the same record, are thus clear that an act of Congress is valid, this should be accepted by the other Judges as sufficient to raise "a rational doubt" as to the validity of their own thinking, and this under the rule, as frequently stated by the Court, would make impossible five to four constitutional decisions, which there is no denying are looked upon with great concern by many persons in our country. One-man power in soldier, King and Judge has so often proved a source of injustice and oppression that free people everywhere regard it with distrust and fear. My conclusion is that by treating this rule as a reality and not a mere form of words, the Court, in entire consonance with its best traditions, could avoid such five to four decisions and by such self-imposed restraint disarm much very serious criticism, and perhaps avoid a much greater statutory or constitutional limitation upon this fateful power which might prove disastrous to our constitutional system, and so to our country. I write thus fully because your article implies opposition on my part to the power discussed, when, in fact, I was writing to justify and sustain it, and the suggestion made was in the hope of adding to its permanence and popularity. JOHN H. CLARKE.
Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 20, 1923.

A Correction.

In the Rotogravure Picture Section of last Sunday's TIMES, Commander W. G. Roper was described as "The Commander of the Squadron of Destroyers Lost Off Honda Point." Commander Roper was in charge of one division only, and though this division formed part of the squadron at the time of the disaster, it escaped injury and Commander Roper was subsequently commended by the authorities.

Night Noises of New Jersey.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed the other day on your editorial page a comment on the fact that the people of Newark and New Jersey were recently called upon to fight a proposed law, which would, if passed, bring about the extermination of most of the dogs in that section of the country.

Here in the Oranges there is little annoyance from the barking of dogs. Our midnight noises are not of canine (or feline) but of human origin.

One is forced to ask: How may the self-respecting members of the community be protected in their right to a sound and sane sleep every night? How may that portion of the population who disturb their home town nearly every night of the week be dealt with in order to render them suitable occupants of anything save a home in a cave or jungle?

Why should not young people, assembled for innocent amusement, be willing to go quietly home late in the evening rather than parting from their hosts with wild whoops that would disgrace a dignified Indian chief? Do the rules of etiquette nowadays demand that a motor party of young ladies announce their coming (even in the daytime) by a chorus of yells, instead of the ringing of the doorbell, which used to be considered the means of notifying one's host that one had arrived? Do the laws of hospitality now require a host to stand on his front porch and send forth a mighty roar of farewell to his guests as their car departs? D. L. J.

Church Attendance Statistics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Wednesday THE TIMES published a statement of the Rev. John Ferguson, General Secretary of the Alliance for New York State, which said that a recent survey of 572 churches of this State showed a total morning attendance on Sunday of 27,727 persons, or an average at each church of 48.

Some of your readers, no doubt, are under the impression that Dr. Ferguson's report included Catholic churches. This is untrue. It will probably be interesting to know that in the diocese of Brooklyn alone, where there are 261 Catholic churches, the average Sunday attendance is between 375,000 and 900,000. At least five churches have an attendance every Sunday in the year of over 10,000, the edifices being filled seven and eight times. While I do not know the exact figures for Manhattan and the Bronx, I do know that the attendance at the Catholic churches there is fully as large, if not larger. PATRICK F. SCANLAN,

Racial Voting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several days ago a correspondent of THE TIMES attempted to disprove what he called the "bugaboo of the racial vote." It would take more than the figures he gives to convince all thoughtful people that there is no such thing. It is not a "bugaboo", but a growing menace to republican institutions when American issues are settled by the foreign vote, and not always from the viewpoint of American interests. The time is coming when both political parties will have to stand up and be counted as to the appeal to this vote. FRANCIS G. DeNANNY.

WORLD COURT PLEA MADE TO COOLIDGE

HUGHES ALSO APPEALED TO

He Is Urged to Call Economic Conference—Efforts on Reparations Commended.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge was urged by the Protestant churches of the country today to use his influence in having the United States become a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice. A delegation of churchmen and laymen visited the President with the plea. They represented the Federal Council of Churches, which includes thirty communions, with a membership of 20,000,000, and also spoke for the Southern Baptist, Unitarian and Universalist churches, which number several millions more.

No expression was asked from the President. The delegation merely left a statement signed by 500 religious leaders in all parts of the country, begging for this nation's entrance into the World Court. President Coolidge thanked his visitors for calling, and it was understood that he would give their request due consideration.

After they left the White House the delegation presented to Secretary Hughes a statement approving his efforts to bring about an economic conference to examine into the financial condition of Germany. In addition they handed to the Secretary a document adopted by the Administrative Committee of the council expressing its belief that the United States should call a conference to deal with the whole economic and political situation in Europe.

Plea Made to President.

The document presented to President Coolidge read:

"We, the undersigned, profoundly believe that the United States should cooperate with the other nations of the world in establishing world justice and world peace.

We therefore heartily endorse the proposal of the late President Harding in his message to the Senate on Feb. 24, 1923, that the United States become a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

"We also believe that all nations should agree to submit to impartial tribunals all disputes that threaten the peace of the world which they cannot solve by the usual processes of diplomacy and conference.

"In the World Court of Justice we see not only the fruition and consummation of many decades of American discussions, plans and desires for peace through justice based on law, but also a concrete expression of the Christian spirit that is needed, the promise of a larger and truer righteousness and justice among nations, a step forward in the establishment of the Kingdom of God."

The document given to Secretary Hughes read:

"The Administrative Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America believes that it is voicing the moral judgment of the overwhelming majority of thoughtful Christian people in making the following declaration:

"First—We believe that the United States should accept its full share of responsibility for bringing about an effective settlement of international problems. There are those who think the Government has a mandate from the people to pursue a policy of aloofness. We do not thus understand the situation. The churches have declared, and must declare again, their convictions that generous co-operation among the nations is absolutely necessary to cope with the present hunger, strife, uncertainty and despair of the world.

"The participation of the United States is indispensable to successful co-operative action. An attitude of aloofness exposes our foreign policy to the charge of timidity and ineffectiveness. The present crisis in Europe summons us not to pass judgment on other peoples, but, in a spirit of humility and self-examination, to review our own attitude as a nation and to ask ourselves how we may, by co-operation with other nations, help to meet the overwhelming responsibility which rests upon the entire world.

Suggest Conference Be Called.

"Second—We believe that the United States should take the initiative in calling an international conference to consider the whole economic and political situation in Europe, including reparations, debts and armaments, in the endeavor to accomplish in Europe a result comparable to that which was achieved by the Four-Power pact in the Far East.

"We welcome the suggestion of the late President Harding in his message to Congress on Dec. 6, when, in referring to that agreement, he said: 'It might be made a model for like assurances wherever in the world any common interests are concerned.' * * * We believe in the value of conferences and consultation, in the effectiveness of leaders of nations looking each other in the face.'

"In calling such a conference we believe that the United States should make it known, as it did at the opening session of the Conference on the Limitation of Armament, that we are ready to make, in common with other nations, whatever concessions, financial or otherwise, may be necessary to bring about an ordered international life.

"We are convinced that a sacrificial spirit on our part would evoke a willingness in other nations also to make the adjustments that may be needed. Our plans for reconstruction should include not only our allies but our former enemies. Bankers, economists and business men are telling us that only the re-establishment of normal economic conditions in Europe can bring prosperity to American agriculture and industry. What they declare necessary in order on the basis of enlightened self-interest we declare necessary also from the standpoint of the Christian ideal of brotherhood. The well-being of our own country is inseparably bound up with an unselfish consideration of the well-being of the other nations of the world.

Plead for Non-Political Action.

"We call upon the membership of the churches throughout the country to make a united appeal in behalf of this program of international co-operation, to make known their attitude to the President and their representatives in Congress and to assure the Administration of their aid in developing a strong public opinion in its support.

"We especially urge Christian people everywhere to approach these momentous issues on their merits, irrespective of all partisan considerations. We make this plea on the highest moral and religious ground, believing that beneath all these problems lies the need of a great spiritual awakening and a deeper conviction that Christian principles are as binding upon national as upon personal conduct."

George W. Wickersham acted as spokesman for the delegation, which included Bishop James E. Freeman of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Washington, Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. W. S. Abernathy, pastor to President Harding, representing the Baptists of the country; Dr. Wallace Radcliffe of the Northern Presbyterian Church, Dr. Earle Willfley of the Disciples of Christ, Dr. Walter A. MRS. SELFRIDGE IS COMING.

Mother of Famous London Merchant Sails for New York.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Selfridge, mother of Gordon Selfridge, accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Beatrice Selfridge, sailed for New York aboard the Olympic today. Other passengers included Lady Queenborough and Sir Richard Squires, ex-Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and Lady Squires.

Mme. Selfridge, as she is best known in London, where she is one of the famous hostesses of these days, is making this journey back to her native land in her ninetieth year. Born in the backwoods of Michigan in the days of slavery, she has lived to become the gracious chatelaine of Lansdowne House in Berkley Square, a stately property leased by her son, H. Gordon Selfridge.

That change of environment, from a primitive American forest, whither her father had traveled in an ox cart only three years before her birth, to a London home of wealth and fashion is not the only great transition through which Mme. Selfridge has passed in her long span of life. It has been said that the world has changed more in her life time than it did in the two thousand years before, and she has kept pace with all its advances.

Mme. Selfridge was last in New York in October, 1920, when she calmly arrived from the West Coast of South Africa to begin the last lap of a 17,500-mile trip around the world. The briskness of a mind that refuses to grow old was shown then by her keen interest in American politics and her grip on the affairs of her native country, which enabled her to express a belief as soon as she set foot ashore that the country had done wisely in electing President Harding, for whom, she said, she would have voted, had she had an opportunity.

$225,000 BEQUEST TO CHAUFFEUR VOID

No Fraud or Undue Influence, Judge Says, but Testator Was Mentally Incapacitated.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 21.—The will of Dr. Charles M. Freeman, husband of the novelist, Mary E. Wilkins Freeman of Metuchen, was set aside in a decision handed down here today by Judge John B. Kirkpatrick of the Middlesex County Orphan's Court.

The case had been pending since April 6, and involved an estate of about $225,000. Practically all of this was left to Dr. Freeman's chauffeur, Harry B. Mohring. The will left $1 to Mrs. Freeman, and $200 each to Dr. Freeman's four sisters, the Misses Sallie, Nellie, Jane and Augusta Freeman.

The will was contested on the grounds of fraud, undue influence and lack of mental capacity. The decision held that there was no evidence of fraud or undue influence, but that it was clear that Dr. Freeman was not mentally capable of making a will.

Dr. Freeman, who was 64 years old at the time of his death, was President of Manning, Freeman & Sons, Inc., coal and lumber dealers. The evidence showed that he was a heavy drinker and a drug addict, using veronal from 1907 on. In 1909 he took treatment at a sanitarium in New York, and in 1919 he was committed to the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton. He escaped early in 1921 and was recommitted in October, 1921. He was discharged in November of that year and was declared much better, but according to the evidence began drinking heavily again.

Dr. Freeman left his home in November, 1921, and went to live with the chauffeur Mohring and Mohring's wife, at a garage at the coal and lumber yard three blocks from the Freeman house. Mohring's father, Louis Mohring, introduced Dr. Freeman to an attorney, W. H. K. Davey of Belleville, N. J., who called at the garage. In his presence, Dr. Freeman drew up a pencil draft of a will, leaving the estate to Henry Mohring.

In January, 1922, Harry Mohring took Dr. Freeman to the lawyer's home at Belleville, where the will was executed. In July, 1922, Dr. Freeman again went to Davey's house and told him that he feared the will might be contested because he had failed to mention his wife and sisters. Accordingly he drew up a new will, mentioning them, and this was the final will, offered for probate after his death.

Judge Kirkpatrick said he was entirely satisfied with the conduct of Davey in the case, although he doubted that the lawyer had used sufficient care in looking into Freeman's mental condition.

SAYS COUNTY PAID $21,000 FOR NOTHING

PRIAL OPPOSES HAAG JOB

Deputy Controller Declares $12,000 Post Is Unnecessary and a Waste of Public Funds.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, charged at a hearing on the 1924 budget before the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday that for the last seven years a county employe receiving $3,000 a year had not been near his office.

Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial challenged Browne to name the man and tell where he worked, but Mr. Browne refused, saying the information would be divulged when he obtained a court order attaching the employe's salary. Mr. Prial promised that Controller Craig would take quick action if the identity of the employe was made known to him.

The hearing was attended by about a dozen persons. Speaking in his capacity as President of the Civil Service Forum, Deputy Controller Prial pleaded against the establishment in the budget of a $12,000 a year Director of the Budget. He charged that Joseph Haag, now assistant to the Mayor at $9,000 a year, was responsible for the creation of the budget directorship.

"This job," said Mr. Prial, "was created by a gentleman who has already had a finger deep in the city jam pot and who, if I am rightly informed, is to get it in still deeper, provided his plans are followed out. The Civil Service Forum objects to this $12,000 a year job, first, on the ground that it is a wanton waste of public funds, and, secondly, that there is absolutely no necessity for the job.

"This administration has been in office six years. Why does it need a $12,000 a year Director of the Budget? If the Controller were to remain in jail all next year we might indeed need advisers for the Board of Estimate."

Referring to the threatened imprisonment of Mr. Craig, Mr. Prial predicted that in future Judges will think twice before they sentence to jail public officials who express public opinions on questions of great and vital public interest.

Mr. Browne asked that the $200,000 in teachers' relief fund allowance taken from the budget when it passed from its tentative to its final stage be put back. He said this could be done by the Board of Aldermen even now because a court mandate compelling such a restoration had been issued a year ago. He said there was no further necessity for the Industrial Aid Bureau, which would cost about $60,000 to operate next year, because of better conditions in the labor market. He added that one of the chief functions of the bureau seemed to be the furnishing of men to New Jersel industries.

WALTON LOSES APPEAL.

Deposed Oklahoma Executive Expects Grand Jury to Indict Him.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—J. C. Walton failed today in his second effort to obtain Federal intervention in the action of the State Senate Court of Impeachment, which Monday removed him as Governor.

Judge John H. Cotteral, in Federal Court here, reaffirming a ruling handed down at Lawton, Okla., the day before the impeachment trial opened, held that his court had no jurisdiction in the case and sustained a motion by George F. Short, State Attorney General, to dismiss the deposed Executive's suit.

Walton entered an exception to the decision, and announced that he would appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The former Governor sought a retroactive restraining order to nullify all proceedings of the impeachment court. He alleged his impeachment resulted from a conspiracy between the Ku Klux Klan and members of the Legislature.

At the conclusion of the hearing Walton went to the Oklahoma County Court House and announced that he expected to be indicted by the District Court Grand Jury which now is in session. He said he did not know what the charges would be, but desired to be present to submit to arrest at once.

J. K. Wright, County Attorney, announced that the Grand Jury report probably would be made tomorrow.

As he had lost a hat in the same way before, he was prepared and telephoned to his Secretary in the Criminal Courts Building to bring him a hat which he had kept in his chambers for just such an emergency.

REFUSE IMMUNITY SOUGHT BY BERGDOLL

American Authorities Want to Be Free to Let Courts Act Should Slacker Return Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Offers on behalf of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy draft dodger, now in Germany, to return to the United States if certain concessions, amounting practically to immunity, are made have been rejected by the American authorities.

These offers were not accepted, it was officially stated, because the Government wishes to have its hands free to let the law take its course with the slacker, who is now facing a five-year sentence in prison following conviction of desertion. It is understood that the suggestion that Bergdoll return and "face the music" if the tunes were not too harsh has been renewed by attorneys representing the Bergdoll family since the return to the United States of Mrs. Bergdoll, mother of the fugitive, who visited her son in Germany.

Secretary Weeks denied today that any suggestion had been made to the German Government in connection with the release of Lother Witzke, the German spy, that Bergdoll should be surrendered by the German authorities as a return favor for the release of Witzke. It was explained that Bergdoll, from the German point of view, is a free citizen, never having been charged with any crime, and therefore the authorities are not in a position to surrender him, even if they were so inclined.

BOSSES IN ALLIANCE TO NAME CANDIDATES

Murphy, Taggart and Brennan Claim Control of Third of Delegates.

DEFEAT OF McADOO SOUGHT

Smith Is Satisfactory to the Three Leaders, but His Availability Is Doubted.

CONFERENCES ARE ENDED

All Plans Laid for the Democratic Convention Are Carefully Kept Secret.

Special to The New York Times.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 21.—Political "conversations" in relation to next year's Presidential contest held by Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall, ex-Senator Taggart of Indiana and George Brennan, Democratic leader of Illinois, which have been in progress here for the last ten days, are virtually at an end. In a day or two, from present appearances, they will be a closed chapter.

While there is every reason to believe that the three conferees have looked the field over pretty thoroughly, surveyed prospects and candidates and agreed on a common plan of action in the Democratic National Convention which will meet next June, the details of their program are being guarded carefully for the present and the full import of decisions arrived at here may not be disclosed until the wheels of the great party conclave begin to revolve.

Murphy, Brennan and Taggart, with the alliances they have perfected within the national organization of their party since these conferences began—and perhaps before they started—in all probability will control the biggest bloc of delegates in next year's convention. They will go to that gathering, provided their present agreements hold, equipped with all the power necessary to veto the nomination for President of any candidate not to their liking because, according to predictions here, more than one-third of the total number of delegates will be found in their group. These masters in manipulation may even find themselves in the enviable position of exercising veto power over platform proposals through control of standing committees, though they may not be able to sway the course of action of a majority of the 1,094 delegates in the convention.

That is about as far as the united power in the convention of the three influential leaders and their allies is likely to extend. Beyond the stage where the convention adopts its platform, its prospective affirmative decisions are shrouded in darkness and uncertainty. While possibilities have been pretty thoroughly discussed, no decisions have been reached as to convention strategy beyond that point. What the Murphy-Taggart-Brennan group hopes, and possibly will be able, to accomplish is to veto the nomination of William G. McAdoo, or any other candidate undesirable from their viewpoint, and to construct a platform which will fit only a party standard bearer agreeable to them.

It has been explained here that there is "nothing personal" in the opposition to Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law. While Murphy has little use for him, owing to his treatment of Tammany Hall while he was in power, the Tammany chieftain never has been known to permit personal prejudice to intervene when party interests were in the balance, and, it has been stated, would not do so in this instance. Neither Taggart nor Brennan is, unfriendly to Mr. McAdoo, but there has been a feeling here that with him as standard bearer the Democratic Party would be compelled again to enter the fight carrying a staggering burden of the same dislikes that came so strongly to the surface in the 1920 campaign.

The nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York would be hailed with satisfaction by the three leaders, though Mr. Taggart has a candidate of his own in Samuel M. Ralston, ex-Governor of Indiana and now Senator from the Hoosier State. Senator Ralston is very popular with the Indiana Democracy, and but for his age—66 years—according to the opinion prevalent here, he would be in a position of great strength if the convention should be deadlocked after the balloting for candidates had begun.

Doubt Smith's Availability.

There is no doubt the French Lick conferees have serious misgivings regarding the availability of Governor Smith. It is felt here that it would require some unexpected and highly dramatic episode—something like the Bryan "Cross of Gold and Crown of Thorns" speech in the 1896 convention—to sweep next year's convention off its feet and into the Smith fold. Murphy, Taggart and Brennan all seem to believe that Governor Smith, with the convention hurdle successfully negotiated, could make a successful run.

Senator Underwood of Alabama appears to be the second choice of the French Lick conferees. But mention of Underwood as a candidate invariably has been coupled with the reservation that the Southern sponsorship for his boom would militate against his nomination.

In a similar tenor has been projected the name of John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, whose fitness for the Presidency has been universally acclaimed.

After all, however, the most frequent reference to the subject of candidates has been an expression of regret that there was not at this time some great outstanding party man who could, from the outset, win the approval of an undivided convention and take advantage in the subsequent campaign of the unequaled prestige next year is regarded by the conferring leaders as affording their party.

From a survey of the field it would appear that as the situation stands at present twenty-four States, with an aggregate of 566 delegates, a little more than a majority in the convention, are minus favorite sons to furnish a rallying point for their delegates. Of these, 338 come from States in which there is pronounced "liberal" sentiment, or, at least, a "liberal" Democratic State organization. New York is not included, as its ninety delegates undoubtedly will be hitched to a boom for Governor Smith. But if the New York delegation is added the "liberal" bloc in the convention would be increased to 426.

Primary States Uncertain.

One difficulty with which the French Lick conferees have been confronted in their attempt to arrive at some estimate regarding the strength of candidates is the fact that sixteen out of forty-eight States have Presidential preferential primaries which afford an opportunity for every Presidential aspirant to go in and try his strength with other contenders for the nomination, whether they be favorite sons or not.

The States in this group are California, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin. The aggregate number of delegates from these States in which the names of candidates for the Presidential nomination are printed on the primary ballot is 400.

Then there are a considerable number of States where, as in New York, delegates to the national convention are elected at direct primaries and may be pledged, though perhaps in somewhat less direct and binding fashion, to the Presidential candidate for whose group of delegates the party voters at the primary have expressed a preference.

PINCHOT URGES 4 WAYS TO HELP THE FARMER

Tells Omaha Convention They Are Co-operation, Waterways, Electrification and Good Roads.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 21.—The farmer's "fundamental need" is a satisfactory market, which could be brought about by extension of co-operative endeavor, construction of deep waterways and the greater electrification of farms, said Gifford Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania, in an address today before the convention of the Farmers' Union.

"Co-operation, more than any other single remedy, points the way out," Governor Pinchot declared. He emphasized that the farmer's market lies mainly in American towns and cities, the prosperity of which is essential to farm prosperity. A better market abroad, the Governor said, can be obtained by helping improve European conditions, and by national legislation for special credit facilities for farm products.

"Self-help is the first step for the improvement of markets," said Mr. Pinchot. "We need an enormous increase of co-operation — co-operative storage, co-operative buying and co-operative selling by farmers. We need also to see production adapted to the market.

"Next to better markets, better and cheaper distribution is the farmer's biggest problem. So long as it costs as much, or more, to market what the farmer grows as it does to grow it, the consumer will pay too much for his food and the farmer will get too little for his crops.

"Co-operation is the first means of securing better markets for the farmer in the future. The second is to bring the foreign markets closer to our farms. One way to do that is to build the Lakes-to-the-Gulf deep waterway. It will add to the prosperity of the Mississippi Valley infinitely more than the Panama Canal has added to the prosperity of the United States.

"The second waterway in the program to bring the farmer's market nearer to him is the St. Lawrence deep waterway, which will open the lake ports to the ocean commerce of all the world. Another step is the proposed coastwise inland waterway from Boston to Galveston, which would not only bring the products of the Eastern mills also of the Western farmers more cheaply to the cities. Still another link in this great chain of waterways is the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal, which would unite the agriculture and the resources of the northeast with the agriculture and the industries of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys.

"With such a system as this, nine-tenths of the world's ocean-going ships could deliver their cargoes unbroken to what is now the interior of the United States, and the farmer, both as buyer and seller, would reap the inevitable benefit."

There are two other main lines of endeavor which would help the farmer to better markets, he said: one a continuance of State and Federal aid to good roads and the other giant power, the latter meaning the union of all sources of mechanical power, whether derived from water power, coal or from oil, in great systems of electrical transmission.

BOOM JOHNSON IN NEBRASKA

Friends Move to Get Name on Ballot —Coolidge Campaign Opens.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 21.—Campaigns for Calvin Coolidge and Hiram Johnson are both getting underway in Nebraska.

Johnson Presidential petitions are being circulated in all parts of Nebraska and no trouble is being encountered in securing the requisite number of signatures to place his name on the Presidential primary ballot. John G. Maher of Lincoln is in charge of the Johnson campaign in the State.

A Coolidge league is to be started in Nebraska in the second week in December, it is announced. A State-wide Coolidge conference has been called to meet in Omaha on December 8, immediately following the organization of the Coolidge league is to be undertaken.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Senator La Follette and Senator Borah will in all probability be placed on the ballot in the next April primaries in Nebraska as candidates for the preference of the Progressive voters for the Presidential nomination, according to a statement issued here today by the officers of the 1924 Progressive Party of the State. Henry Ford's name has been submitted by petition and will go on the Progressive ballot.

EXPLAINS BARUCH'S $7,500.

Campaign Contributions Made in Friendship, Says Governor Ritchie.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21. — Personal friendship which has existed for several years led to the contribution of $2,500 to Governor Ritchie's campaign fund by Bernard M. Baruch of New York, the Governor said today. It was the largest of the contributions, the Governor added:

"Mr. Baruch and I became close friends while I was serving as counsel to the War Industries Board," he added. "During the recent campaign he asked if he could make a contribution and I told him he certainly could.

"He gave $5,000 toward my first campaign for Governor. I would have accepted that much again."

REJECT HIRAM JOHNSON.

Georgia Republicans Table Resolution Endorsing Him for President.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—A resolution which sought to endorse Senator Hiram Johnson as the Republican nominee for President was tabled here today by a meeting of white and negro members who described themselves as the regular Republican committee of Georgia. Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro, Georgia member of the Republican National Committee, attended the meeting.

Johnson said President Coolidge had assured him that he would "straighten out the Republican situation in Georgia and place control of the organization with the Henry Johnson faction."

Johnson evaded questions concerning his statement by saying it would be improper to quote the Chief Executive.

The meeting adopted a resolution protesting against a reduction in the number of delegates from the South to the Republican National Convention.

Hunt for the Biggest Elephant Soon to Start in Africa

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Edmund Heller, explorer and field scientist for the Field Museum of Natural History, left today for Philadelphia to join Graham Collins, another Field Museum man, with whom he will start in quest of the world's hugest elephant.

The heaviest American-made rifle is too small with which to shoot elephants, Mr. Heller said.

"We use double-barreled weapons made in England," he added.

The party will go to what in the days of Stanley was known as Darkest Africa, will pass Ujiji, where Stanley met Livingstone and will penetrate the land of the pygmies seeking such rare beasts as the okapi and the white rhino.

HOUSE PROGRESSIVES GIVE AN ULTIMATUM

Threaten to Block Organization if Republican Leaders Reject Their Proposals.

MAY DEMAND RULES CHANGE

Democrats to Convene on Night of Dec. 1—Republicans Meet in Afternoon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — The Progressive group which holds the balance of power between Republicans and Democrats in Congress gave notice to conservative Republican leaders today that if reforms it demanded in the conduct of the House were not definitely promised they might be forced to block the organization of that body when it meets on Dec. 3. The Progressives, led by Representative John M. Nelson and his so-called fellow-radicals from Wisconsin, control the situation, as they can call on from 25 to 60 votes.

They are making a systematic and determined effort to obtain changes in House regulations and management, and the acceptance by the Republicans of a program of legislation dealing with railroads, finance and relief for farmers.

The chief demand of the Progressives will be suitable representation on the prominent committees, such as Rules, Steering, Banking and Currency, Ways and Means, and Interstate Commerce. If they do not get guarantees of this they will swing their votes so that the Speakership and other offices will be left vacant until some compromise is reached. No personal fight on Speaker Gillett would be intended, it was said, but his personal popularity would not be allowed to stand in the way of the Progressive campaign.

Contrary to belief, the Progressives do not intend to take sides against Mr. Longworth by backing Mr. Graham of Illinois as their candidate for floor leader. The more militant of them do not believe Mr. Graham would be a proper representative in that capacity, nor any other who would have to represent the Administration viewpoint in presenting public issues. Up to tonight the Progressives intended to keep their hands off in the Longworth-Graham contest. They stated that their forces were not included in the eighty votes Representative Dickinson of Iowa claims for Mr. Graham.

Unless their demands are complied with one of the first drives the Progressives will make will be for reconstruction of the procedure of the Rules Committee so that body will not be able to control legislation as it did during the last session. Plans for this move have progressed so far that decision has been made to have Hamilton Fish of New York lead the battle if it should come. This selection is based in part on a sentimental interest, for Representative Fish's father was a leading figure in the revolt against the rule of "Uncle Joe" Cannon when he was Speaker. Also Representative Fish is in sympathy with the general ideas of the Progressives.

The fact that they are organizing their forces in thorough fashion is shown by the choice of Mr. Nelson as chairman and Representative Roy Woodruff of Michigan as secretary. About forty of the Progressives have been in close conference for the last two days.

Although the members of the group are in general agreement on questions of public policy, it was stated this afternoon that their strength would vary between twenty-five and sixty votes because they might not be united on all issues.

Leaders among them denied they would support Representative Cooper of Michigan, or any other individual as a candidate for the Speakership against Mr. Gillett.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A call was issued today for a caucus of Democratic members of the House Saturday night, Dec. 1. House Republicans will hold a conference that afternoon, two days before Congress convenes, for organization.

The Democratic caucus call went out after Representative Garrett of Tennessee, who acted as minority leader in the last Congress, had conferred with Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, who was Democratic whip; Representative Rayburn of Texas, who served as Chairman of the Democratic caucus, and other party leaders.

Those who participated in the conference expressed the opinion that the Democrats in the next House should have greater representation on important committees—nine places on committees having a membership of twenty-one, and eleven on the Ways and Means Committee, which has twenty-five members. In the last Congress, when the Republican majority in the House approximated 170, the ratio was fifteen and six on committees generally, and seventeen and eight on the Ways and Means Committee. The proportion in the forthcoming Congress will be determined by the Republican Committee on Committees.

At the Democratic caucus a candidate for Speaker will be selected, and probably the minority members of the Ways and Means Committee, who in turn will assign their Democratic colleagues to various committees. Democratic leaders generally predict that Mr. Garrett will be put forward for Speaker, automatically becoming leader of the party on the election of a Republican Speaker. Plans are being made to name Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois as Chairman of the Democratic caucus, and to return him again to the Ways and Means Committee, where he served for many years.

TELLS PROGRESSIVES' AIMS.

J. A. H. Hopkins Say Committee of 48 Will Back New Party's Ticket

J. A. H. Hopkins of New Jersey, Executive Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight which held a Progressive conference in Chicago recently, returned to the city yesterday and explained that the conference was to bring about the active co-operation through one central body "of every voter who realizes the necessity of abolishing special privilege and believes that the public ownership of our transportation systems and the revision of our Federal Reserve system are the crucial issues upon which we must focus our attention."

"We are not the mouthpiece of any particular candidate," said Mr. Hopkins. "We will back the nominees selected by the majority choice of the delegates to the new Progressive Party Convention, who will be pledged to the platform to which we already have subscribed."

JOHNSON DRIVE IN JERSEY.

Organization of 15,000 Workers for the Californian Announced.

Organization of between 15,000 and 20,000 volunteer workers in New Jersey for Senator Hiram Johnson for President was announced yesterday by William P. Verdon, Republican leader of the Eleventh New Jersey Congressional District. Mr. Verdon led the fight for Johnson in New Jersey in 1920.

"We have begun to put out Johnson posters in the Republican organization club houses in Hudson County," said Mr. Verdon. "These posters call attention to the fact that Hiram Johnson stands for America and Americans against European entanglements. We are going to make that clear to every enrolled Republican in New Jersey before next June."

Soviet Lifts the Ban on Stage Royalty To Let Catherine the Great Appear

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES, By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—Catherine the Great won't be barred from the Russian stage just because she happened once to be the head of the Czarist régime. That was the decision announced after the private performance of Alexis Tolstoy's play "The Golden Book of Love," a light comedy, wherein the great Empress played the part of the deus ex machina to put things right at the end, and which the Soviet theatrical censorship had declined to license owing to her presence.

Lunacharsky, Minister of Education, in whose department are the theatres, also saw the show and evidently shared the general impression that the comedy was too light—one might well say too thin—to justify an official ban. The play was performed by the first studio at the Art Theatre and had been included in their tour in Prague and Riga eighteen months ago. It also was given in Paris by a non-Soviet Russian Company.

The plot is simple enough. The beautiful young wife of an old countrified Prince receives a copy of a rather gallant book of love with a letter from the Empress Catherine, announcing she intends to pay an unceremonious visit. A handsome young guardsman arrives as the Empress's vanguard and immediately begins to flirt with the girl Princess, whose imagination is stirred by the golden book. The husband intervenes, and a rather grotesque duel is cut short by the appearance of the Empress with one lady-in-waiting. The husband finds the latter's middle-aged charms so much more to his taste than those of the willful child he has married that the course of true love would undoubtedly run smooth were it not that the elderly Empress cannot resist the temptation to captivate her young soldier. He, too, discovers imperial experience outweighs youthful naïveté and the poor little Princess is left lamenting.

But in the last act, while the Empress is resting after a hearty lunch, the young lady applies the maxims of the golden book well enough to win back her admirer. The Empress, at first piqued by the guardsman's disloyalty, finally relents and pairs off the couples anew with a truly autocratic disregard for marriage laws.

It was the general impression of the audience, which included all the leading lights of theatrical and literary Moscow, that the acting was below Art Theatre standards and the play, taken as a whole, no less so. "Quite unworthy of the fuss made over it," was the comment of the critic who still retains in the Soviet press the place he won under the former régime. "Which won't hurt the box office receipts, however," was the cynical reply of the manager of the theatre, which tries to outweigh Stanislavsky's detailed training by novelty of presentation.

THROUGH SERVICE ON BRIDGE TO END

Nine Routes Over the Williamsburg Span to Discontinue Operation on Dec. 1.

The official notice served by Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, to the railroad companies operating through service between Brooklyn and Manhattan via the Williamsburg Bridge that on Dec. 1 the city would take over the local bridge service brought from the companies yesterday a reply saying that with the beginning of city operation the through service would be discontinued.

This reply to Mr. Whalen was signed by W. S. Menden, President of the Nassau Electric Railroad Company; Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn, Queens County and Suburban Railroad Company and the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company, and H. Hobart Porter, Vice President of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company. The lines that have been giving through service are the Wilson, Ralph, Reid, Sumner, Franklin, Tompkins and Bushwick Avenue lines and the Grand Street line.

In their reply the companies state that all of the lines are operated on the Brooklyn side of the East River and that no franchise or contractual obligation exists to continue operation over the bridge.

"Notwithstanding this fact," the letter of the companies reads, "the undersigned have for several years continued the operation of their cars across the bridge, as they have been able to partially pay the added cost which this through service has entailed from the revenues derived from operation of the local service on the bridge. As a result, substantial benefit has accrued to a large number of passengers, who otherwise would have been compelled to change cars and pay an additional fare.

"You now advise definitely that you intend on Dec. 1, 1923, to take over for the City of New York the local service and thus deprive these lines of the source of revenue which has justified them heretofore in continuing the through service which they were under no obligation to maintain. This determination on the part of the city is not only detrimental to the best interest of the traveling public but unfair to the companies affected and cannot be approved or acquiesced in by the undersigned.

"It may also be added that, aside from every other consideration, the undersigned do not consider operation of cars by the city and by the several companies on the same tracks on the bridge as safe or practicable."

BUILDING DELAYED AS PAY RISE PENDS

Contracts for Next Year Wait Until Decision on Wage Demand Is Reached.

No action toward meeting the demand of the old Building Trades Council for an increase of wages from $10 to $11 a day for journeymen was taken yesterday by the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association, according to Chairman C. G. Norman.

It was explained that except for one or two unions no formal requests for wage conferences have been served on the employers. Only five weeks remain before the present agreement expires, and it is expected that the various unions will notify the trade associations shortly of their desire to discuss a wage contract to begin on Jan. 1.

With the exception of the bricklayers, plasterers, stonecutters and hoisting engineers, who now receive a basic wage of $12 a day, journeymen in the other crafts in the building trades are now paid $9 a day as a basic wage and an additional dollar bonus. Up to last June the bricklayers were paid $1 a day more than the mechanics in the other trades. After their strike in June they were paid $2 a day more than the other crafts, and the latter have been planning how to gain the extra dollar in order to keep the differential at $1 a day. The marble workers, after a strike of three weeks, recently succeeded in having their employers agree to pay them $10.50 a day and to permit the demand for the other half dollar to go to arbitration. Thereupon the workers comprising the old Building Trades Council, through their delegates, decided to ask for a scale of $11.

Builders and labor leaders were reported yesterday as wishing for an early agreement so that they might know what their future commitments would be. Architects and builders are unable to go ahead and draw up contracts unless they know the pay scale.

WILLIAM DUNLAP IN FIGHT OVER WIFE

Son of Hatmaker Threatens Her Companion With a Pistol and Gets Punched.

WIFE SAYS SHE'S TO BLAME

Magistrate Tells Her to Devote Herself to Husband and Warns Broker.

William Dunlap, a son of the founder of the hat manufacturing company, and Frederick Hunter, a broker, were arraigned last evening on disorderly conduct charges before Magistrate Thomas F. McAndrews in the Night Court. Details of an encounter between the prisoners in the presence of Mrs. Dunlap in a restaurant at Broadway and 110th Street yesterday afternoon were brought to light.

Mr. Dunlap, 50 years old, gave his home as the Hotel Gramatan, in Bronxville. He told the Magistrate that he had found Hunter, who is 30 and lives at 37 West 123d Street, in conversation with his wife in the restaurant. After he had warned the broker that he must cease his attentions to Mrs. Dunlap Hunter attacked him, Dunlap said.

He said his wife has an apartment at 305 West Eighty-first Street and that he, Dunlap, spends most of his time on his ranch in Utah. When he returned recently, he continued, Mrs. Dunlap told him that Hunter had been annoying her.

Dunlap said that he and Mrs. Dunlap decided yesterday to put a stop to Hunter's actions, and arranged that she was to meet Hunter in the restaurant, where he was to confront them.

"This man has been blackmailing my wife for the past year and ten months," swore Mr. Dunlap.

"My interest in Mrs. Dunlap has been platonic," broke in Hunter. "Her nephew, Fred Parsons, told me that since she married Dunlap three years ago he has been cruel to her and had made her life miserable.

Hunter said Dunlap had threatened him with a pistol. "I then struck him in the face in self-defense, because I didn't want him to shoot me. He ran to the street and Mrs. Dunlap ran into a store. Then a policeman arrested both of us."

Policeman Edward Langton told the Court that he had been attracted by the crowd and that Hunter appeared to be the aggressor.

The Magistrate adjourned the hearing for an hour and ordered Mrs. Dunlap brought to court. When she arrived she was called to the witness stand.

"Did your husband draw his pistol in that restaurant this afternoon?" the Magistrate asked.

"Yes," the wife replied.

"Did you have an appointment to meet your husband there while you were talking with Mr. Hunter?"

"No," answered Mrs. Dunlap. "I had an appointment to meet Mr. Hunter there."

"Do you know that you are to blame for what took place in that restaurant and that a tragedy might have resulted?" pursued the Magistrate.

"I know that I am to blame," Mrs. Dunlap admitted, "and I am sorry."

The Magistrate then told her she was a married woman and should devote her attentions to her husband and not make appointments with other men. He suspended sentence on Dunlap, who had pleaded guilty to the disorderly conduct charge.

"As for you, Hunter," said the Magistrate, "I warn you to keep away from Mrs. Dunlap. She's a married woman, and you have no right to intervene in the troubles of herself and her husband."

The Magistrate suspended sentence on Hunter, who also had entered a plea of guilty to the policeman's charge.

Certify Congress Vote.

Sitting as a board of canvassers the Board of Elections certified to the Secretary of State yesterday the results of the official canvass of the votes cast for members of Congress in the three Congressional contests in the city at the last election. According to the official figures, Anning S. Prall, successful candidate in the Eleventh Congressional District, received 28,215 votes. Edward R. Koch, the successful candidate in the Twenty-fourth Congressional District, the Bronx, received 20,433 votes, while in the Sixteenth Congressional District, in New York County, the successful candidate, John J. O'Connor, received 21,338 votes.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Joseph Mancuso of White Plains, who for the last eight days has been on trial before Justice Seeger charged with first degree murder, today withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. He was charged with killing Frank Vital. District Attorney Arthur Rowland agreed to the change of plea and Justice Seeger sentenced him to not less than twenty years in Sing Sing Prison.

BONES MAY CLEAR SLAYING MYSTERY

Skeleton Found in Jersey Believed That of Charles Rodgers, Who Vanished in 1921.

UNDER FLOOR OF BARN

Murder Laid to Man Who Paid Death Penalty for Killing Taxicab Driver.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 21.—The skeleton discovered yesterday under the barn of George Day on his farm between Woodbury and Paulsboro is believed by State Police and Gloucester County authorities to be that of Charles Rodgers, 50 years old, a painter, who disappeared from his home in Haddonfield, N. J., on March 11, 1921.

The authorities are considering the possibility that Rodgers may have been murdered by Guilford Young, who was put to death in the electric chair a year ago for the murder of Harry Garwood, a Camden taxicab driver. Rodgers and Young were friends, and it is believed that Rodgers, when last seen was about to start on a fishing trip with Young. Because Rodgers frequently carried large sums of money, it is thought that he may have been murdered and robbed.

After Young was convicted he offered to give information concerning the disappearance of Rodgers provided his sentence of death was commuted to life imprisonment. Since this was refused, Young died without telling his story. The authorities are now wondering whether he may have intended confessing the murder of Rodgers.

While the identification of the skeleton is not certain, several things lead the authorities to think it that of Rodgers. Traces of hair, mustache, teeth, and an injured right leg tend to confirm the identification. Dr. R. H. Clark of Woodbury, who examined the body, found two bullets lodged in the skull, one side of which was crushed in and both jaws broken. The skeleton is thought to be that of a man who was about 6 feet tall and weighed 190 pounds.

For some time prior to Rodgers's disappearance he had not been living with his wife and two children, but in a boarding house in Hammonton. The body of Garwood was thought at first to have been that of Rodgers on account of a leg injury.

The skeleton under the barn was discovered after George Day's cow had kicked up several boards in the floor. A carpenter employed to replace them found the skeleton.

WOODBURY, N. J., Nov. 21.—While there are striking resemblances between the skeleton discovered under the floor of an old barn on the Day farm in the outskirts of Woodbury and the description given of Charles Rodgers, Gloucester County authorities said tonight that definite identification is far from established.

George Day told Coroner Adams, who visited the farm today, that he did not know Rodgers or Young. The farm is back from the road on a winding lane and is also about 100 yards from the Pennsgrove branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The most plausible explanation, according to the authorities, is that two or more men may have gone in from the railroad tracks to the shelter in the barn. The murder probably was committed there and the body pushed under the barn floor.

TALK OF PARTY MERGER IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Farmer-Labor and Democratic Leaders Begin 'Conversations' for a Deal.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—A move to bring together the Democratic and Farmer-Labor Party organizations in South Dakota was started today in at least two counties.

While conversations of the possibility of merging the two parties have not yet reached the stage of formal negotiations, leaders in both ranks admit that the amalgamation effort may be successful if mutually acceptable planks on agricultural policy and transportation can be written into a unified platform.

Following the resolution of the Hughes County Democratic Proposal Convention, urging coalition with the third party, Democrats in Miner and Minnehaha counties met today with Farmer-Labor delegates to discuss informally the probabilities of a common meeting ground on national issues.

Spokesmen for both groups were reticent tonight as to just what progress had been made, but from one of the Democratic participants it was learned that appointment of conference committees by the two State conventions to be held at Pierre Dec. 4 had been agreed upon tentatively.

What such committees might be able to accomplish in bringing the two organizations together for the State primary in March behind a ticket headed by William G. McAdoo still is a question in the minds of the McAdoo supporters, who, as a result of yesterday's county proposal conventions, predict a quick preference for McAdoo in the State convention.

From within the Farmer-Labor Party the suggestion has come that Mr. McAdoo is an acceptable second choice to a considerable element of the third party if Henry Ford cannot be given the Democratic preference at Pierre. This group, according to one of its amalgamation spokesmen, sees more hope of practical accomplishment with a progressive Democratic slate than in a third party ballot, which has not been successful in South Dakota since 1912. The Farmer-Labor group does not look forward with confidence to a State victory over the old parties.

The Republican State Proposal Convention, which will be held at Pierre simultaneously with those of the other two parties, will be the first battle ground on which the supporters of President Coolidge and Senator Johnson of California will match strength. The Johnson campaign has been intensive and has the support of Governor McMaster, who has declared for the Senatorial race under the Johnson banner.

Coolidge supporters declared themselves "well satisfied" with the results of yesterday's proposal conventions.

Returns today from yesterday's county conventions, representing approximately three-fourths of the State voting power, gave the McAdoo forces 30,000 votes in the State Convention against less than 10,000 for the Ford men, according to leaders in the two campaigns.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Nov. 21.—A victory in yesterday's county proposals conventions for supporters of Henry Ford was claimed tonight by J. F. Houlihan, Democrat, temporarily in charge of the Ford-for-President headquarters at Watertown. Mr. Houlihan contradicts the report that McAdoo supporters will hold an upper hand in the State meeting at Pierre.

Only one county will go to the December meeting instructed for McAdoo, Mr. Houlihan declared, while seven counties were instructed for Ford.

Ford headquarters claims that delegates representing 25,905 votes are for Ford, while the known McAdoo men represent 9,261 votes. The rest of the delegates, Mr. Houlihan asserted, will go to Pierre with open minds.

3 Couples Who Celebrated Silver Weddings Are Divorced

Three decrees of divorce handed down in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday by Justice James C. Cropsey indicated that marriage ties chafe even after a quarter of a century. The couples were married twenty-nine, twenty-six and twenty-five years. In each case the wife was the plaintiff.

Mrs. Louise Kraemer of 149 Fulton Avenue, Astoria, won an interlocutory decree from William F. Kraemer, to whom she was married in 1894. In this case a son-in-law came unexpectedly upon Kraemer while the latter was taking a ride with a young woman. Mrs. Tillie Bennett of 354 Seventy-fifth Street, Bayridge, was granted an interlocutory decree from Roy Bennett, whom she married in 1897. It was charged that Bennett had been living with a young woman at Eltingeville, S. I., and in Richmond Hill. Mrs. Susan Sturmer of 545 Beach Sixty-sixth Street, Arverne, won an interlocutory decree from George S. Sturmer, to whom she was married in 1898. Sturmer was charged with entertaining young women at hotels along Broadway.

'FAIR' COAL PRICES FIXED FOR THE CITY

BASED ON OFFICIAL SURVEY

Commission Next Will Take Up Sales in Small Lots, It Announces.

"Fair prices" for the domestic sizes of coal in each of the boroughs were fixed yesterday by the newly organized Fair Price Coal Commission, composed and Major Gen. C. W. Berry of Brooklyn, Chairman; Commissioner of Health Dr. Frank J. Monaghan and George J. Eltz, representing the retail dealers, at a meeting in Commissioner Monaghan's offices.

The following rates, which were quoted as "temporary," were announced:

Manhattan—$14.25 a ton.

Bronx—$14.25 to $15 a ton, according to the distance from tidewater.

Brooklyn—$14.50 to $15 a ton, according to the distance from tidewater.

Queens—$14.50 to $15.50 a ton, according to distance from tidewater.

Richmond—$15.50 a ton.

These prices, the commission announced, are for coal delivered to the consumer on the sidewalk. There will be an extra charge for putting it into the bins, except in the case of Richmond.

The prices are based on a survey made by inspectors from the Health Department. Major Gen. Berry said:

"These prices are based on the fact that the average price of the old-established companies to the retail dealers is $9 a ton, freight is $2.79 a ton and local handling, $2.08 a ton—50 cents a ton is allowed as a fair charge for deterioration.

"The retailers buy their coal by the long ton and 10 per cent. is deducted from these prices to allow for this. That amounts to $1.22 and the price, therefore, to the retailers is $13.22.

"There is another situation which must be considered in connection with this at the present time. There is a shortage of stove and chestnut coal on account of these sizes being diverted to the Western trade. So-called 'independent companies' at the mines are charging from $3 to $4 more per ton than the old line companies, and where this is the case it must be taken into consideration in the selling price. It must be further understood that buckwheat and pea coal are sold at a very much cheaper price."

The commission will take up the price of coal in lots of 100 pounds at its next meeting, which will be held in Commissioner Monaghan's offices Monday, Nov. 26. A preliminary survey of the sale of coal in small lots, the commission revealed, shows that consumers are paying up to $20 a ton.

All complaints regarding higher prices charged for coal than those decided upon by the commission should be directed to Dr. Monaghan, Health Commissioner, telephone Worth 9400.

An advance report on the coal market issued yesterday by Coal Age says in part:

"Output of both anthracite and soft coal recovered quickly from the interruption of election day. A better feeling exists in the anthracite industry. Although demand for stove and chestnut sizes exceeds the supply, most shippers believe that the consumer's wants will be well in hand before April 1 and that there will be plenty of all domestic coals to be had. Production during the week ended Nov. 10 was 504,000 tons greater than the previous week's total."

The Coal Trade Journal takes an opposite view. It says:

"Anthracite production last week suffered a decline due to the observation of armistice day. The numerous holidays in November will materially affect production and retard the operators in filling their orders. Retail dealers are still plugging along in an endeavor to clean up the orders on their books. To prevent discomfort, they are still making partial deliveries. The absence of frigid weather has held back any feeling of panic on the part of householders."

Several Witnesses Tell of Losing Life Savings in Sending Money Through Agents.

Several Companies Offer Co-operation and File Lists of Their Sub-Agencies.

TWO WOMEN MAKE CHARGES

Investigator Recommends State Supervision as a Protection to Immigrants.

Inquiry into alleged frauds upon immigrants by some private banking concerns and steamship sub-agents was begun yesterday at City Hall by the Joint Legislative Committee to Investigate Exploitation of Immigrants, which was authorized at the last session of the Legislature. Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo is Chairman.

Several witnesses testified that they had lost their life savings as a result of swindles by sub-agents to whom they said they entrusted money for transmission abroad. All said that they believed they had been dealing with banks. The testimony was to the effect that the agencies were fitted up like banking institutions. In many cases, they said, notary public signs in the windows made the offices more imposing to them.

Mrs. Angela Baggini of 117 Sullivan Street told the committee that $1,220 which she entrusted to an agency for transmission to Italy a year ago had never been received and that she had been unable to get anything except excuses from the agent. Mrs. Susie Gandolfi of 161 Prince Street said that she had lost $480 through the same agent.

Gaetano Del Vecchia, laborer, of 127 Mott Street, the father of seven children, testified that he lost all of $3,827 which he entrusted to a Mott Street firm which failed last year with heavy loss to immigrants.

Senator Cotillo, at the outset of the hearing, said that many of the steamship companies and the American Express Company had offered to co-operate with the committee in the investigation.

"There are no charges against the steamship and express companies," he said, "but we propose to show that the agents use the reputation of the companies as a cloak for frauds."

William F. Wormick, counsel to the committee, produced for the record a set of reports on immigration, with figures, which are to be used by the committee as a foundation for their investigation.

In line with their offers of co-operation, the Red Star, White Star, Atlantic-American, Cunard, Holland-America, Navigazione Generale Italiana and the American Express companies filed with the committee lists of their sub-agents in this State.

The recommendations were made by Miss Mary A. Frasca, Director of the Mulberry Community House, who for five months has been investigating money tranmission by immigrants for the committee. The recommendations were that all persons and firms engaged in money transmission should be placed under State supervision; that the agencies also should be supervised by the State in other activities conducted on the premises; that agents should be

DARTMOUTH ELEVEN ON YALE SCHEDULE

Schools Will Resume Relations on Oct. 18, After a Lapse of 24 Years.

BIG FOUR MAY BE FORMING

Green Will Meet Harvard, but Contest With Princeton Cannot Be Booked Until 1925.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—Yale tonight announced its football schedule for the next season. The Football Committee has invited all Yale's rivals of this Fall except Bucknell to play again next year on practically the same dates. Bucknell's place has been filled by Dartmouth, which Yale welcomes back after an absence of many years.

Yale has always regretted that football demands took the White Mountaineers from its football field, and alumni and undergraduates welcome them heartily. Dartmouth's baseball, hockey and basketball teams have always been included in Yale's schedules, and there is a movement on foot for a Yale-Dartmouth track meet for next season.

Yale and Brown have reconciled their minor differences about schedule matters and the Providence collegians have been again given their usual place the last of October. The War Department has again given permission for West Point to visit the Bowl. The booking of Maryland is welcomed by Yale again because the doughty Southerners played the Elis off their feet and almost defeated them in a fast football game. As soon as this match was played Yale set the wires busy to assure a return visit of the Orioles.

Yale will have three Southern teams on its schedule, North Carolina, Georgia and Maryland, to three New England teams, Brown, Dartmouth and Harvard. The absence of Middle West elevens is conspicuous. Because of Yale's negotiations with Dartmouth it was impossible to find a date for the University of Pennsylvania. As has been the case since the Bowl was built, Yale will play all its games there except the match at Princeton.

Met Dartmouth Last in 1900.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 21.—The last time Dartmouth and Yale clashed on the gridiron was in 1900. In the eight games that have been played between these colleges the Green failed to score a single point, while Yale rolled up an aggregate of 308 points. Football competition between the two colleges opened in 1884, in the fourth season of the gridiron sport at Hanover. A lapse followed until 1893. In the three following seasons games were played, two contests taking place in 1895. Two more games, in 1899 and 1900, complete the history of Yale-Dartmouth football relations. Next year's game will be at New Haven on Oct. 18.

Reports that Dartmouth this year was negotiating for games with Yale and Princeton led to rumors recently that the Green was to be taken into the Harvard-Yale-Princeton combination to form a "Big Four." To allay the campus excitement the Athletic Council announced several days ago that it had been found impossible to arrange a date with Princeton for the 1924 season.

The Yale date was the only fixture for next season announced today. The complete schedule is to be made public shortly after Thanksgiving.

Big Epur Seems Under Way.

Conclusion of negotiations for resumption of football relations between Dartmouth and Yale was viewed last night in athletic circles as proof of recent forecasts that plans are well under way for the organization of a Big Four in collegiate athletic ranks to replace the present Big Three, with the Green as the addition to the Harvard-Princeton-Yale triangle.

So far as football is concerned, the only link needed to complete the new chain is for Princeton and Dartmouth to resume relations, as the Green already is on Harvard's schedule. This cannot occur, however, in all likelihood until 1925, for recently it was revealed that efforts to arrange a football date between the Tigers and Dartmouth for 1924 failed when no agreement could be reached on the date.

Dartmouth already has close athletic relations with the members of the Big Three in a majority of other branches of college athletic competion, including track, baseball, basketball, golf and tennis.

BIG TEN SEASON TO END.

Michigan and Minnesota Game Will Hold Chief Interest Saturday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Feverish activity is the rule at all Western Conference training fields this week with the various coaches trying to whip their gridiron warriors into superlative form for the final games of the season Saturday. For the first time this year all Big Ten teams will engage one another, not a non-conference game being on the schedule.

The championship race is in a mix-up as involved as the most ardent fan could hope for. Three teams have a chance at first honors, and two of them —Michigan and Minnesota—fight it out Saturday. The third, Illinois, which has won four conference games so far, faces the Ohio State eleven and is expected to remain an unbeaten team.

In the other contests Iowa will meet Northwestern, which has not won a conference game this season; Purdue and Indiana will meet at Bloomington, Ind., and Wisconsin and Chicago face each other at Chicago in a contest of secondary importance only because both have been beaten in conference games. The Chicago-Wisconsin contest is expected to produce thrills not to be excelled in the games in which the championship contenders play.

WORKS ON AERIAL DEFENSE.

Cornell Gets Glimpse of Penn Formations as Seen by Scouts.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 21. — Playing against the scrubs, using Pennsylvania plays as reported by scouts who have seen the Quakers in every game, Cornell today began a series of defensive drills, emphasizing the defense against the forward pass. Apparently Coach Dobie is not worrying about the ability of the line to stop a rushing game.

The Cornellians feel that Penn will open up just as happened last year. Accordingly the varsity ends and backs were given a very thorough test. Swede Hanson's scrubs shooting a good many forwards based on the formations the Quakers were used. Ramsey and Cassidy were especially active in breaking up this attack, but on more than one occasion the plays went for good gains.

PENN IN HARD SCRIMMAGE.

Two Varsity Elevens Battle for Two Hours Drilling for Cornell.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 21.—Under the glare of the special spotlights, Penn went through a gruelling scrimmage that lasted until far after darkness today. For more than an hour two teams, designated as A and B, battled desperately.

All this went under the head of intensive training for the big battle with Cornell a week from tomorrow. Three times team A crossed the goal line, Rae McGraw taking the ball over twice and Frank Wittmer once.

Early Release of Schedule Breaks Precedent at Yale

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—For the first time in its history Yale has announced its football schedule for a future season before the existing one had been completed. The 1924 schedule, announced tonight, consists of games with teams played this year, with the notable exception that Dartmouth has taken the place previously occupied by Bucknell. For the first time since 1900 the Blue and the Green will meet on the gridiron. As has been the general custom in the past, all the games will be played in the Bowl with the exception of the one with the Tigers, which will take place at Princeton.

The schedule follows:

Oct. 4, North Carolina; 11, Georgia; 18, Dartmouth; 25, Brown.

Nov. 1, Army; 8, Maryland; 15, Princeton; 22, Harvard.

8,000 SEE ELEVENS PLAY NIGHT GAME

Massachusetts Football Teams Battle to Tie on Artificially Lighted Field.

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 21.—A game of football at night by the light of incandescent searchlight projectors, said to be the first gridiron contest ever staged under these conditions, was played tonight on the grounds of the General Electric Company here. A crowd of 8,000 persons watched the General Electric engineers and Tufts College second team battle to a 0 to 0 tie through four regulation fifteen-minute periods.

The apparatus for lighting the playing field included a series of "floodlights" on high posts. According to company officials, the lighting display involved 56,000 watts, the lamps having an aggregate candle power of 5,000,000. Coaches from several colleges attended the demonstration.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS TO SEE BIG GAMES

Varsity Squad Will Watch Army-Navy and Harvard-Yale Contests on Saturday.

As a part of the course of study for football hopefuls on Morningside Heights, Percy D. Haughton will send his Columbia varsity squad to the two biggest football games of the season next Saturday, the Army-Navy and Harvard-Yale engagements. The Blue and White coach believes that watching other football teams in real action is the best kind of laboratory work for his eleven, and in place of blackboard drills at Baker Field he intends to give them a practical demonstration at Cambridge and the Polo Grounds, as preparation for the final game with Dartmouth on Thanksgiving Day. Six of the Columbians will watch Haughton's old team tackle Yale, and the other varsity men will be spectators of the service game here.

The Columbia junior varsity had the better of a long, hard scrimmage with the varsity at Baker Field yesterday, but three first-string linemen were not in the line-up and the second eleven was strengthened by the presence of two freshman backfield men and a number of Percy Haughton's assistant coaches, who jumped into the action and kept the varsity busy. The juniors scored two touchdowns in the course of the engagement, and the best the regular team could contribute was a single touchdown.

Captain Walter Koppisch, continuing the brilliant work that he showed against N. Y. U., was the scorer for the varsity, breaking away for a 70-yard run through a broken field. At other times the Columbia leader made several short dashes and he now seems to be at the peak of his season's form.

Haughton decided to rest Brodil, Walder and Smullen in the varsity line, although they are not injured and were waiting and ready on the side lines. With still another week before the Dartmouth game at the Polo Grounds on Thanksgiving Day, the head coach is not anxious to drive his men hard at this stage for fear of drawing them too "fine."

LAFAYETTE IN LONG DRILL.

Coach Sutherland Puts Team Through Shadow Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Rather than take chances of injuring his players for the Lehigh game Saturday, Coach Sutherland of the Lafayette team today refrained from giving his squad any scrimmage work, but sent his men through a long shadow workout against the second team. Then, following the custom of the past few days, Assistant Coach Gougler sent his scrubbs through the Lehigh formations against the varsity in another shadow scrimmage.

The varsity showed great familiarity with these plays and battered down the forwards of their opponents with great ease. The practice started at 2 o'clock and lasted until dark. Early in the afternoon the entire student body and college band appeared on the field and cheered every member of the team.

LEHIGH ALTERS POLICY.

Baldwin Eliminates Scrimmage From Program, Fearing Injuries.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 21.—Altering somewhat the policy of early season practice, Coach Baldwin this afternoon practically abandoned scrimmage and sent his charges through a light workout in preparing for the Lafayette invasion on Saturday afternoon. The ease-up in the scrimmage sessions is a precaution against probable injury, it is believed. With the varsity talent it already has in the hospital, Lehigh could ill afford to have any more of its regulars banished to the side lines for this important game.

Hoffman and Lewis, a pair of first string guards, are both out and with no chances whatever of getting into the game. Merrill, varsity tackle, is struggling along with the squad but is not certain of starting.

In speculating on Lehigh's chances of victory, most concern seems to be centred around the quarterback position. While Lewin has called signals in the majority of games to date, "Chuck" Hess is the foremost contender for the berth.

SYRACUSE STARTS WEST.

Orange Team Departs for Lincoln to Meet Nebraska on Saturday.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Syracuse University's football team left tonight for Lincoln, Neb., to meet the Cornhuskers Saturday in what many football followers regard as the most important intersectional contest of the year. The team will have light practice in Chicago tomorrow and in Lincoln Friday. Every man of the husky Orange team was reported in good physical condition and eager for victory.

YALE TEAM CHEERED AT FOOTBALL RALLY

VARSITY FACES SCRUBS

Is Sent Through Light Scrimmage in Final Workout of Season for the Bull Pups.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—"Fellows, we are going to lick Harvard on Saturday," said Malcolm Aldrich tonight at a student football rally of 2,000 which packed Woolsey Hall, and the former Eli football and baseball captain added: "We are not going to win by any measly 3-to-1 score. We're going to trim them by, I think, at least 15 to 0. What I would like to see our team set out for is to roll up a score of better than 41 to 0," naming Harvard's highest total against Yale. Continuing, the former star said: "This afternoon I ran against Soucy of Harvard and said to him, 'How do you think things are coming out Saturday?' He answered, 'Well, there's no denying that Harvard is the under dog this year, but we're getting set to win.'

"That made me laugh. He knew better. I tell you, fellows, that it will take more than Harvard's subconscious mind to pull her through this year."

Following Aldrich, Captin Mallory told the crowd that Yale would play exactly the same brand of football against Harvard that it used against Princeton. He said that he had not talked about Harvard with even the scouts and didn't know anything about the team. He thanked the undergraduates for their optimistic spirit all Fall, which had been responsible for much of Yale's success.

The undergraduates sang their war songs and cheered their war cheers for more than an hour. The cheer leaders, Managers Robbins of the crew and Conway of the baseball nine, led the throng in ovations for Captain Mallory, for Head Coach Tad Jones and the individual coaches and members of the eleven.

Pictures of the players and of the Yale football songs were flashed upon a screen hung in front of the crowd. It was announced that the undertaker song would be launched in full blast in the stadium, and it was rehearsed time and again. Princeton protested it three years ago, and it was temporarily dropped. Yale started it last Saturday, but, after the score grew one-sided, called it off.

To try their defense against Harvard's new formations, the Yale first and second elevens today went through a fifteen-minute semi-scrimmage. Both teams were lined up against the Bull Pups, and the plays were rested off to test their workings without strenuous tackling and without any hard running. There were no injuries, and the coaches were relieved that Luman and Bingham, the slightly injured ends, finished the bout without aggravating their hurts.

Only the staff of resident coaches was present. No change in the line-up was made, but Butterworth was selected as tackle for the second team to oppose Harvard, winning his promotion over Rex Batty and Ed Greene. Abe Lincoln was picked for the second string end assignment. The vacancy created by the absence of Tony Hulman has been filled by Danny Deaver.

A short signal rehearsal for the first and second elevens tomorrow will close the drill at Yale for the season. The scrubs were dismissed for the year, but they will not break training until next week. The freshmen celebrated their record-breaking victories over Princeton and Harvard yearlings with a social session at the Hotel Taft this evening. The varsity squad of thirty-six players will go to Boston at 10:30 Friday morning.

BENKERT BACK IN GAME.

Rutgers Backfield Star Will Be Able to Start Against Fordham.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 21.—Henry Benkert, Coach Sanford's mainstay and principal ground gainer in the Rutgers backfield, returned to practice today, and it was announced he would play Saturday against Fordham at East Orange. Benkert injured his leg again in last week's game against Boston University and until today was hobbling around with a plaster cast. Carl Fuchs, the 210-pound guard who was injured two weeks ago in the West Virginia game, will be unable to play Saturday, it was said this afternoon. Sanford is giving the Scarlet a light week of work and today held only a signal drill instead of the usual Wednesday scrimmage. Hazel was again in the back field and Waite at end.

MYERS AND LEARY OUT.

Will Be Only Fordham Regulars Unable to Face Rutgers.

Coach Frank Gargan pitted his Fordham football team against the Maroon freshmen in a short scrimmage yesterday. The work-out started with the freshmen carrying the ball and although the yearling backs hit the varsity line hard they were unable to score. Gargan then gave the ball to the varsity for a short time during which Graham and McGeough broke away several times to score touchdowns.

The entire squad with the exception of Myers and Leary is in fine condition for the game with Rutgers on Saturday. Gargan definitely announced that Myers would not start. Inasmuch as this is Myers's last year at Fordham, Trainer "Jake" Weber advised his remaining out of the Rutgers contest in order to be ready for Georgetown. It was also decided that Leary, star Maroon tackle, will not start against Rutgers.

The line-up of the varsity against the freshmen was Malone and Dunne, ends; Bill and Smead, tackles; Obester and Ryan, guards; Stevenson, centre; Howley, quarterback; Graham and McGeough, halfbacks; Manning, fullback.

N. Y. U. AT STADIUM.

Will Meet Boston University in Intercity Game Saturday.

While the Army-Navy game at the Polo Grounds will be the leading football attraction in this city on Saturday, it is not the only contest scheduled for local gridirons. Across the Harlem River in the Yankee Stadium New York University will entertain Boston University, and the Yankee management figures that there will be enough football fans unable to see the service contest to leave a big overflow for the clash of the rival colleges.

The Yale-Harvard game will be reproduced on the playograph in the stadium and there will also be frequent reports from the Army-Navy battle. The New York University—Boston University marks the first meeting of these two rivals and is designed to inaugurate an intercity rivalry between institutions of similar character. Five hundred Boston University students are reported to have chartered an entire steamer by which to make the trip to New York.

Cleveland Gets Polo Tourney.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—The Midwest indoor polo tournament has been awarded to Cleveland, it was announced today, and it will be staged in the Public Auditorium Dec. 10, 11 and 12, under the auspices of Troop A of Cleveland. Twelve games will be played. Some of America's best polo teams are entered, including five teams from New York.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS IN HARVARD SQUAD

Coaches and Players Feel That the Crimson Line Will Stop Yale's Backs.

FOLLOWERS BACK ELEVEN

Cover All the Money Which Supporters of the Blue Offer at Odds of 2 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—It was the same old order of things in the stadium for Harvard this afternoon. First a drill on plays for the first and second varsities and then a continuation of the defensive tactics which are being worked out in the hope that the Crimson will be able to stop Yale on Saturday. The air at Cambridge now is one of real optimism regarding the outcome of the game, and a feeling that the Crimson team is going to win exists among coaches and players. One of the coaches said today that while Yale's backs this year are good, there are no players to match Aldrich and O'Hearn of two years ago, and the improvement which the Harvard linemen have been making since the Princeton game is such that Harvard expects to meet Yale on at least even terms in the line.

Harvard men everywhere today have been covering all the Yale money which has been offered at 2 to 1 odds, and there has been a lot of it.

There is no question that the team will be infinitely stronger against Yale than against Princeton and also in the finest of physical condition. The line-up continued today as it has been all week, except that McGlone went in to play quarter for the first time since he was carried from the field at Princeton eleven days ago.

McGlone ran the first team longer than Lee did, but Lee also had his chance. One guess as to which man will start at quarter is as good as another, but the prevailing opinon seems to be that it will be McGlone.

Grew was not in playing togs. Yet the doctors go so far as to say that while they knew on Monday that Grew would be able to go in as a sub guard against Yale, they were not sure then that he would be efficient, whereas now they can predict that he will play at his best if needed.

Harvard is sure that it has mapped out the defense to stop Yale's attacks from wide formations and also can solve any forward passing problem the Blue may offer. Those who are not so optimistic as the men close to the team feel that Harvard will have to win the game in the first half, if at all, and that the best men will have to be in the game at their best all the time to cope with Yale's three sets of backs.

Tonight there was a monster mass meeting at the Union. It was like all mass meetings, with the coaches urging solid support of the team and telling of the improvement the eleven has made since it won from the Tigers.

On the platform in the living room of the Harvard Union, which was packed to its doors by 1,500 undergraduates, were the regulars of the varsity, numbering thirteen, because there were five backfield players among them. Barklie Henry, this year's crew captain, introduced the speakers. Captain Hubbard, who was called on first, said:

"Our definite purpose is to defeat Yale. We want to place this team on the long list of successful Harvard teams."

CENTRE TO PLAY ALABAMA.

Praying Colonels to Invade Birmingham on Nov. 15 Next Year.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 21.—Arrangements have been made for Centre College to play the University of Alabama here Nov. 15 next year instead of Auburn, as this year, according to S. L. Yerkes, Centre alumnus of this city.

Wilbur Hutsell, Director of Athletics at Auburn, announced last week that the annual Auburn-Georgia clash had been moved up to Nov. 15, and that another November date had not been arranged mutually agreeable to the Tigers and the Praying Colonels of Centre. Coach Moran is unwilling to bring his team to Birmingham in October, it is said, and Auburn's November dates are filled.

GEORGIA TECH SCHEDULED.

Will Meet Notre Dame at South Benj Next Season.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 21.—Director of Athletics Knute Rockne today confirmed a report from Atlanta, Ga., that Georgia Tech would play the Notre Dame homecoming game here Nov. 1, 1924. Other contests for next year were not announced, but it is understood that Army has been signed to play at the Polo Grounds, New York, and that negotiations have been virtually completed which will send Notre Dame to Princeton again and bring Nebraska to Notre Dame.

COLGATE TO PLAY BROWN.

Elevens Will Meet Next Year on Thanksgiving Day.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Colgate will meet Brown at Andrews Field in Providence on Thanksgiving Day next year, according to an announcement made by Graduate Manager Reid today, following the receipt of a telegram from the Brown officials. The last time the two schools met, in 1921, Brown was the victor.

Games with Alfred and Clarkson have been definitely scheduled and a game with Rochester is pending. The Syracuse game will be played a week later next year, on Nov. 22.

JINX FOLLOWS W. AND J.

Haddon Has to Be Carried From the Field During Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Misfortune continues to camp on the trail of the Washington and Jefferson football squad. In the first scrimmage of the week in preparation for the struggle with West Virginia on Thanksgiving Day, Al Haddon, who has been holding down an end position or playing in the backfield during the entire season, was carried to the side lines and finally off the field. He received the injury when tackled after receiving a forward pass. The full extent of his injury has not been determined. Ten of the regulars are now on the crippled list—Kopf, Fudney, Crook, Basista, Amos, Long, West, Tichaus, Haddon and Wild. The long ray of light came with the return of Lee Spillers, who was playing a fine game at end in the scrammaging.

Lafayette Harriers Triumph.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—The Lafayette cross-country team this afternoon defeated the Dickinson harriers. Farnham, Lafayette, set a new course record of 26 minutes 20 seconds.

Trumbull Says Sport Writers Are Against Harvard Team

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—Walter H. Trumbull, who acted as captain of the Harvard football team in 1914, in a speech before the undergraduates at the Union tonight declared that the sporting writers were against the Crimson team this year and that this was causing graduates who live at a distance to waver. He said that those who were close to the situation knew that the team had an even chance against Yale. Coach Fisher admitted that the approaching game would be a "tough one," but asked that the student body have as much confidence in the team as he has.

FOLWELL IN DOUBT AS TO NAVY LINE-UP

Several Combinations Receive Trials in Last Home Practice of Season.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 21.—For the last time before the game against the Military Academy the Navy football squad practiced on the local field this afternoon. There will be no opportunity for the briefest practice tomorrow, and the only finishing touches will be put on at a signal and formation practice at the Polo Grounds on Friday afternoon.

The work this afternoon was thorough and occupied a considerable portion of the afternoon, but there was no scrimmage, and any further casualty to a member of the team is unlikely, prior to the Army game, at least.

Several combinations, both in the backfield and in the line, were used this afternoon during the signal and formation work; and much attention also was given to passing and kicking, the latter in all of its varieties. Cullen, who will do the punting on Saturday, was getting the ball off for increased distances and placing his kicks well. Ballinger appeared very sure with his drop kicks, while McKee, Shapley and Barchet all tried a few placements. A surprise of the afternoon was the punting of Chillingworth, a substitute tackle and varsity crew man. Chillingworth did better work than any other Navy player has done this year, his punts covering from sixty-five to seventy yards regularly. He is of Hawaiian blood, weighing 180 pounds and over six feet tall. He will not be overlooked next year.

The general opinion is that Brown will be able to start at right end, but that Taylor will not start on the other flank, Bernet being chosen. However, both of the regulars were in the signal work this afternoon and insist that they are ready.

Folwell is still in some doubt as to several places on the line, though the decision to start McKee, Devens, Cullen and Shapley in the backfield is unchanged. He inclines to Zuber to start at centre, rather than Mathews, and there is a chance that Walker will be one of the tackles, though Clyde and Shewell are more likely to start. Carney and Levensky at the guards are practically certain.

Side-line privileges at the service game this year will be limited strictly at a hundred for each branch, and many who have been by the sides of the field in previous years will occupy seats in the stands.

NO SEATS TO BE HAD FOR SERVICE GAME

Hundreds Turned Away at Giants' Offices—New York to Seek 1924 Classic.

Although all the seats for the Army-Navy game have been disposed of for several days, hundreds of would-be purchasers made futile pilgrimages to the Giants' offices on Forty-fourth Street yesterday. Secretary James J. Tierney, who is in charge of the arrangements for the service game, said that he felt sure he could have disposed of at least 50,000 more seats in New York City alone had they been available. As it is, the Polo Grounds have been enlarged to accommodate an additional 16,000 for this game, but this extra space served only to whet the demand, not to satisfy it.

Officials of the Giants regretted that there had been an increase in theatre and hotel prices because of the game, but pointed out that the same thing occurred in Philadelphia last year and would be likely to occur in any other city which might act as host to the contest. They were also of the opinion that the ever-increasing size of these Army-Navy game crowds makes New York the logical site for the contest, and they are working day and night on the arrangements for Saturday's game with the hope that it will be such a success as to affect the award of next year's contest in favor of this city. Officials of the Naval Academy will choose the site of next year's game and Baltimore has been frequently mentioned as a possibility because of its proximity to Annapolis.

The advance guard of the two academies will arrive in New York today to make the final arrangements for the teams and the corps of cadets and midshipmen. The Navy eleven will arrive tonight and will stop at the Vanderbilt. The Army squad, which is due to arrive tomorrow morning, will have its headquarters at the Astor. Both teams will practice at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon. The cadets and midshipmen will arrive on special trains on Saturday morning.

Much is being made by both the Cadets and Midshipmen over the methods of transporting their mascots. Last year the Navy goat allowed his fondness for suitcases to get the best of him on his way to Philadelphia and almost wrecked an entire baggage car. This inexcusable behavior, coupled with his failure to produce a victory, has led to his being supplanted by a newcomer. Reports have it that this new goat has been better trained than his predecessor and always acquits himself in a manner beyond reproach, but, nevertheless, he will be closely guarded on his way here. The Army mule has served in his present capacity for fifteen years now, and needs little looking after. He likes to travel, and is reported to wake up and take a lively interest in what goes on about him around this time each year.

ODDS ADVANCE ON ARMY.

3 to 2 Now Being Offered by Backers of West Point Eleven.

The two favorites in the big football games on Saturday became more favored yesterday in the betting in Wall Street. Army advanced from 6 to 5, the price quoted on Tuesday by J. S. Fried & Co., brokers, of 20 Broad Street, to 3 to 2, while odds of 2 to 1 were offered by the same firm on Yale to defeat Harvard. Fried & Co. stated that they had approximately $3,000 to place on the Army eleven at the odds now prevailing, this money representing a pool of Army men who had sent their cash down to Wall Street to back their team. Fried & Co. are also offering $2,000 to $1,000 that Yale will conquer the Crimson. The firm stated yesterday that, so far as it can ascertain, there is absolutely no money ready to be placed on Harvard.

ARMY ELEVEN URGED TO 'BEAT THE NAVY'

Planes Bomb Gridiron With Messages While Corps Cheers From the Stands.

SMYTHE RUNS THE VARSITY

Star Quarterback Returns to Position and Drives Players Through Smooth Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The Army football squad worked for two hours this evening in preparation for the Navy game. A big rally in the stands followed a visit of three airplanes to the gridiron this afternoon. Flying low, a trio of army fliers from Mitchel Field dropped bombs which proved to be messages purporting to be from the United States Army at large, imploring Army's football warriors to fight from the first sound of the whistle on Saturday. "Beat the Navy" was the slogan contained in the messages picked up all over the gridiron after the aviators had departed. The assembled cadets in the stands, by songs and cheers, indicated the same desire as they urged the big team on in its work down on the field.

There was no slighting of any detail today in the drill which Captain McEwan planned for the squad. Two elevens unlimbered themselves with setting-up exercises prior to the real work. Gene Vidal, backfield coach, was in charge of this calisthenic formation. Vidal, in a thorough, workmanlike manner, later took the scrub eleven, which is equipped with Navy plays and has been executing them in a smooth manner of late, and himself did all of the passing in "Navy's" air attack.

The varsity backs, two sets of them, broke up these overhead plays with encouraging regularity. Biff Jones and Red O'Hare sent all the big line men through their paces on the adjoining field in a stiff dummy scrimmage session, while Neyland looked after the ends on the north field. Head Coach McEwan directed the final and intensive period of the drill and sent the big team through a sharp signal practice at the wind-up.

There were no absentees, except Garbisch's sub, Westphalinger, who is not expected to be in shape to play at all against the Navy.

Garbisch himself kicked field goals with varying success, and in the defensive drill against Navy passes he was effective in breaking them up.

Tiny Hewitt and Ives alternated at left halfback, with Gilimore at the other half and Wood at full. George Smythe was calling signals and running the varsity. With Smythe guiding the big team, there is a smoothness which is conspicuously lacking when any of the substitute quarters are on the job. The Army's star worked through the whole afternoon today and it looks as if he might start against the Navy. Yoemans was drilling with the reserve eleven.

Henney, the sub tackle who has been giving Mulligan a hard race, started in the position at the beginning, but later gave way to the captain. This is one position which undoubtedly will not be filled until the last moment. At the ends Doyle and Baxter look to be the choice of the coaches. Both were used today during nearly all of the practice period. Baxter is almost sure to start at left end, but the coaches may decide to use either Don Storck, the veteran wingman, or Gilbreath if Doyle is not called on. Sandy Goodman and Gus Farwick were the other linemen flanking Garbisch.

There may be some last-minute changes in Army's line-up in one or two positions.

The West Point squad will leave here on Friday morning and will reach New York in time to take a practice at the Polo Grounds Friday afternoon. The corps of cadets will not go down until Saturday morning. Army headquarters will be at the Hotel Astor.

IDEA WAS POP WARNER'S.

Pittsburgh Coach Designed Rubber Pants Worn by W. Va. Eleven.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 21.—The rubber pants used by West Virginia University football players here last Saturday, when St. Louis University was defeated on a muddy field, were designed and originated by Glenn Warner, coach of the University of Pittsburgh squad, according to C. W. Spears, head coach at West Virginia.

They are designed not to make the player slippery and elusive to would-be tacklers, but to shed the rain and prevent the matting of mud on the players. Dr. Spears adopted them when the actual experiment showed that a pair of pants used on a muddy field weighs thirty pounds more after the game than they did before. According to the West Virginia coach, Pitt and West Virginia are the only two schools in the country who keep these rubber pants as a regular part of their playing equipment.

HARVARD SETS CREW DATES.

Will Row Against Yale on Thames June 20—Meets Cornell May 24.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—The Yale-Harvard boat race on the Thames at New London next year will be rowed on June 20. The Harvard varsity crew schedule for 1924, announced today, also calls for races against Pennsylvania and Columbia at Cambridge on May 10 and against Cornell at Ithaca on May 24.

Additional races arranged for May 10 at Cambridge are those between the Harvard, Pennsylvania and Columbia freshman and 150-pound varsity crews. Harvard's 150-pound crew will meet those of Yale and Princeton at Princeton on May 17, and the Harvard and Cornell freshmen will battle at Ithaca on May 24. On May 31 the Harvard junior varsity will compete in the American Henley Regatta at Philadelphia. Combination and freshman Harvard and Yale crews will compete at New London on the day of the big race.

It was announced that the customary Harvard, Princeton and Navy race could not be held next year, as Princeton could accept only May 3, impossible for Harvard because of divisional examinations.

Before departing Sisler said he expected to play next year, as his vision, which kept him out of the game all last season, was improving. Sisler expressed himself as highly optimistic over the 1924 prospects of the Browns.

PARIS IS STIRRED BY RACE PROPOSAL

WERTHEIMER DEFENDS PLAN

Owner of Epinard Denies That He Wants the Distance Made to Suit His Own Colt.

PARIS, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—The proposed international race at Longchamps next May for horses of the breeding of 1920 has stirred the French racing world to its depths, and, as was expected, the project does not receive a unanimous welcome.

The leading evening racing paper, Paris Sport, for example, adversely criticizes the plan on the ground that sufficient opportunities already exist for the meeting of the international cracks. It instances the Derby and the Grand Prix de Paris for three-year-olds, and the Ascot Cup and the Arc de Triomphe for all ages.

The paper prints opinions gathered from leading race horse owners, beginning with Pierre Wertheimer, who believes that such a test will be of capital interest from both sporting and economic viewpoints. He thinks the distance should not exceed 2,000 meters because the English and Americans would not care to race their horses further. He warmly repudiates a suggestion that he favored this distance as best suited to his champion Epinard.

"I am ready to match Epinard against any horse over a distance of 2,400 meters for a million francs," he is quoted as declaring.

Senator James Hennessey, another leading owner, believes the idea cannot be realized, because "the Americans would not put themselves out to come." Such a test, he adds, is not real sport, as the foreigner if defeated can always plead a want of acclimation and the effects of the voyage; furthermore Senator Hennessey thinks there are sufficient races open to foreign horses without holding another.

Maurice Caillaux, whose colors have been seen on the race tracks for twenty years, however, considers it "an excellent idea which is perfectly realizable."

M. Caillaux suggests that each country nominate three horses and make its choice of the competitor at the last minute. He also favors a distance of 2,400 meters in preference to 2,000.

BILLIARD LEAGUE WARNS GREENLEAF

But Champion Replies That He Will Play Match With Shoemaker Today.

Ralph Greenleaf, the world's pocket billiard champion, yesterday officially informed the officers of the National Championship Pocket Billiard League that he would play his scheduled match against J. Howard Shoemaker of New York at the Strand Billiard Academy today, tomorrow and on Saturday. Greenleaf also sent a message to Charles Kline of the Strand that he would positively appear, regardless of the consequences.

The officials of the league also were busy. A special conference of a few members of the Board of Directors was held in the offices of Frank A. Dwyer, President of the league, at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. Joe Mayer, President of the Hudson Recreation Academy in Philadelphia, who claims he has a binding agreement with Greenleaf, attended this meeting. Mayer and President Dwyer called Greenleaf over the long distance telephone and warned him that if he played the match it would be at his own risk. Greenleaf replied that he believed he was within his right and would play.

Greenleaf then called up Thomas A. Dwyer, Secretary-Treasurer of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, and asked his advice, but the billiard official declined to take any hand in the controversy and said that the question of his status rested with the National Pocket Billiard League and not with him.

Mayer produced the contract which, he said, was signed by Greenleaf last month and also a new one which, he asserted, was signed by Greenleaf recently, in lieu of an increased weekly guarantee Mayer asserts that he has absolute control over Greenleaf's services from Nov. 18 until April 5, the date the contract expires, and that Greenleaf can only play outside matches with his consent.

Originally the Fourteenth Street Billiard Academy, which holds the Manhattan franchise in the league, threatened injunction proceedings, but it has developed that Mayer is the only person with the power to start such action and that he plans to remain here to see if Greenleaf carries out his threat to play the match. Mayer, who is backed by the league, would not disclose his plan of action, but will wait until Greenleaf steps to the table for his match with Shoemaker this afternoon.

ZEV HAS TOP WEIGHT.

Will Carry 133 Pounds in Bowie Feature on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21.—Weights were announced today for the Southern Maryland Handicap, which will be the feature of the first Saturday card at the Prince George Park track. This stake may witness the last start of the season for the Rancocas Stable's Zev and give the American champion an opportunity to go down in turf history as the greatest of the world's money winning horses. As the proposed match with My Own is definitely off and there appears little likelihood that In Memoriam will come here for a match with Zev, Hildreth may decide to give Zev one more chance to claim world honors.

Zev has been given top weight of 133 pounds, conceding fourteen to Tryster and fifteen to Dunlin. King Solomon's Seal, winner of the Prince George Handicap on the opening day here, is next on the list with 116 pounds, equal weight with Flagstaff. Exodus and Hephaistos are in with 114 pounds and Shuffle Along and General Thatcher one pound less.

The handicapper has given Reparation 113 pounds and Avisack 111, rating Homestretch, which, with My Own, made an unexpectedly poor showing in the Prince George, at 110 pounds. From that the weight scales down to the feather of eighty-seven pounds assigned to the two-year-old Roland.

There were sixty-six nominations for the Southern Maryland, which is at a mile for two-year-olds and upward, the stake having an added-money value of $10,000.

The papers are for a suit for $50,000 which the manager will bring in the Supreme Court; an action for $1,966.84 which Jacobs said his lawyers will press in the City Court and a suit for $1,000 by Louis A. Shapiro, Jacobs's lawyer, which will come up within six days in the Municipal Court.

Nov. 29 Is Date Selected For 1924 Army-Navy Game

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 21.—From a comparatively early date to the latest allowable under the agreement, the date of the football game between the Naval and Military academies will swing next year. It has been settled officially that the date of the 1924 game will be Nov. 29. However, there has been no agreement as to the place of the contest. The matter is entirely in the hands of the naval authorities, and Rear Admiral Wilson, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, said today that the matter had not been settled and would not even be considered until after the game on Saturday. While there has been no decision in favor of Baltimore, as was reported, it is known that Baltimore wishes to stage the game.

DETROIT, Nov. 21.—Ary Bos of Holland lost his first game in the junior 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament here today to Tadao Suganuma of Japan, 300 to 167. Bos, however, made the highest run, 83. Suganuma's highest was 73. The game went twenty innings.

In the other game Al Taylor of Ann Arbor won his first game, defeating David McAndless of Chicago, 300 to 89 in eleven innings. The high runs were 71 and 64 respectively.

Jean Bruno of Austria defeated Albert J. Cutler of New York, 300 to 174, in the evening game. Both players started out well and Cutler was 4 ahead with 128 at the end of the fifth inning.

During the next six innings neither player was able to get the balls together for a run, but in the twelfth Bruno scored 58 and virtually made certain his victory in the fourteenth, when he made a run of 83.

The defeat of Bos caused him to drop from a tie with Bruno for first place to a tie with Suganuma for second position. Bruno leads with three straight victories, while Bruno and Suganuma have each won two and lost one. Bruno has the highest run so far made in the tournament, 185, while Bos has a run of 167 to his credit and Suganuma one of 153.

Jameson 150 to 113 in the third. Fisher went out in 63 innings and had a high run of 16, to Von During's 125. The third game went to 33 innings. Honsch made a high run of 21, Jameson of 19.

Frank Deegan defeated Sidney Van Wart by the close score of 25 to 23 in the Manhattan three-cushion championship at the Recreation Academy last night. Van Wart lead 23 to 21 at the end of the forty-ninth inning. Deegan then made an unfinished run of 4, his best in the game. Van Wart also had a high run of 4.

MAD PLAY CAPTURES THE BENNINGS PURSE

Rancocas Colt Easily Beats Five Other Juveniles in Featured Race at Bowie.

MISS WHISK EQUALS MARK

Whitney Filly Ties Track Record of 1:07 for 5½ Furlongs, to Win the Terminal.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21.—Sam Hildreth saddled his first winner for the Rancocas Stable at the Prince George Park meeting this afternoon when he sent out Mad Play to win the Bennings Purse for two-year-olds over the mile course. Only a fair field of five juveniles opposed the son of Fair Play and Madcap, which had an easy time of it at the finish, beating W. R. Coe's Sun Maiden by six lengths. The mile was run in the slow time of 1:43 3-5, over a fast track.

The Bennings Purse was the featured number of the afternoon card. Mad Play did not look like a winner until his final big burst of speed, as he was in close quarters all through the early running. The chestnut colt was closely pocketed next to the inside rail, and M. Fator was unable to get him out until the field was rounding the far turn. There Fator saw a chance and took Mad Play to the outside.

Once clear, the colt displayed great speed and quickly drew away from his opposition, finishing as he liked. J. S. Cosden's Yankee Princess had the early foot of the field and made the running for six furlongs, at the end of which she was raced down by Sun Maiden, the latter just lasting to take second money by a nose from Dr. O'Mara. Mad Play was a 1-to-4 favorite, with Sun Maiden second choice in the wagering.

Miss Whisk Scores.

Marry Payne Whitney's chestnut filly Miss Whisk won the Terminal Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs for two-year-olds, but was forced to equal the track record of 1:07 for the distance to beat F. M. Taylor's Abu Ben Ahdem by a length and a half. A field of thirteen went to the post, with the Whitney filly the public choice at 8 to 5.

They were sent away to a poor start, with W. J. Howard's Maclean showing in front. Miss Whisk showed good speed and soon took command, withstanding a strong challenge from Maclean and having something in reserve at the finish. Abu Ben Ahdem closed with a rush, coming up on the outside to beat Maclean for second money by half a length. The latter took the short end with ease from Sarko.

McAtee had the mount on Miss Whisk and made it a double for the afternoon by riding Normana to victory in the opening number. Normana was away well at the start, which was a poor one for the field of twelve juveniles which essayed the six-furlong dash. The filly showed good courage, standing a hard drive to get up in the final strides to nose out the Quincy Stable's The Poet. The latter was two lengths in front of Kal Parr's No Lady.

Cooncan Pays $67.10 for $2.

An outsider came home in front in the race for three-year-olds and upward over the course of a mile and seventy yards, A. C. Bostwick's four-year-old gelded son of Bryn Mawr and Toastrack, Cooncan, paying $67.10 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. Cooncan was a forward contender all through the race and raced down Quecreek in the later stages. The gelding stood a hard drive gamely and outlasted Belphrisonia to win by half a length. The latter came with a rush, closed steadily and was wearing the winner down at the end. Rupee was three lengths back. Fifteen ran, the time being 1:49.

Another outsider carried off first money when the Duc de Morny won the sixth race and paid $60.80 for a $2 ticket. The five-year-old son of King James worked his way up through the field on the back stretch, disposed of Who Cares and drew away in the stretch run to beat the latter handily by two lengths. Majority, the 9-to-4 favorite, was third.

Jyntee, the even-money favorite, was nosed out of first money in the second race by Mountain Rose II., hanging at the end while the winner, hard urged throughout, came up on the outside and closed with fine courage. The winner paid $37 in the mutuels.

Another favorite lost by a nose when R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Ducks and Drakes was beaten by that margin by Rouen in the final race, the latter paying $19.20.

SIKI TO REMAIN HERE FOR FUTURE BOUTS

Rickard May Match Senegalese With Greb, Tunney or McTigue in January.

Battling Siki left the ring at Madison Square Garden badly beaten by Kid Norfolk last Tuesday night, but by no means discouraged. The spirit of the Senegalese was jarred by the unpalatable surprise Norfolk furnished, but Siki profited by the experience he had in his first American ring engagement and became more determined than ever before to show an American boxing gathering his best fighting form. This was the statement yesterday of Bob Levy, Siki's latest and, apparently, permanent manager. Siki himself followed a conspicuous seclusion through the day. He did not appear at Madison Square Garden, having delegated Levy to attend to closing the final details of the Norfolk battle.

Siki's present plans include no mention of his immediate return to Europe, reports to the contrary previous to Tuesday night's scrap notwithstanding. According to Levy, Siki plans to remain right here in the good old U. S. A. and seek further ring matches. The Senegalese spent the night in a hotel in the theatrical district and was scheduled this morning to return to Summit, N. J., where he plans to rest for a while before resuming training for additional ring work.

Levy said he had received offers for Siki's services in bouts in Havana and Atlanta, Ga. The Georgia promoters want Siki to battle Tiger Flowers. At Madison Square Garden Promoter Tex Rickard, admitting surprise at the result of the bout, declared he would seek to arrange a match for Siki in January against either Harry Greb, Gene Tunney of Mike McTigue, provided Siki continues his abstinence from eccentricities which have gained him notoriety in the past.

When Levy visited the Garden, Rickard discussed Greb, Tunney and McTigue informally as prospective rivals for Siki, but the Senegalese's manager then gave no indication of his attitude with respect to any named. Later, however, Levy said he thought Siki would benefit from several matches against less dangerous rivals in a series of bouts he plans for the purpose of having Siki fight himself into topnotch form.

Levy attributed Siki's disappointing showing to the fact that the boxer had not trained sufficiently for Norfolk. "With one or two weeks more of training, I feel sure Siki would have beaten Norfolk," said Levy. "He was not at his best, although, under the circumstances, he was in as good physical condition as was possible. He showed his lack of true fighting condition in each round when, after starting strong, he would fall into clinches before a minute's activity. He clinched against orders from his corner and, as a consequence, played right into the hands of Norfolk, but it couldn't be helped under the circumstances. He just could not sustain a pace at long range. It was this inability to keep up a sustained attack which beat Siki as much as anything Norfolk did to him. He satisfied the people on one thing, however, and that is that he is game to the core."

Norfolk spent most of yesterday receiving congratulations from his host of friends and admirers. The Baltimore negro emerged from the battle unmarked and uninjured and satisfied that he had shown himself a formidable contender for the world's light-heavy weight title. It is the intention of Leo P. Flynn, Norfolk's manager, to launch a campaign which he hopes will end in Norfolk winning the title now held by Mike McTigue.

NEW GIANT BOXER FOUND.

Van of Chicago Is Coming Here to Meet Heavyweights.

Another aspirant for the world's heavyweight title now held by Jack Dempsey is scheduled to arrive here within a few days in quest of bouts and recognition. The newcomer is Charlie Van, a Chicago giant, standing 6 feet 3 inches in his stockings, admitting twenty-one years and toting around 190 pounds of solid fighting strength.

Van, according to advance reports, was discovered by Sig Hart, once associated with Jack Johnson, and is being consigned to Jerry Moffatt, manager of Al Reich and Chuck Wiggins. Van is said to have engaged in sixteen professional ring engagements without tasting defeat. It is claimed for him that he won nine bouts with knockouts and seven on decisions.

Joe Dundee Beats Welling.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Joe Dundee of Baltimore received the decision over Joe Welling, Chicago veteran, after a twelve-round bout here tonight. Welling floored Dundee for a count of eight in the second round. Dundee weighed 138 pounds and Welling 137½.

Frank Goddard Wins British Heavyweight Title on Foul

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Frank Goddard tonight became heavyweight champion of Great Britain when he was fouled in the second round by Jack Bloomfield, who hit Goddard while the latter was down. The men were to have fought twenty rounds for the title held until recently by Joe Beckett, who retired from the ring following his defeat at Olympia by Georges Carpentier, who knocked him out in the first round. Tonight's fight was held in Albert Hall. Bloomfield, who was disqualified, holds the light heavyweight championship of Great Britain.

KIRBY BEATS DUNN IN AMATEUR BOUT

National Heavyweight Champion Wins Intercity Match in Garden Ring.

PETRONE LOSES DECISION

Junior Flyweight Titleholder Goes an Extra Round, but Malonsky Wins Verdict.

New York's representatives in the flyweight class of the intercity amateur boxing tournament at Madison Square Garden were eliminated in the semi-final round bouts last night. Dominick Petrone, St. Lucy's Catholic Club, and Phil Citrin, Trinity Club, were the lads selected to bring victory to this city, but both failed. Mike Malonsky of Boston eliminated Petrone, national junior flyweight champion, in the most startling upset of the night. In the other 112-pound semi-final William Davies of Pittsburgh defeated Citrin.

Tom Kirby of Boston, national amateur heavyweight champion, came through victorious when he defeated Matt Dunn, rangy boxer of the Paulist A. C. of this city in the first semi-final of the 175-pound class. Kirby's clever boxing, his accurate counters in the face of Dunn's furious assault, won the battle for the Hub lad, who gained the decision at the end of three interesting rounds.

Dunn gave a good account of himself, drawing blood from the champion's mouth and several times reaching Kirby's body with solid smashes of the right which hurt.

In the other light-heavyweight intercity semi-final Stanley Simmons, Willow A. C. of Pittsburgh, defeated John Grombach, U. S. Army boxer of Governor's Island, who won the intercollegiate heavyweight title as a West Point cadet. Simmons won the decision after pummelin the army man through every one of the three rounds.

Many Disagree With Decision.

The elimination of Petrone did not meet with the approval of the large crowd which witnessed the encounter. The local lad lost the decision to his rival in four rounds after an exciting encounter. Many of the spectators thought that Petrone was entitled to the verdict after the customary three rounds. Judging from the volume of the demonstration after the extra session, the majority of those who saw the encounter disagreed with the judges in their selection of Malonsky as the winner.

Citrin's defeat was pronounced. The local lad, though enjoying advantages in height and reach, did not measure up to Davies in boxing skill. It was the Hub lad's ability as a boxer which earned him the decision after an interesting three-round bout. It was announced that the flyweight final would be conducted tonight, along with the other intercity finals.

The bouts in the open classes provided an evening of assorted entertainment for the spectators. As is usual in these amateur tournaments, there was plenty of good, bad and indifferent boxing.

The one feature which was pronounced more than any other was that the competitors in the different bouts never stopped trying, no matter how awkward or polished the individual effort.

A lad who looks like a promising boxer was uncovered in the heavyweight division in the person of Tom Tritta, Stanton A. A., a wonderful physical specimen of young manhood with an admirable elementary knowledge of boxing. Tritta disposed of B. Kane, unattached, in 2 minutes 31 seconds of the first round of their scheduled three-round battle, and in that time had Kane on the floor three times for nine counts, under the impact of crushing rights to the jaw.

Engage in Humorous Bout.

The other extreme was furnished in the succeeding heavyweight bout, which had the crowd in hysterics throughout its full three rounds. The principals were Pat Corrigan, an unattached novice, and Joe Croro, squat, little heavyweight, without club affiliations. Corrigan, showing in his every movement that he had never before engaged in a ring bout, nevertheless exhibited enough determination and initiative to win the decision after three humorous rounds.

The summaries:

112-Pound Class, Semi-Final Round—Mike Maloney, Essex, defeated Dominick Petrone, St. Lucy's Catholic Club, New York, four rounds, judges' decision; William Davies, Pittsburgh, defeated Phil Citrin, Trinity Club, Brooklyn, three rounds, judges' decision.

NO FORMAL ENTRY RECEIVED FROM U. S.

America Not Included in List of Countries to Take Part in Next Year's Olympics.

A. A. U. EXPLAINS SITUATION

Officials State That Practice Here Is to File Separate Entries for Various Competitions.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Publication by the French Olympic Committee of the list of countries whose participation in next year's Olympics is certain has brought attention to the fact that the United States has not yet entered for the events. It is regarded, however, as an absolute certainty that America will send one of the most formidable teams since the modern series of Olympics was started and its presence is hailed as one of the event's biggest drawing cards.

The verbal assurances given by Colonel Robert M. Thompson and Colonel A. G. Mills, together with the active preparations during the last Summer for housing the American team during the games, caused the French committee to include America in the list of entries, although no official acceptance of the committee's invitation has been received to date.

"We couldn't very well list the United States as among those who have accepted 'in principle,'" said Frantz Reichel, Secretary of the committee, today. "There has probably been an oversight on the part of the American committee, due to the fact that it is so busy organizing its team with a view to victory."

The committee to date has received official acceptances from the following twenty countries of its invitation to participate in next year's games: Australia, Bulgaria, Belgium, Denmark, Esthonia, Great Britain, Haiti, India, Italy, New Zealand, Peru, Spain, Switzerland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Latvia, Egypt and Japan. Eight nations have accepted "in principle." These are: Argentina, Poland, Rumania, Norway, Finland, Holland, Luxemborg and Yugoslavia.

No Oversight, Says A. A. U.

Failure of the United States so far to file formal entries for various events in the 1924 Olympics at Paris has not been due to any overright, it was declared last night by officials of the Amateur Athletic Union. They explained that it is this country's practice to file its entry separately for the different fields of competition as they occur and to take advantage in most cases of the time limits allowed under Olympic regulations.

For instance, it was pointed out, entries for the Winter sports program at Chamonix, beginning Jan. 25, and which constitute the initial feature of the international events, do not close until Dec. 15. Due to some uncertainty as to the extent of American representation in the various Winter sports, full benefit probably will be taken of this time allowance before the A. A. U. files formal entries.

A similar course will be adopted with other sports, officials said.

Princeton Flotilla Covers 3,237 Miles in Fall Season

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 21.—During the Fall crew season, which ended with the Fall regatta on Lake Carnegie recently, the crews working out under Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, director of rowing at Princeton, accounted for a total of 3,237 miles. This record was compiled from the logbooks of the different eights and according to Dr. Spaeth represents more mileage than was covered in the Spring practice last year, due to the unusually favorable weather this Autumn. The combintions running up this total consisted of four varsity, three 150-pound and eight freshman boats, one of the largest squads in the history of Tiger rowing.

U. S. WILL COMPETE AGAINST BRITISH

A. A. U. Votes to Select Team for Dual Games in London After Olympics.

IRISH MEET IS APPROVED

Free State Will Hold Athletic Tourney in Dublin During the Month of August.

In a report presented by Joseph B. Maccabe, Chairman of the Committee on International Affairs, at the Detroit convention of the Amateur Athletic Union, it was unanimously voted that the Amateur Athletic Union would participate in the dual games arranged between the British Empire and the United States in London on Saturday, July 19, immediately following the Olympic games in Paris. The committee's resolution was received with hearty approval, and a strong team will be selected.

Approval was also given the proposed Irish games at Dublin, where the Irish Free State is to hold an athletic tournament for Irishmen and all Irish descendants throughout the world next August. The Irish Free State is particularly anxious that American athletes of Irish ancestry should be represented, not only in track and field, but in swimming, handball, wrestling, boxing and possibly hurling.

A strong resolution was also passed repudiating the recent attacks on International Federations at the recent meeting of the American Olympic Committee in New York.

The resolution follows:

Whereas, the Amateur Athletic Union is, and for many years past has been, a member of those international federations governing international competition in track and field athletics, swimming, boxing, wrestling, gymnastics and weight lifting; and

Whereas, at a congress held at Lausanne, Switzerland, in 1921, of the representatives of those committees of the Olympic Committees of the various countries and of the International Olympic Committee, the administration of the contests of the sports of the Olympic games was placed in the hands of the above International Federation, and

Whereas, at a recent meeting of the American Olympic Committee, an attack was made upon such International Federation and the system adopted at such Lausanne Congress for the administration of the sports on the Olympic program,

Whereas it was urged by the same speaker that the entire control of the Olympic Games, including the acceptance of entries and technical administration of the contests, be placed under the International Olympic Committee, which said speaker assumed to represent; therefore be it

Resolved, that the Amateur Athletic Union reaffirms to the International Federations, in which it has membership, its continued allegiance thereto and to the principle of their control of all international competitions; and be it further

Resolved, That, while the Amateur Athletic Union does not believe that the International Olympic Committee is seeking, or intends to seek or ignore, supplant or modify the present control of the administration of the sports on the Olympic program by the International Federation, if in such belief it is in error, that then and in that event this Union request Professor Sloane, General Sherrill and Mr. Garland, the representatives of the International Olympic Committee to this country, to inform such committees that it strongly disapproves of such attitude and effort and through the International Federation will do that which it can in opposition thereto."

TO PLAY 19 GAMES.

Columbia Five Will Meet Navy and Harvard This Winter.

One of the hardest basketball schedules arranged in recent years for the Columbia University five was made public yesterday by Eugene C. Bennett, manager. Nineteen games, of which ten will be championship contests in the Intercollegiate Basketball League, appear on the list, and the calibre of the opponents indicates that Coach Joe Deering's aggregation will have its hands full almost from the beginning of the season.

The Naval Academy appears on the schedule for the first time in the history of Columbia basketball. The midshipmen will play on Morningside Heights on Dec. 22, during the holiday period at Columbia, and the game will be one of the biggest of the season. Except for their games with the Army, it will be the second time that the middies have met another five off their home court, the other occasion being when they tackled Pennsylvania at Philadelphia last Winter.

Harvard is another new opponent for Columbia, the Crimson being scheduled for a game at Cambridge on Jan. 21. St. Johns has been dropped from the schedule, and a game could not be arranged with C. C. N. Y., but four teams have been added, in the Navy, Harvard, Wesleyan and Colgate.

The schedule follows:

Dec. 4, Brooklyn Poly at New York; 8, Rutger's at New Brunswick; 15, Army at West Point; 21, Wesleyan at New York; 22, Navy at New York; 28, Rochester at Rochester; 29, Colgate at Utica.

Jan. 11, Pennsylvania at New York; 15, Princeton at New York; 19, Dartmouth at Hanover; 21, Harvard at Cambridge.

Feb. 8, N. Y. U. at New York; 12, Yale at New York; 19, Cornell at Ithaca; 22, Dartmouth at New York; 26, Princeton at Princeton.

March 1, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 8, Cornell at New York; 15, Yale at New Haven.

NEW RIVALS FOR FORDHAM.

Five Teams Are on Basketball Schedule for First Time.

Frank Cronin, manager of the Fordham basketball team, yesterday announced the schedule for the coming season. The list consists of sixteen games and two open dates, which will be filled shortly. The team will make a Southern trip, in which four games will be played. Five newcomers are to be played this season. They are Army, Catholic University, Virginia, Quantico Marines and Newark A. C. The Army appears on the Maroon schedule for the first time in several years. N. Y. U., C. C. N. Y. and Manhattan will be met, as well as Lehigh and Navy.

Prospects for the coming season are unusually good. Coach Ed Kelleher loses only Ed McMahon, captain of last year's team. He still has Captain Vinnie Cavanagh, "Tex" Landry, Ralph O'Connell, Joe Manning and Hal Leddy, veterans of last year's team, as well as several other promising candidates.

The schedule follows:

Dec. 14, Cathedral College at New York; 16, Catholic University at New York.

Jan. 9, Rutgers College at New Brunswick; 12, City College at City College; 16, Newark A. C. at Newark; 19, Lehigh at Bethlehem, Pa.; 22, Army at West Point; 26, Mt. St. Mary's at New York.

Feb. 2, Trinity College at Hartford, Conn.; 6, Crescent A. C. at Brooklyn; 9, open at home; 12, open at home; 16, Manhattan College at New York; 20, Navy at Annapolis, Md.; 21, Virginia at Charlottesville, Va.; 25, Catholic University at Washington, D. C.; 26, New York University at New York.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Advance in Stocks, Railway Shares Leading—Further Rapid Recovery in Exchange.

The really significant movement on yesterday's financial markets was the rise in European exchange rates, which nearly duplicated Monday's swift recovery. Wall Street, however, paid more attention to the stock market, where a substantial rise occurred, this time under the leadership of the railway shares. From the profoundness of the interest taken by the speculative community in the "bullish interviews" of a professional speculator who is known to be himself speculating for the rise, one might consider Wall Street a bit simple. As a matter of fact, however, there were other and better excuses for the rise.

One was the weekly "car-loading report," which again crossed the million mark for the second week of October. This attracted interest, not only because it was the twenty-first of such weekly reports this year, as against only five in our previous railway history, but because the loadings actually increased over the week preceding. Usually a rapid and continuous decrease will be under way with the beginning of November; the second week showed 35,000 less cars loaded last November and 81,000 less in 1921. This comparison might fairly have found reflection in the stock market.

But the movement of exchange rates was of more immediate consequence. Sterling rose 6½ cents and closed within a small fraction of the highest; its best price of yesterday was 13½ cents above Monday's early low figure—the most rapid and extensive rise since the war, except for the days when the market turned from the $3.18 price of February, 1920. Francs advanced yesterday with equal rapidity; their recovery from last week's lowest rate has been nearly 7 per cent. This remarkable recovery does not prove that "reparations" have been settled; but it shows pretty clearly the senselessness of last week's speculative demonstration in exchange.

Yesterday's recovery in stocks was fairly divided between industrial and railway shares, but the increase in volume of transactions in the railways was particularly notable. Total transactions were the largest since Oct. 31 and have been exceeded on only three days of 1923. Among other influences, the report in the midweek steel trade reviews that buying of iron had reached the largest proportions witnessed in many months may possibly have played a part.

The cotton market greeted yesterday's census figures on the ginnings to Nov. 14 by another rise of prices. Yet the amount named for the cotton ginned to that date was larger than the trade had predicted; one Southern cotton organization last week predicted a figure smaller by 100,000 bales. The figure named by the census, 8,368,000 bales to Nov. 14, is 501,000 bales less than that of the corresponding period in 1922, when the crop was only 9,761,000 bales.

But on the other hand, out of the 11,000,000-bale crop of 1919, fully a million bales less had been ginned to the November date than the outturn for the period this year, and the ginnings for the November fortnight were 200,000 bales less than this year's showing. These statements never give conclusive testimony until a month or two before the ginning season ends in the middle of January. Last year the rate of fortnightly output slackened abruptly after November; only 944,000 more bales were ginned. The ginnings for the same time in 1919 were 911,000. But the cotton speculators are today in a mood in which any figures will be made to serve a "bullish" purpose, and the price of spot cotton rose half a cent a pound yesterday to 35.90, as against 34¼ a week ago and 31¾ at the beginning of the month.

MONEY.

Money on call on Stock Exchange was slightly easier, rate closing at 4½ per cent. from an opening and renewal at 4¾, and at the minimum ¼ under Tuesday's final. Time money continued quiet, up to 90 days going at 5 per cent., lenders' quotation of 5¼, obtaining on more distant maturities. There was very little doing in way of actual trades in new money, the settlement of loans at one institution and replacement elsewhere filling up the business reported.

Gold bullion 3d lower at 95s 1d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a price of 111¾ at London. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 140⅝, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102⅜, on Feb. 21, 1923. Highest price last year, 106, on Jan. 3.

EXTRA DIVIDEND FLOW CONTINUES

TOBACCO PRODUCTS UP

Shares Put on $6 Annual Basis—Republic Steel Pays Part of Accumulation on Preferred.

Directors of the Tobacco Products Corporation yesterday increased the quarterly dividend on the company's capital stock, while Directors of the Republic Iron and Steel Company declared an extra dividend on the preferred stock in part payment of accumulated dividends. Several other companies declared extra and initial dividends, while many organizations announced regular payments.

Tobacco Products Corporation directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock payable Jan. 15, 1924, to stockholders of record Jan. 2. This places the stock on a $6 annual dividend basis compared with a previous rate of $5 a share. The Directors also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock payable Jan. 2, 1924, to stock of record Dec. 14.

The Republic Iron and Steel directors declared an extra dividend of $2 a share on the preferred stock on account of accumulated dividends, thus reducing the back dividends due on these shares to $1. In addition the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared, both dividends being payable Jan. 2, to stockholders of record Dec. 15. In the two previous quarters the company paid extra dividends of $2 a share on account of accumulated dividends in addition to the regular payments.

Charles E. Covert, President, in a statement to stockholders, said: "Our company has had a most prosperous year and our board feels that stockholders should receive the direct benefit of this prosperity by the payment of an extra dividend at this time. Our board also authorized the payment of additional compensation to officers and employes of 10 per cent. of their annual salaries."

The Standard Oil Company of Kansas declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Dec. 15, to stockholders of record Nov. 30. STOCK INCREASE PLANNED.

To Vote on Proposal to Add to Capital of American Water Works.

Stockholders of the American Water Works and Electric Company will vote at a special meeting Dec. 6 on the proposal to increase the capital stock from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000. This increase, according to a plan outlined at a meeting of the directors yesterday, is to be effected through an increase in the first preferred stock from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000.

H. Hobart Porter, President of the company, said "no issuance of additional 7 per cent. first preferred stock was contemplated at the present." He stated that the increase authorized by the directors was to place the company in a position so that it could raise new capital in future if it became advisable.

A special meeting of the shareholders of the Birmingham, Ala., Water Works Company, a subsidiary, has been called for Dec. 18, to take action on an increase in the capital stock of that company by authorizing issuance of an additional $5,000,000 preferred stock.

FREICHT LOADINGS AT WEEK'S HIGH RECORD

Second Week of November Marked Twenty-First 'Million-Car Week' of 1923.

Car loadings for the week ended Nov. 10 totaled 1,036,067, the largest for the corresponding week in any year, an increase of 291 cars over the preceding week and of 91,881 cars over the same week of last year. This was the twenty-first week in which car loadings totaled more than a million, and in four other weeks the loadings were at the rate of a million, but did not reach that figure on account of holidays.

Loadings of all classes of revenue freight in the Eastern District showed an increase of 4.4 per cent. over the same week last year, while the Southern District reported an increase of 4.9 per cent. and the Western District 19 per cent. In the forty-five weeks since the first of the year the car loadings throughout the United States have totaled 43,691,728 cars, against 37,144,181 last year.

But while a slight gain was made in the total loadings, as compared with last week, merchandise and miscellaneous car loadings, generally taken as a criterion of manufacturing conditions, showed a decrease of 20,286 to 613,961 cars, a figure still 56,891 over the same week of last year. A large part of the decline in comparison with last week, it is pointed out, is due to the seasonal reduction in merchandise loadings.

Car loadings for the past three weeks in comparison with the corresponding weeks of the past four years are as follows:

	1923.	1922.	1921.	1920.
Nov. 10	1,036,067	944,186	735,777	927,586
Nov. 3	1,035,776	979,851	887,576	916,615
Oct. 27	1,073,985	999,027	950,693	981,242
Oct. 20	1,072,881	989,989	962,202	1,008,119
Oct. 13	1,064,458	969,487	900,529	1,018,839
Oct. 6	1,079,690	954,952	879,681	1,011,066
Sept. 29	1,097,274	977,791	814,831	992,283

The high record for all time was made in the week of Sept. 29 this year, when the loadings totaled 1,097,294, while the high record for 1922, according to the revised figures, was 999,027 in the week ended Oct. 27. The previous high record, excepting the weeks in 1923, was made in the week of Oct. 14, 1920, when 1,018,818 cars were loaded. The total loadings thus far this year amount to 43,691,728 cars, against 37,344,181 in the same period of last year.

Loading of grain and grain products for the week of Nov. 10 totaled 49,088 cars, 1,265 cars above the week before, a decrease of 3,235 cars under the same week last year.

Live stock loading for the week totaled 43,528 cars, 411 cars less than the preceding week, but 5,639 cars above the corresponding week last year.

Coal loading amounted to 190,282 cars, a gain of 10,568 cars over the week before and 5,672 above the same week last year.

Loading of forest products amounted to 75,062 cars. This was a decrease of 447 cars under the week before, but an increase of 14,465 cars over the corresponding week last year.

Ore loading totaled 52,812 cars, 9,615 cars above the week before and 13,384 cars above the corresponding week last year.

"United Standard Oil Company" Now the "United Bankers Shares."

The United Standard Oil Company, which was organized for the purpose of selling "bankers' shares," secured by stocks of ten leading Standard Oil Companies, yesterday changed its name to the United Bankers Shares Company, according to papers filed in Dover, Del.

When announcement was first made that the United Standard Oil Company intended to sell "bankers' shares" at the rate of $11.50 a share on the basis of 700 shares for each unit represented by 144 shares of stock of ten Standard Oil companies, officials of the latter organization announced that they had no connection with the United Standard Oil Company and were not interested in its plan.

Wyoming Oil Price Advances.

Lance Creek and Osage, Wyoming, crude oil was advanced 10 cents a barrel yesterday. This is the first advance in prices in this field since prices started downward last Spring. It follows advances in prices in the Gulf and Southwestern States reported in the last few days, and the posting of premiums of 5 cents a barrel in some sections of California.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Rates Higher on Foreign Buying—Sterling Rises 61-8 Cents to $4.39 1-8.

Foreign exchanges were bid up robustly yesterday. Sterling assumed the lead in the advance, as it did on the decline, rising 6¼ cents from Tuesday's final, to $4.38¾, while French francs shot forward 20 points, to 5.54½ cents. Holland guilders were strong, too, and at 38.18 cents showed a gain of 54 points. Italian, Spanish, Scandinavian, Belgian and Swiss bills all were measurably higher. The close showed slight declines from the day's top prices, but not enough to appreciably cut into the gains established earlier in the day.

The thing that turned the market was the receipt of heavy buying orders from abroad, which dealers claimed carried the intimation that the allied Council had definitely agreed on the text of the note to Germany. As one international banker put it, "the world is short of sterling and the Continentals," and the covering movement, predicated on the favorable news, together with fresh buying by importers, turned the market sharply higher. The volume compared with the business on Monday, and, as on that day, there was difficulty in filling orders except at levels well above the price named in the original order.

German marks were nominally quoted unchanged from Tuesday, at 25 cents per trillion marks, or at the rate of 4,000 billion for $1, compared with 5,000 billion a year ago and 6,150 at this date a year ago.

For further particulars we refer to a letter of Mr. John E. Zimmermann, Treasurer of the Company, which he summarizes as follows:

Penn Central Light and Power Company does the electric light and power business in an important industrial, mining and agricultural territory with an area of approximately 4,000 square miles in central Pennsylvania. Altoona, Hollidaysburg, Juniata, Huntingdon, Mt. Union and Lewistown are among the more important of the communities served. Artificial gas is supplied in Lewistown and Huntingdon. The total population served is estimated at 327,000.

These bonds will be secured, upon completion of this financing, by a first mortgage upon property which includes two modern electric generating stations with an aggregate rated capacity of 40,000 kw., and on 78 miles of steel tower transmission lines. They will be further secured by direct mortgage on the remaining physical property of the Company, and by pledge of all of the capital stock and a majority of the bonds of two subsidiary companies, subject to only $2,381,500 underlying bonds in the hands of the public.

Messrs. Day and Zimmermann, Inc., Engineers, have fixed the depreciated value of the mortgaged property of the Company at $21,400,000, as compared to the Company's total funded debt of $12,681,500 outstanding upon completion of this financing.

The earnings of the Penn Central Light and Power Company System, as constituted on completion of this financing, without any benefit yet received from an electric generating station at Saxton, Pa., of 20,000 kw. capacity and transmission lines just completed at a cost of over $4,500,000, were as follows:

Annual interest on funded debt upon completion of this financing		737,075
Balance		$737,519

Net earnings over twice the above interest charges.

The Company is paying regular dividends on its outstanding Preference and Common shares of $4 and $1.50 per share per annum respectively.

Penn. Central Light and Power Company is under the direct supervision and management of Messrs. Day and Zimmermann, Inc., Engineers, Philadelphia.

Subject to the issuance of the new bonds as planned, the Company will call for redemption at 105 and interest the $3,492,000 Penn Central Light and Power Company First and Consolidated Mortgage 6% Gold Bond, due February 1, 1963, and at 102½ and interest the $3,350,000 Penn Central Power Company First Mortgage Sinking Fund 6% Gold Bonds, due June 1, 1962. How does the Investment Trust Invest?

Answer:—

THE management of an Investment Trust, to use a figure of speech, constantly studies the barometer of investment conditions in many countries. The scientific examination of statistics,—trade reports, money rates, balance sheets, income accounts, etc.—discloses to the Trust many opportunities to invest advantageously which the individual could not detect. Seasoned judgment is joined with statistical research in an untiring scrutiny of securities. The product is an exceptional degree of diversification, in character, class and geographic location, of a Trust's holdings.

The articles of many British Trusts stipulate that not more than 5% of the issued bond and share capital may be put into one security. Some are restricted to 3% or 4%. The Trust Deed of International Securities Trust of America sets a maximum of 3½%.

RAIL BONDHOLDER WINS A TEST SUIT

Entitled to Interest, Payable in Francs, in Currency of Country in Which Demanded.

FRENCH FRANCS OFFERED

Wanted Swiss and Gets Decision for Difference in Exchange—More Suits May Follow.

Holders of American bonds floated in Europe and payable both as to interest and principal in francs are entitled to sue for payment in the currency of the country in which such bonds or coupons are presented for payment, Switzerland, Belgium or France, according to a decision handed down yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Platzek. The case decided was that of Leo Levy against the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad. The railroad is required to pay the plaintiff $364.20, with interest from April 13, 1923, or $377.30 in all, because the plaintiff presented his coupons for payment in Switzerland.

It is believed to be the first decision of its kind ever handed down in this country. It establishes a precedent under which thousands of bondholders may sue for payment of interest and principal in the franc currency which would give them the greatest yield, provided the bonds were presented for payment in the country issuing such currency.

In 1910 the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, & St. Louis issued bonds to the amount of 50,000,000 francs, maturing in 1930. The place of execution or delivery does not appear on their face. They bear the endorsement, "Four per cent. European loan of 1910." They provided that all questions concerning the terms, provisions and effect of the bonds and their coupons should be construed and determined according to the laws of the United States. Each bond was for 500 francs, with interest of 4 per cent. per annum. Principal and interest were payable at a designated banking house in Paris, or, at the option of the holder, at designated banks in Belgium and in Switzerland.

At the time of the issue, as at present, the monetary unit of France, of Belgium and of Switzerland was the franc. These were the only European countries having a currency so denominated. The franc of each of these countries was of equal intrinsic value and their currencies were maintained at par. The entire issue of these bonds was purchased by Morgan, Harjes & Co. of Paris. Of these the plaintiff, Leo Levy, became a holder of 200 of the bonds, with their coupons. On April 13, 1923, he presented the December, 1922, coupons at one of the designated banks in Switzerland and demanded payment.

At that time the French franc had depreciated until its exchange value was about six cents. The bank tendered French francs to the amount specified in the coupons. The tender was refused and the same sum in Swiss francs was demanded. That demand was refused and last Spring Levy began suit here. The Swiss franc was quoted yesterday at 17.44 cents to the dollar, as against 5.51 for the French franc, which means that the entire bond issue, if redeemed in Swiss francs at the present rate of exchange, would be redeemable at approximately $6,500,000 more than if it were redeemed in French francs.

In his decision Justice Platzek wrote: "I think plaintiff's right to recover is quite beyond doubt. He purchased the bond of an American corporation which purports to be given to secure not a French loan nor a Belgian loan nor a Swiss loan, but a European loan. The place of execution does not appear on the face of the bond or its coupons. Both the bond and coupons were payable in francs in either of the three countries which alone had the franc as the unit of their currencies. There was no more ground to suppose that the obligation was intended to be discharged exclusively in French francs than to assume that it was payable solely in Belgian or in Swiss francs. The natural meaning of the instrument was that it was to be paid in the currency of the country where it might be presented for payment. Such also is its legal meaning.

"Interest coupons, when attached to negotiable bonds, when payable to bearer at a time and place stated, are promissory notes and subject to the rules governing negotiable instruments."

Counsel for the railroad was John W. Davis, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's. He stated that the verdict would be appealed. Charles H. Meyer of Guggenheimer, Strasser & Meyer, 27 William Street, represented the plaintiff. Mr. Meyer said it was a test case which, if successful, would result in similar suits by other bondholders.

NEW CHILDS STOCK SOLD.

Restaurant Company to Open Fourteen More Places Shortly.

Announcement was made yesterday that Dillon, Read & Co. had purchased 30,000 shares of the new no par value common stock of the Childs Company. The company will open fourteen more restaurants in various cities throughout the country in the next few months. The stock sold yesterday on a "when issued" basis in the open market at 97¾. Public offering of the stock will be made at or near that figure, it was indicated yesterday.

In connection with the sale, S. S. Childs, President of the company, submitted a statement to the bankers which showed that the chain of restaurants serve annually 40,000,000 meals.

The new stock has been authorized to the extent of 750,000 shares, of which 230,000 will be issued shortly. Following this increase the company's capitalization will consist of 35,000,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock outstanding and 230,000 shares of no par common. The 230,000 shares of new common stock will represent the exchange of the previously outstanding common stock on the basis of five shares for one of the present outstanding 40,000 shares of $100 par value common and the additional amount of 30,000 shares now being offered.

GINNING FIGURES SEND COTTON UP

Prices Show Gain of 35 to 60 Points at Close—Realizing Is Heavy.

There was a broadening of the buying movement in cotton following the publication of the official ginning figures yesterday, which sent prices well above the 35-cent level and which seemed to come as largely from the trade as from speculative sources. Heavy realizing by interests which had carried contracts all the way up from 28 or 30 cents a pound, in a belief that the supply situation would force much higher figures, was absorbed on remarkably moderate reactions, with prices reaching the highest levels of the day in the late trading, when January sold at 34.95 and May at 35.42, or $2 to 71 points above Tuesday's closing quotations. Last prices were within 10 or 15 points of the best, with the market closing firm at net advances of 35 to 60 points.

The census report showing 5,365,683 bales ginned to Nov. 14 was a little above the private returns published toward the end of last week. It was regarded, however, as affording official confirmation of figures which had failed to carry equal conviction, and when the trade came to study the report in detail it was evidently accepted as pointing very strongly to a crop below that of last season. Comparatively light ginning returns up to Nov. 1 had been regarded in some quarters as reflecting the lateness of the crop in certain sections and unfavorable weather conditions. The significance of yesterday's report was found in the fact that, notwithstanding the better weather since Nov. 1, ginning between that date and Nov. 14 was but little greater than that of last year. The reason for this, it was felt, must be looked for in the size of the crop, and there were some traders bullishly enough impressed by the figures to claim that they tended to confirm estimates of nearer 9½ than 10 million bales. Such views are subject to revision by late ginning returns or the final crop estimate of the Government, which is scheduled for publication on Dec. 12, but the buying movement started by yesterday's figures was reflected by an increased spot business in the South as well as by the advances in futures.

There appeared to be a good many selling orders in the market at the opening, but first prices were 5 to 18 points on all the active months except May, which was 1 point lower. The continued strength of Liverpool stimulated buying on the census figures, and prices immediately advanced. This first rush of buying sent the market 40 to 50 points net higher, and heavy realizing sales were absorbed on setbacks of 15 or 20 points later in the morning. This cotton was so readily taken that there was a movement to rebuy by earlier profit takers, and during the afternoon there appeared to be a broadening of trade demand, presumably to fix prices on call cotton. There was also buying here by brokers with New Orleans, Memphis and Southwestern connections, which was accompanied by reports of the most active spot demand of the season in the Memphis market. This tended to confirm an impression that the more general acceptance of reduced crop estimates had led to increased covering by trade shorts as well as fresh commission house buying, and reports that an agreement had been reached in the Paris conference with the advances in exchange to check the slump in the market, no doubt contributed to the late strength in cotton. There were more numerous reports of increasing mill curtailment during the afternoon, but they seemed to attract little attention at the moment, as the market was evidently dominated by the reduction in estimates of the supply. Sales in the Southern markets as officially reported exceeded 47,000 bales, with prices ranging from 40 to 60 points higher.

MORE LIFE INSURANCE.

Sales for the Country in October 13% Greater Than Last Year.

Sales of life insurance in the United States in October were 13 per cent. greater than in the corresponding period of last year, while for the ten months' period the increase amounted to 19 per cent, in comparison with the same period of 1922. The increase in ordinary life insurance written in the first ten months was $764,000,000. In six States, scattered over the country, sales for October were less than in the same month last year, but for the year to date the sales were higher in every State with the exception of Arizona.

The Central and Western Central groups of States showed the largest increases for October. The Pacific district, which was third for October, is still first in the record for the ten months of the year. PIG IRON DEVELOPS BUYING MOVEMENT

Iron Trade Review Describes It as One of Largest Since Last March.

TENDENCY CONSERVATIVE

Finished Steel Market Restricted, Though Prospects Are Regarded as Bright.

Increased demand for pig iron broadened into one of the largest buying movements since March, according to The Iron Trade Review in its weekly summary. Conservative estimates place iron under contract at over 500,000 tons. The bulk of this tonnage is for the first quarter of next year, although there are liberal orders for delivery the balance of this year, testifying, according to this publication, to the consumers' low stocks.

The Iron Age market summary for the week estimates the total purchases at between 600,000 and 650,000 tons, 450,000 tons of which was booked by Northern mills and 200,000 by Southern mills. The largest order was 50,000 tons bought at Buffalo by the American Radiator Company.

"While the buying has been very heavy," The Iron Age continues, "the movement has been carried on in a conservative way, and some important melters have not yet entered the market.

"The finished steel market, in contrast with the activity in pig iron, continues to show the effect of restricted buying. Operations are at a less rate, being scaled down rather more in the Chicago district than elsewhere, and apart from tin plate bookings, which have been heavy, new business is not quite up to the October rate.

"However, a better view is taken of prospects for 1924, as the total pf railroad cars being planned for grows and the building and automobile outlook continues favorable."

The Iron Trade Review says that "prices now seem to have touched bottom and buyers generally appreciate this fact. Heavy sales are usually made at minimum figures which in spots dipped further than the market which now shows first signs of stiffening. Chicago producers ask 50 cents higher for first quarter delivery and $1 for first half. Eastern and Virginia makers are quoting higher and some Alabama makers name $21 Birmingham. Some of the largest buyers are active. The composite on fourteen representative iron and steel products this week is $42.63. This compares with $42.74 last week and $43.09 the preceding week.

NEW CURRENCY IN GERMANY

Bremen and Hamburg on Gold Basis, Says Report to Wall Street.

Two German cities have established dollar currencies entirely independent of the national Government, according to reports received here. In Bremen, says a message from a correspondent by Munds & Winslow, that city's new dollar buys more German paper marks than an American dollar. The communication follows:

"If you were here you might think you were home as far as the unit of exchange is concerned. We have dollars, half dollars, twenty, ten and five-cent pieces. This money is issued by the Freie Stadt of Bremen and, believe me, it is at last money. We are on a gold basis.

"Hamburg has taken the pound sterling as its unit and has issued all denominations of the pound. The Berlin Government has dilly-dallied so long about placing money on a gold basis that the Free Cities have taken matters into their own hands and, excepting the bankers, every one is rejoicing.

"For every dollar issued there is a dollar of gold reserve, and strange to relate, these dollars are selling like hot cakes."

Where to Sell—NOW!

If you had the facts on the relative Purchasing Power of every sales territory in the United States and Canada it is probable that you could take advantage of some of these opportunities and increase the returns on your sales and advertising dollar.

It would cost thousands of dollars to get this information, you say?

Yes—if you had it collected and compiled by your own statistical department—but several thousand sales executives who are co-operating through this organization receive it as a part of Babson's Reports on Business. The pro-rata cost is ridiculously insignificant—results inestimable.

If you'd like to see just how these facts can be turned to advantage in your own business—tear out the MEMO—now and hand it to your Secretary when you dictate the morning's mail.

OPPOSES A DECISION ON BRANCH BANKING

Solicitor General Beck Asks the Supreme Court Merely to Rule It Is Not a Matter for States.

MISSOURI CASE IS ARGUED

Attorney for Federal Bank Joins Plea That Federal Courts Alone Have Jurisdiction in Such Cases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Efforts to prevent the Supreme Court from deciding whether national banks have the right to establish branches were made today by Solicitor General Beck and F. E. Sullivan, counsel for the First National Bank of St. Louis. During oral argument of a case brought by the bank to have set aside an injunction granted by the Supreme Court of Missouri, restraining it from opening branches, they urged the court to hold that States could not raise such questions and that it was a matter exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government.

Solicitor General Beck joined with Mr. Sullivan in contending that States could not, under their own laws or under Federal statutes, challenge the right of a national bank to establish branches, or exercise any jurisdiction over them. Both insisted that if such an institution violated any of its charter rights or exceeded its privileges in any way it could only be reached through proceedings instituted in the Federal courts by the Controller of the Currency.

While Solicitor General Beck announced that he was willing to admit that the branch established by the St. Louis bank was illegal, if it transacted business beyond that of merely accepting deposits and cashing checks, which Attorney General Daugherty in a recent opinion had held such branches could do, he insisted that the State of Missouri was helpless to prevent the establishment of such a branch by instituting a proceeding in the courts.

Discussing the Attorney General's opinion, Mr. Sullivan asserted that it was not the intention of Congress in the National Banking act to prohibit branch banks. All growth of national banks, he contended, was not to be perpendicular. They could also grow horizontally, he said, and as their business required open additional buildings or offices.

The case was an attempt by a State to obstruct the operations of the general Government, Solicitor General Beck declared, and was, he said, a challenge of the supremacy of the Federal Government. Federal instrumentalities cannot, he insisted, be subjected to any attack by a State, except so far as Congress has permitted. It had not, he added, permitted them to institute such suits.

Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett of Missouri opened the case for his State by disclaiming any intention on its part to attempt to enforce the National Banking act. He explained that Missouri prohibited all private banks, and permitted only Federal and State banks to operate. The First National Bank of St. Louis established, he said, referring to the branch, "an illicit banking institution," one not recognized under the laws of Missouri. It was not a State bank, he insisted, and was not a national bank under the construction given the National Banking laws by Missouri. The State, he insisted, had a right to go into its courts to close a bank not authorized under its laws.

The State was entitled, he insisted, to a decision by the Supreme Court on the merits of the controversy involved. He asked the Court to brush aside all technicalities and to announce for the guidance of the States whether national banks could establish branches.

The dual character of national banks was stressed in the argument of Robert C. Morris, appearing also for Missouri, who asserted they were conducted for the benefit of stockholders. He insisted that national banks must be considered by the Court on their private side, stating that it was difficult to determine what constituted their Government service. The purpose of establishing branch banks, he argued, was to promote the interests of the stockholders.

Although the case was argued at the last session, the Court in recognition of its importance, extended the time for the arguments which will not be concluded until tomorrow.

AUSTRALIA WANTS TO SELL MORE HERE

Commissioner Says U. S. Sold Her $601,000,000 in 5 Years and Bought $220,000,000.

FINDS THE TARIFF A BARRIER

Declares America Takes the Goods Which Australia Can Market Elsewhere.

Donald Mackinnon, Australian Commissioner to the United States, said that steps should be taken to remedy the trade conditions between the United States and Australia "before the commercial intercourse of the two great English-speaking countries withers away or even dies of inanition." The weakness of the present system, he told members of the British Empire Chamber of Commerce at their monthly luncheon yesterday, was that the United States has exported $601,000,000 of goods to Australia in the last five years, at the same time purchasing but $220,000,000.

"Another feature in the trade relationship is that America takes very little of the goods we find hard to market," he added. "For the products which under our system of land settlement, the fruit mainly of our small farmers, we must find a market if we are to carry an adequate population.

"The things America does take can be marketed elsewhere. That, some one may say, is Australia's fault; she should produce things that America wants. To that criticism there are two answers; first, these products are the things that Australia does by nature profitably produce, and, second, America does require some of them, but keens them out by means of artificial barriers."

Mr. Mackinnon said that one of his missions in the United States was to promote more friendly relations and an increase of trade between the two countries.

FIRMNESS IN WHEAT SURPRISES DEALERS

December Gains Despite Heavy Sales in Exchange for May and July Deliveries.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—It is estimated that Eastern longs in December wheat have sold 15,000,000 bushels of that delivery in the past ten days, with the greater part of it replaced by purchases of May and July. Despite persistent changing today, however, the December showed relatively more strength than the deferred delivery, and a more friendly feeling prevailed toward the buying side at the last, a closing bulge, with the finish ¼@⅝ cent not higher, being due largely to short covering.

Elevator interests bought December and sold May at 5⅛@5⅝ cents difference, with some selling of December and buying of July at 4@4¼ cents spread. There was little in the general run of news that attracted attention, and while sentiment as a whole is bearish and there is considerable talk of the price ultimately getting well under $1, the failure of the market to break on very bearish news has led to a belief that the technical position warrants a rally.

From Aug. 1, 1922, to May 31, 1923, a daily average of 14,800,000 bushels of May wheat was traded in at Chicago, according to figures put out by the Grain Futures Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture. The daily average for all wheat futures during that period was 31,800,000 bushels, the largest business being on Sept. 18, 1922, when the day's aggregate of all futures was 74,000,000 bushels.

Export demand continues slow, with sales of 300,000 bushels Manitobas.

Holders of December corn who had a profit were disposed to take what was left in the market and, with liquidation on, that future, closed ⅝ cent lower, while deferred deliveries were ¼@⅜ higher, with strong commission house buying May on resting orders a feature.

Cash corn led the decline and closed 1 @ four cents lower, and is working down nearer the December, No. 3 yellow being nine cents over at the close today against 12 over a few days ago. Elevator interests are picking up the best of the No. 3 and No. 4 grades. It was figured by one elevator man at the last that prices were eight cents out of line on No. 3 and ten cents out on the No. 2 grades. This represents the handling cost and shrinkage in drying.

Reports from leading shipping points in Illinois indicate that there will be an increased movement by Dec. 1.

Oats are coming in for more attention and closed unchanged to ⅜ cent higher.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,036,000 bushels; week ago, 1,657,000; last year, 1,704,000. Shipments were 865,000 bushels; week ago, 488,000; last year, 1,031,000. Corn receipts were 1,000,000 bushels; week ago, 807,000; last year 757,000, and shipments, 455,000 bushels; week ago, 390,000; last year, 385,000.

Today's Chicago prices for the principal commodities were as follows:

BROKERAGE FIRM PAYS DEBTS IN FULL

Robert P. Marshall Co., Stock Exchange Firm, Makes Record in Bankruptcy Proceeding.

SETTLES WITHIN 52 DAYS

Liabilities Estimated at $2,000,000, Creditors Get 100 Cents on the Dollar—Praised by Receiver.

Robert P. Marshall & Co. a New York Stock Exchange firm, against whom three creditors filed a petition in bankruptcy on Sept. 28 last, will pay 100 per cent. of all claims, thus setting a record for full settlement and quick action in bankruptcy proceedings against brokerage concerns. The plan of the Creditors Committee for full payment and for the discharge of the receiver, James R. Sheffield, was approved yesterday by Federal Judge A. N. Hand.

Mr. Sheffield was directed to turn back all the properties of the firm except $35,000 which will be held for the few creditors who have not assented to the plan. If not claimed within thirty days the money will be turned over to the firm.

The bankruptcy proceedings followed the slump in a stock in which the firm was deeply interested, but the firm refused to admit that it was bankrupt and an order was made giving it until Dec. 5 to answer. At the time the liabilities according to the receiver, amounted to $2,250,000 and the assets $2,340,000. Of the assets $700,000 were represented by stock that had no active market. Francis L. Kohlman of Kohlman & Austrian, counsel for the receiver, said that the settlement of the affairs of the firm was due to the efforts of Mr. Sheffield.

The plan of settlement provides that the claims, except some of the larger ones which have been subordinated, shall be paid in cash within fifteen days, the amount due to be shown by the accountants of the receiver. Commenting on the case Mr. Kohlman said:

"The record in this case is remarkable. The receivership lasted only fifty-two days and the estate is enabled to pay off dollar for dollar all of its indebtedness. The arrangement was made possible by the generosity of the larger creditors, whose claims were made subordinate to those of the customers. The plan just approved means that a large amount of delay and expense has been avoided and the firm is in a position to resume business as soon as the details have been completed."

P. R. R. CLOSES SHOPS; 70,000 OUT OF WORK

Thousands Will Be Cut From Payroll When Plants Reopen on Dec. 3.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Orders closing all the shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad System doing general repair and new work until Dec. 3 were sent out from the general offices of the company here tonight. Approximately 70,000 men will be affected. Reduction in railroad traffic earnings was given as the reason for the order.

Only the men needed for actual current repair work will be kept on duty for the remainder of this month, and when the shops reopen it was stated unofficially that several thousand men would be cut from the forces of the four regions. A number of the shops, including Altoona and Philadelphia, will close tomorrow and the others at the end of the week.

The action was taken after a conference of regional executives with W. W. Atterbury, Vice President in charge of operation. At the close of the conference this official statement was issued: "In November there is normally a seasonal reduction in railroad traffic earnings. The Pennsylvania Railroad, in compliance with the program of the American Railway Association, has placed its property in good condition for the Winter and has a surplus of cars and locomotives available for service. The usual adjustment in working forces is accordingly taking place."

Flower Trimmings to the Fore.

Flowers and foliage are coming to the fore strongly for trimming purposes in the local millinery trade. In pressed effects they are seen in a number of the leading houses, being used to advantage on the new faille models. They are used either to cover entire hats or to bank or face the brims. They are also seen appliqued in flat effects in a number of lovely color blends. Silver and velvet poppies are favored, as are leaves in combinations of tinsel cloth and velvet. A number of the smaller blossoms are also made use of in attractive colorings.

Old-Fashioned Styles Returning?

Indications in this market are that there is a possibility of a return to favor of several types of old-fashioned jewelry. A number of articles of this kind are said to be taking well in the more popular-priced lines, among them cameo brooches and festoon neck chains. In the more modern articles, buyers are still giving their attention to bangle bracelets, a new type of which has just been placed on the market. It is made of sterling silver and is closely set with imitation sapphires, rubies, emeralds, &c. The inner side is chased, and the bracelet is well regarded by buyers who have seen it. It retails at $3.50 each.

Gray Goods Prices Firmer.

Although there was no marked increase in the amount of trading done in gray goods here yesterday, the price trend was distinctly upward as a result of the further rise in cotton. The best that could be done on 39-inch 68-72 printcloths for this year's delivery was 12¾ cents, with most houses asking an eighth more. For shipment past the turn of the year, nothing under 13 cents would be taken by sellers. A few spot lots of 38½-inch 64-60s were sold early in the day at 10¾ cents, with an eighth more asked at the close. November-December 38½-inch 60-48s sold in a limited way at 9¾ cents. In the sheetings there was some pretty fair business reported in the so-called jobbers' constructions. In the heavier goods, sales of 40-inch 2.85s were put through at 16¾ cents.

Nearby Shoe Buyers Inactive.

Regardless of the amount of advance spring business that is being written for women's shoes in other parts of the country, that which is being placed by buyers in New England was said yesterday to be remarkable for its smallness. The representative for that section of one of the best-known makers of women's shoes in the country has just returned from a six weeks' trip, during which he booked a fair amount of immediate and "from stock" business, but did not write a single advance order. The big buyers, he said, either are not interested in buying now or else they cannot get confirmations. The smaller retailers, who have not had a good season, are so overstocked that to take Spring business from them now is merely to invite cancellations later on.

Retail Dry Goods Convention.

The convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association this year will cover four days, the dates announced yesterday being Feb. 5, 6, 7 and 8. Usually, the gathering extends over three days, but it has been found that this was not long enough to do justice to the programs arranged. The convention, which is the thirteenth annual one, will be held at the Hotel Astor, where a number of meeting rooms will be available for the group gatherings that are a feature of the event. Details of the program will be made public shortly. The association also announced that its Board of Directors had decided to give active support to the recently formed Retailers' National Council and the suggested Clearing House for trade relations.

"Short" Importers Are Covering.

Although, except for urgent lots, users of burlaps are showing practically no interest in the local market at the moment, an active business is resulting from the operations of those importers who are buying to cover short sales. It is due to these operations that spot prices are holding up the way they are in the face of all the goods that are now headed in this direction from Calcutta. Spot burlaps yesterday were quoted at 6.50 cents for "lights" and 7.05 cents for "heavies," with November arrivals held at 5.70 and 7.05 cents, respectively. Shipment goods at Calcutta were quoted on the basis of 5.60 cents and 7.25 cents for November-December delivery, while the January-March positions were offered at 5.80 cents for the eight-ounce goods and 7.05 cents for the 10½-ounce ones.

Printed Silk Vogue Very Strong.

Earlier predictions, that the vogue of printed silks for Spring would be greater than ever, appear to be borne out by the notably increased interest in these fabrics and the number of new uses being made of them. It was pointed out yesterday that the designs that are being shown in the prints render them available for the whole gamut of ready-to-wear, including evening gowns, sport garments and even bathing suits. The question has again arisen, as it did last year at this time, whether the prints will not be "overdone," but confidence is expressed that this will not be the case. The printers are having large demands made on them by converters and distributers and they are urging that the retail buyers place their business so that difficulties due to a bunching of orders later on may be avoided.

Show More Women's Wear Fabrics.

An extensive line of sports coatings and flannels are featured in the enlarged showing, begun yesterday, of women's wear fabrics made by the dress goods department of the United States Worsted Corporation. Wool and camel's hair coatings are offered in a great variety of color combinations in plaids, stripes and blocks, the patterns greatly resembling the designs of the newest foreign fabrics. Stress is placed on the riviera flannels for dresses, suits and skirts. These number nearly a hundred patterns in plaids, stripes and checks, in which the effort has been made to attain notable color harmony. Besides the staple dress worsteds, the concern is showing the high-lustred cloths of this order and novelty ones having woven hair lines or self-stripes. A worsted coating is included which has a distinctive chevron pattern.

Trend of Winter Fashions.

The renaissance of woolen fabrics of high intrinsic merit and decorative value is termed the outstanding fashion development of the Fall and Winter season, in the second edition of "The Trend," issued yesterday by the Botany Worsted Mills. This publication, a limited edition of which is being sent the retail trade, is a very elaborately bound book, printed and decorated after the Renaissance manner, affording a comprehensive view of the main fashion influences as they have developed. These are reviewed, in individual sections, in their relation to fabric, silhouette and customs ensemble details. There are also divisions dealing with juvenile garments, negligees and accessories. The main portion of the book is prefaced with short editorials by heads of concerns recognized as style leaders in their respective fields.

Opening Woolen Blanket Lines.

Lines of woolen blankets for the 1924 season are being opened by some mills, with others preparing to show within the next week or so. Prices are said to be somewhat higher, the increase ranging in certain instances from 5 to 10 per cent. over the opening levels last year. In one well-known line, which will be opened shortly, the low end, a blanket having 35 per cent. wool, will be quoted at $3.95. This was originally priced last year at $3.60, but was later advanced to $3.85. The American Woolen Company is preparing its blanket lines, and announcement of the opening is expected shortly. Some of the blanket mills are only partly covered on raw wool and say the lines would have to be opened higher if they were priced on today's wool level. This is taken to presage advances later on. It is believed that some inkling of the goods prices for the heavyweight season will be afforded by the new blanket quotations.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

Another Big Deal in Garment Centre Section, Involving a $1,750,000 Investment.

That the recent auction sale of Wells estate properties in the new garment centre just north of the Pennsylvania Station by Joseph P. Day has added impetus to the building boom is shown by the fact that every day during the last week one or more sales have been announced.

In the majority of the sales the properties were purchased for immediate improvement with lofts designed to meet the demands of the needle trades, and the aggregate cost of the proposed buildings amounts to many millions of dollars.

Record prices were obtained at the auction sale, and the sales and resales that have followed it indicate that operators are taking quick and substantial profits.

Yesterday was no exception to the rule, when an operation involving the investment of about $1,750,000 was announced and another similar deal was reported pending.

This operation involves the five old buildings at 257 to 267 West Thirty-ninth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, in the heart of the garment centre, which were sold by Levy Brothers, operators and builders, to George Kern, a meat packer and a large holder of realty in the immediate vicinity.

The plot, which has a frontage of 126.6 feet on the street and a depth of 100 feet, will be improved at once by Mr. Kern with a sixteen-story structure devoted to the needs of the needle industry. Plans for the proposed building are now being prepared. William S. Sussman, Inc., negotiated the sale.

On Tuesday Levy Brothers purchased from the Bricken Construction Company a plot 100 by 134 on the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, on which they will erect a twenty-story loft. This deal was also negotiated by William S. Sussman, Inc., Monte London acting as attorney for the Bricken Construction Company.

Morris Feierstein and Morris Wortman, operators, have resold the six six-story tenements, on a plot 240 by 100 feet, at 217 to 227 East Sixty-sixth Street, between Third and Second Avenues.

The sellers recently purchased the property from John Willi, who bought it from the builder fifteen years ago.

The buildings contain 180 apartments of three and four rooms. The property rents for about $60,000, being less than $6 a room.

The property was held for $400,000, and the buyer, Mrs. Etty Klatsky, intends to hold it for an investment. M. Loeffler was the broker.

Samuel Rosoff & Sons sold 529 to 541 Cathedral Parkway, a fourteen-story apartment under construction, on plot 175 by 70 feet, to a buyer understood to be the Gertmin Construction Company.

The Lawrence Holding Company sold 110 and 112 Convent Avenue, being the southwest corner of Convent Avenue and 133d Street, a five-story apartment house containing thirty apartments and on a plot 50 by 100. The sellers built this property eleven years ago and the reported selling price was $120,000. Ryan & Co. were the brokers.

Frank Hollander purchased from a client of Otterbourg, Steindler & Houston the five-story tenement with stores at 85 East Third Street, on a plot 25 by 96. Fisch & Pollinger were the brokers.

Dwight, Archibald & Perry sold for the Ped Realty Company 443 West Fifty-sixth Street, a five-story tenement, 25 by 100, renting for $4,500. The property was held at $30,000.

Ennis & Sinnott purchased the two five-story double flats at 128 and 130 East Ninety-sixth Street, on a plot 62 by 100, from Mary Augusta Duer, Elizabeth Stuart Hamilton and Edith B. H. and Elise S. H. Kinkead. O'Reilly & Dahn and George Ponter Company were the brokers.

Charles A. Du Bois sold for Fannie Schoenbrun to Meyer Shapiro the five-story flat at 511 and 513 West 178th Street, on a plot 42.6 by 99.11 feet.

Robert G. Grunert sold for Thomas Griffin 294 Ninth Avenue, 24 by 100, a three-story apartment and stores.

George M. Adrian bought the two five-story tenements at 242 and 244 East Twenty-seventh Street from Richard N. Geis and others.

The Chasmore Construction Company sold to an investing client of Morris Moore's Son the five-story apartment house, on a plot 25 by 100, at 1,526 Second Avenue. This building rents for $5,000 and was held at $60,000.

The building will have an ornamental mosaic front and the interior will have tiled floors and paneled walls, with all accessories of a high-class salesroom and service depot. The total floor area of the building will be 31,000 square feet.

The construction has already begun and building will be ready for occupancy about March 1, 1924, all work being done under the personal supervision of Mr. Felson.

Edward J. Maier & Co., Inc., were the the brokers in the transaction. The lease covers a period of twenty-one years, with an option to purchase.

The cost of the project is estimated at $350,000, and the lease involves a rental of approximately $950,000 for the term, or about $45,000 a year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—During Wednesday the pressure remained high off the Atlantic Coast, and it was high and rising over the Upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region and low along the northern border, and in the Far Southwest centres of minimum pressure were charted Monday night over Quebec, Alberta and Southern California.

The temperature became high during Wednesday throughout the Atlantic and Gulf States and the Ohio Valley, while colder weather overspread the upper lake region, the Upper Mississippi Valley and the Middle and Northern Plains States. The weather has become warmer over the Far Northwest.

Are you burning money?

How to save 1/3 on your fuel bill

The Minneapolis Heat Regulator prevents over-heating at one time and under-heating at another. It automatically regulates room temperature by operating checks and drafts to maintain a desired temperature. And it will save the cost of one ton of coal out of three you are buying now.

For example. You set the clock and indicator at 70° for the day. At 11:30 P.M., if desired, the temperature falls to 60° for the night and rises to 70° again at 7:30 A. M., if desired. Set the "Minneapolis" once for the whole year. Owners say they have never touched checks, drafts, dampers or valves in years.

The "Minneapolis" meets the rising or falling of outside temperature automatically. If more or less heat is required to maintain a given temperature, the "Minneapolis" checks or advances fires accordingly. Note that it gives not heat control only, but actual temperature control.

It eliminates guess work and anxiety. Saves hours now spent by some-one in "watching the furnace". Quickly installed by expert service men on any type of heating plant, burning any fuel. Enjoy the comforts, conveniences and economies of the Minneapolis Heat Regulator this winter. Our monthly payment plan makes the purchase an easy matter. Call, write or telephone for information today.

FOR OIL BURNERS
A complete success for oil burners as well as all other types of heating systems. Adapted to both power and gravity burners and furnished as standard equipment by leading manufacturers. To protect yourself, ask before you buy. If the burner is Minneapolis-equipped.

Ink or Advertising? Which do you buy?

Does your advertising appropriation buy mere white paper and printing ink, or the opportunity to make people think your way?

Do you point to a campaign of full pages and say: "We ran them"—or can you point to your list of customers and say: "Our advertising sold them"?

Federal does not believe in shouting a two inch message in full page space or whispering a full page message in two-inch space. Instead, we specialize in making the most of an advertising investment by expressing the advertiser's message in an Interrupting way. Not the size of the appropriation nor the space, but the bigness of the selling idea and the result, are the measures of accomplishment at Federal.
